

Pendleton Armory Robbed

CAMP PENDLETON — Marine shore patrolmen and FBI agents searched buildings and outgoing vehicles Saturday after three or four persons broke into a base armory, clubbed a sentry unconscious and stole arms and ammunition.

The theft occurred Friday night 12 miles from the Western White House in San Clemente, where President Nixon arrived Friday. Presidential news secretary Ron Ziegler said, however, that no unusual security measures had been taken as a result of the arms theft.

Col. Ross R. Miner, commander of Pendleton's Margarita staging area, site of the theft, termed it "very serious" and said he feared the weapons "might fall into the hands of militant groups."

Taken were nine rifles, a grenade launcher, a .45-caliber pistol and ammunition, the Marines said.

Marine officials said one assailant clubbed the guard, Cpl. Kenneth D.

Roberts, unconscious with the butt of a gun. Roberts, not seriously injured, was treated at the base hospital and released, officials said.

Roberts told FBI agents he answered a knock on the armory door and was struck by a man dressed in Marine fatigues, carrying a gun.

Gates to the 126,000-acre,

40,000-man base, closed Friday, were reopened Saturday, but the check on outgoing vehicles continued, officials said.

Marines denied rumors that arrests had been made.

Lt. Col. Ed Schulze said the weapons are "basically useless as taken," because only ammunition for the pistol was stolen.

Bomb Disarmed in Times Lobby; 15 Minutes to Spare

Police disarmed a time bomb less than 15 minutes before it was set to explode in the lobby of the Los Angeles Times building Saturday.

The bomb was discovered at about 1:30 p.m. by a gardener watering plants inside the building at 202 W. First St. Officers said the bomb had been timed to go off at 1:45 p.m.

The bomb was made from a foot-long length of pipe measuring four inches in diameter, a battery and a stop watch. The pipe was filled with black powder.

Officer H.A. Duncan said the gardener, Joaquin Ontiveros, 44, of Los Angeles, noticed the watch in a planter box and became alarmed when he discovered the wires leading from it.

Ontiveros called police, who disarmed the bomb.

Real Wheel Deal

Q. I sold my Cadillac to a man for $4100. He paid me with a Union Bank and Trust Co. cashier's check. I am now told that the check was stolen and forged. Is the bank responsible for payment or am I left holding a bum check? J. Y., Downey.

A. You are the loser. According to Lou Zankich of Union Bank's legal department, the responsibility of the check is solely yours. The check apparently was stolen and signed by the person who bought your car, and is technically no longer the bank's check. Zankich explained that the situation is the same if one of your personal checks was stolen and forged. However, the bank's special investigators and the police department are attempting to find the forger—and your car.

Ecology for Everybody

Q. Does ACTION LINE know of any service groups or any organizations that a concerned and interested citizen can join to combat pollution? I saw a television show on our troubled environment and it really frightened me. Now I'd like to join the fight. Mrs. C.D.K., Torrance.

A. The environmental planning and conservation groups who fight for a decent environment are as numerous and diverse as the issues they confront. Many are new groups, others had the earth's health as their prime concern years before ecology became a popular and political issue. Some of the groups in the Los Angeles and Long Beach areas are: Audubon Society, Plummer Park, 7377 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90046; Clean Air Council, 915 Citrus Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90038; Council for Planning and Conservation, P.O. President, on Job in San Clemente, Sets Easy Pace

By DOUGLAS CORNELL
Associated Press

President Nixon, opening a 10-day stay at the Western White House, conferred with aides Saturday in advance of formal meetings early this week on the 1972 budgets for defense and domestic programs.

The pace was leisurely, but the White House has passed the word there will be plenty of work for the President during his stay at San Clemente.

Furthermore, a previously announced trip to Mexico apparently won't turn into what the President called his first vacation in five years. White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler now is projecting it as an official and comparatively brief, visit of perhaps three or four days.

THIS WOULD involve meetings with outgoing President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz and incoming President Luis Echeverria, who takes office Dec. 1.

President and Mrs. Nixon, who observed their 30th wedding anniversary June 21, spent their honeymoon at Acapulco. And when Mexican Ambassador Hugo Margain called at the White House last week with a silver humidor anniversary gift from Diaz Ordaz, Nixon was talking of getting in a vacation at "a beautiful resort" in Mexico—but not Acapulco.

An official visit points to less protocol and formalities in the offing than would a state visit.

Nixon brought to California only part of his domestic team when he arrived late Friday from Washington. He had stopped along the way in Fargo, N.D., to meet with five Plains State governors and in Salt Lake City with the hierarchy of the Mormon Church.

But on Monday there will be a general meeting to size up its economic outlook in preparation for sessions Tuesday for early stages of planning the 1972 defense budget and a similar meeting Wednesday on the domestic budget.

Flag-Bearing Vietnam Vet Finishes Death Valley Hike

DEATH VALLEY — Tired, sore and blistered, Army Sgt. Jack Nelson hiked across the finish line Saturday morning after five days of packing an American flag over 130 miles of the nation's hottest desert.

A ranger who met Nelson at Scotty's Castle in the desert valley said the 34-year-old staff sergeant and Vietnam veteran "looked pooped and said his feet hurt" after the final 30-mile stretch.

NELSON, of Cleveland, said he and his brother Arlen "plan to bring their families back and sight-see," the ranger related. The two men drove to Arlen's Downey home to rest.

Mexico Jetliner Hijacked

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Four men armed with pistols and bombs hijacked an Aeromexico DC-9 jetliner Saturday on a flight from the resort city of Acapulco and forced the pilot to fly to Cuba.

A spokesman for the government-owned airline said 20 of the 27 passengers aboard were Americans, but he was unable to furnish identifications. There were four crew members.

Three of the four hijackers were identified by Mexican authorities as Dominican prisoners released and sent to Mexico in exchange for the life of a kidnaped U.S. diplomat last March.

THE FEDERAL prosecutor's office in Mexico City said the three Dominicans were among 20 political prisoners released in Santo Domingo last March 28 and flown to exile in Mexico in exchange for the life of U.S. air attaché Daniel J. Crowley.

Crowley, 48, an Air Force lt. colonel, was kidnaped March 24 and held for two days.

The plane made a brief refueling stop at its original destination here before continuing to Havana. It landed at Jose Marti Airport in the Cuban capital at 12:35 p.m., an airline official said.

The plane flew on to Havana, dropped off the hijackers, and returned to Mexico City at 8:20 p.m. EDT with its 23 remaining passengers and four crewmen.

The pilot, Capt. Gabriel Malda Grandison, advised the Mexico City International Airport's control

U.S. Urges Russia Limit Big Missiles to Current Levels

WASHINGTON — The United States has proposed to the Soviet Union that the two superpowers limit their strategic nuclear missiles to about the number they have now or perhaps less.

The U.S. offer would place an overall numerical ceiling on each nation's intercontinental ballistic missiles, submarine-fired missiles and long-range bombers, with some flexibility for each side in deciding how to mix its weapons within the limit.

UNDER THE missile ceiling, there also would be a limitation on size of missiles, aimed at preventing further Soviet deployment of huge SS9 rockets.

And the two powers would hold their antiballistic missile (ABM) systems to approximately what the Soviets now have. The Russian ABM system now deployed is said to consist mainly of 64 launchers around Moscow.

These features of the U.S. proposal became known Saturday following its presentation to the Soviets at the Vienna strategic arms limitation talks Friday. At White House briefings for key congressmen, Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security affairs adviser, is said to have portrayed the Administration's program to push ahead with the U.S. ABM as an important bargaining chip in the effort to reach an agreement with the Soviets at Vienna.

THIS DREW a protest from Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, a leading opponent of the Administration's ABM plan.

The Senate last year okayed by only one vote the initiation of the Administration's Safeguard ABM system.

With the Senate now weighing a $1.3-billion proposal.

U.S. Troops Shot Up by Air Support

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. air cavalrymen engaged in a firefight with two enemy soldiers near the Cambodian border were mistakenly hit by a rocket burst from one of their own supporting helicopters Saturday and 14 of them were wounded.

The fight broke off after the accident and it was not known what happened to the two enemy soldiers. The U.S. Command said the incident is under investigation.

The action occurred 95 miles northeast of Saigon. The helicopter gunship was summoned into the fight by ground troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division, according to field reports.

The number of Americans involved was not disclosed but according to the field dispatches there were probably 150 U.S. troops in the action.

Yellowstone Bear Mauls Californian

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — A black bear mauled a California man Saturday after lumbering into a sleeping couple's pup tent in a Yellowstone National Park campground.

Roy Hedlund, 21, of Half Moon Bay, suffered a broken arm and lacerations on his head, arms, upper body and right leg. His wife, Leslie, escaped injury.

Hedlund was in fair condition at a park hospital, according to Assistant Park Superintendent Vern Hennessey.

The couple said they had no food in the tent and didn't know why the bear entered. They were camped at Grant Village in the south end of the park.

Park rangers searched for the bear, which witnesses described as black. The attack occurred shortly before dawn.

Nelson's trek took five days and three hours.

Cabinet Drafting Condition

United Press International

Israel will accept America's Mideast peace plan, but only on the condition an unconditional ceasefire coupled with guarantees the Egyptians and Russians will not use it to beef up Suez Canal air defenses, authoritative Israeli political sources said Saturday night.

The sources said Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and her cabinet would meet today to approve the final form of Israel's stand on the plan, which has already been accepted by Egypt. The plan calls for a ceasefire until Oct. 1, and resumption of negotiations among Egypt, Jordan and Israel under auspices of U.N. mediator Gunnar Jarring.

The sources said the Israeli peace plan was worked out after new assurances of Israel's safety by President Nixon were delivered to the Israeli ambassador in Washington and relayed to Mrs. Meir. Mrs. Meir and cabinet ministers belonging to her political party met Saturday night at her residence here.

Meantime, Israeli warplanes streaked across the Suez Canal Saturday for the 65th consecutive day of bombing Egyptian front-line positions, and Cairo said its planes shot down one Israeli Skyhawk. There was ground fighting on other fronts. There were these other major Mideast developments:

INFORMED SOURCES in Amman said Jordan would probably announce acceptance of the U.S. peace proposals within 24 hours, and sources in Cairo said Syria also has endorsed the move. President Nasser accepted for Egypt on Thursday.

Russ Ahead, Says Rickover in Plea for Arms Spending

Combined News Services

Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover says the Soviet Union could start history's biggest war tomorrow and "I am frankly not confident the outcome of such a war would be in our favor."

Rickover often is called the father of the nuclear submarine and is a long-time champion of an expanded U.S. Navy.

He said also in congressional testimony released Saturday night that the Soviets will surpass the United States in the total number of atomic-powered submarines by the end of the year and may already have done so.

In what he called the "most fateful testimony I have ever given" Rickover scored Congress advocates of reduced defense spending, said America's military posture is seriously deteriorating and declared: "These are cold hard facts yet they are ignored by those who call for what amounts to unilateral disarmament."

Rickover's comments were made in testimony before the House-Senate Committee on Atomic Energy and released with the opening of Senate debate on the $19.2-billion military procurement authorization bill.

That measure contains funds for a number of new weapons systems — including nuclear submarines and other advanced naval vessels.

KNOX AWARD

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, was presented the Gen. Henry Knox award for patriotism Saturday at Thomaston, Maine.

The presentation, in observance of the 220th anniversary of Knox' birth, took place at the restored Knox mansion in this coastal community. Knox was George Washington's chief of artillery in the Continental Army and served as the first secretary of war for the infant United States.

SEN. RUDY

Singer Rudy Vallee, 70, said in Valley Forge, Pa. Saturday he wants to run for the U.S. Senate in California to "clean up the mess in the Pentagon."

Vallee, who has enjoyed long years of success as an entertainer, said an article he read convinced him he should go into politics. The article told about the firing of an aide in the Pentagon "because he exposed the overcosts of airplanes," he said.

Vallee, appearing with Robert Morse in the summer-circuit version of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," said the Pentagon "stinks to high heaven" and "the only thing to do is give it a good house-cleaning."

"The election is a long way off, four years from now," he said. "But, I would like to run for the Senate as a Republican."

Asked if he had contacted Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., to register a complaint about the Pentagon, he said:

"No, but I think I will suggest it to him. You know, George and I were classmates at Yale."

"I don't criticize spending on legitimate, needed hardware, but this waste of taxpayers' money needs a good kick in the pants and the only way to do it is to be a senator."

GOOD STYLE

Britain's Prince Charles joked his way out of an embarrassing predicament at a businessman's dinner where he was guest of honor, at Edinburgh, Scotland.

The invitation said "evening dress," and the businessmen all showed up in stiff shirts, white tie, tails and military decorations. The heir to the throne, however, popped up in a tuxedo, black tie, ordinary white shirt, and a bare lapel.

Several embarrassed moments of silence passed before Charles smiled at his hosts and said "I don't know what you are all doing dressed as butlers."

DISCHARGED

Gen. Gustavo Rojas Pinilla, who claims he is Colombia's rightfully elected president, left Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital Saturday and his doctor said he was improved.

He had been hospitalized since July 11.

"He's better than he was," said Dr. Stephen Mallon. "That is all I can say. The family won't allow me to release any information."

Members of the family said earlier this week that Rojas Pinilla entered the hospital for a medical checkup. They said the 70-year-old retired army general who ruled Colombia in 1953-57 would have a rigid diet because of diabetes.

He came to Florida on July 2, charging fraud in the recent Colombian presidential election in which Misal Pastrana was declared winner by a slim margin. A state of siege (modified martial law) has been declared in Colombia to preserve order in the face of threats by Rojas Pinilla supporters. Pastrana is scheduled to be inaugurated Aug. 7.

B-52s Bomb Reds Believed Massing for New Assault

SAIGON (UPI) — American B-52 Stratofortresses bombed Communist forces moving into position Saturday for an assault on a U.S. artillery base 16 miles from the Ripcord outpost that was abandoned two days ago.

U.S. military command spokesmen said the air strike was flown about four miles west of the 101st Airborne Division's artillery base Veghel in South Vietnam's northern quarter.

The base, named for a Dutch town where the division fought in World War II, is located about 30 miles west of the former royal capital of Hue and is southeast of the former base Ripcord. The division's 3rd Brigade abandoned Ripcord Thursday after a 23-day siege in which 61 Americans were killed and 345 wounded.

The Communists apparently have designated Veghel as the next objective in the jungled area between Hue and the Laotian border, a key region for infiltration, spokesmen said. The Communist buildup was noted particularly in the area just west of Veghel between the base and the A Shau Valley.

Top Critic to Accept FTC Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Monday plans to announce that Miles W. Kirkpatrick, a prominent critic of the Federal Trade Commission, has accepted the FTC chairmanship, congressional sources said Saturday.

Kirkpatrick, a prominent Philadelphia attorney, would succeed Casper W. Weinberger, FTC chairman since January. Nixon has promoted Weinberger to a new job as deputy director of the office of management and budget.

KIRKPATRICK headed an American Bar Association commission that studied the FTC's operation at Nixon's request last year. The commission's report, given to Nixon last September, recommended sweeping reforms, and said FTC was doing so poorly that it should be abolished if the reforms could not be accomplished.

Weinberger, former California state finance director under Gov. Ronald Reagan, has been credited by Democratic and Republican consumer advocates with instituting many of the recommended reforms. He also has fired, demoted or forced the retirement of a number of FTC staff employees rated incompetent by the agency's critics.

The sources said Kirkpatrick first refused the appointment as Weinberger's successor, but agreed to take the chairmanship after repeated White House entreaties.

IN OTHER areas of Indochina, spokesmen reported a major battle in Laos in which a Laotian battalion commander was killed and the loss of four helicopters in which two Americans were killed and two wounded.

In Phnom Penh, a government source reported a shooting incident between a unit of South Vietnamese troops and Cambodian mercenaries attached to the government army.

The shooting occurred Thursday, the source said, in the village of Prey Romiet, 24 miles from the South Vietnamese border near the town of Takeo. The source, quoting witnesses, said members of the Khmer Kampuchea Khrum, attached to the Cambodian army, challenged a group of South Vietnamese soldiers, forcibly taking two girls from the village.

TWELVE South Vietnamese were killed or wounded in the ensuing battle, the source said, and one Cambodian mercenary was killed.

In Vientiane, a military spokesman said two battalions of government troops and three battalions of North Vietnamese and Communist Pathet Lao guerrillas had battled from Wednesday through Friday night near Ban Nongboua in South-Central Laos.

The spokesman said a Laotian army battalion commander, identified only as Col. Chanthara, was killed, but he declined to disclose total government casualties. He said at least 100 Communists were killed.

Government sources said Laotian casualties in the battle were high and that the Communists had turned back the government offensive, launched to thwart Communist efforts to consolidate positions in the area.

STILL WILL KEEP CHASING EX-BOY FRIEND

Jail Bars Won't Stop Her Love

READING, England (AP) — A lovesick girl was jailed Saturday for refusing to stop chasing the boy she wants to marry.

Irene Avery, 20, was led off to prison shouting: "I have to see him again and I will. Wait and see!"

Miss Avery, a maid at the Royal Berkshire Hospital, was jailed for 28 days by local magistrates because she refused to agree to stop "continually pestering" 18-year-old Paul Taylor.

The court was told Irene repeatedly visited Taylor's home, calling "I want Paul," after he broke off their four-month romance. "She kept calling at the front gate and stood on the front lawn of the house," a police officer testified. "She refused to leave and finally the police were called and she was taken away by policemen."

"She was allowed to go but she persisted in pestering Mr. Taylor and followed him to work at a construction site where he is a dumper driver. This was embarrassing for him."

Irene admitted causing a break of the peace but told the court she would say no more until she saw Taylor. Chairman Leonard Vickers asked her: "Will you agree to behave?"

Irene replied: "I will behave until Paul comes back from a holiday in two weeks time. Then I will go back again to see him."

The chairman then asked her to sign an order promising to "be of good behavior." He added: "Unless you agree to this, you will spend 28 days in prison."

"I don't care," Irene said, refusing to sign the order. She was arrested and taken by policemen to London's Holloway Prison for Women.

A court spokesman said the girl could be released whenever she agrees to sign the order.

Taylor, contacted by newsmen after Irene was jailed, said: "I'm sorry it had to work out like this."

"But Irene was making my life unbearable. She followed me to work and home again each day, and I nearly got the sack because of her."

"We had only known each other four months but she set a date for us to get married in October. I became desperate to end the romance and even told her I had made another girl pregnant."

"But she just said it didn't matter, she would marry me and pay for the maintenance of the baby."

Nov. 3 Ballot May Include $672 Million Bond Issues

Bond issues for flood control projects and Los Angeles County buildings, totaling $672 million, will be proposed Tuesday to the Board of Supervisors for inclusion among propositions on the Nov. 3 ballot.

Two of the issues, $224,048,000 for health and hospital facilities and $196,062,000 for law enforcement and justice facilities, will be submitted to the board by L. S. Hollinger, chief administrative officer for the county.

A third issue of $252 million also will be proposed for construction of 500 flood control projects during the next eight years by A. E. Bruington, chief engineer for the County Flood Control District.

In part, Hollinger's hospital bond would provide for expansion of Harbor General, Rancho Los Amigos and Martin Luther King hospitals and for extensive renovation of County-USC medical center.

The building of comprehensive health centers for the Slauson Avenue-Main Street, Harbor and East Los Angeles areas and replacement of John Wesley County Hospital also are provided for by the measure.

Priority items on the law enforcement proposal include construction of a 5,000-man jail for prisoners awaiting sentence, expansion of the Sybil Brand Institute for Women and remodeling of the Hall of Justice.

The measure calls for construction of a new sheriff's administration building, as well as new sheriff stations in the Carson-Dominguez and Montrose areas.

The Los Padrinos Juvenile Hall in Downey and the San Fernando Juvenile Hall will undergo expansion under the issue, and a similar facility will be built in the South Bay area.

Funds in the bond issue would also cover: replacement of MacLaren Hall, a Kersey Boys' probation camp, a new Crenshaw probation office, a new courthouse in El Monte, and additions to the East Los Angeles, Santa Anita, West Los Angeles, Santa Monica and Antelope Valley courthouses.

According to Bruington, the flood control package is needed to solve deficiencies which will exist after completion of all construction from a 1958 bond issue of $225 million and a 1964 issue of bonds totaling $265 million.

Bruington said that while an estimated 1,500 projects will be necessary to correct expected problems, only the 500 most urgently needed are included in the proposal for the ballot on Nov. 3.

Most of the projects named in the proposal involve construction of storm drains to alleviate flooding which has "disrupted traffic, damaged homes and businesses and hampered access to schools and other public and private facilities," said Bruington.

Most installations will be underground, he added, with only a few facilities erected above surface.

County residents could be assured, he said, that such items as pumping plants, debris facilities or surface channels would be "aesthetically fitted to or consistent with the standard of the community."

Projects also will be landscaped where needed, Bruington indicated.

Congress Favoring Crime Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again a Senate vote has demonstrated the power of the law-and-order issue and indicated that major portions of President Nixon's antirime program may yet be passed before Congress members face the voters in November.

A crime control bill for the District of Columbia, passed by the Senate 84 to 33 Thursday and previously by the House 332 to 64, is the first of Nixon's proposals to clear Congress.

Its provisions for preventive detention, no-knock police searches and mandatory minimum sentences came under heavy attack on constitutional grounds, the same issue that has slowed action on other parts of the Administration package.

In essence, the debate centered around balancing the rights of society and the rights of defendants, a problem that plagues both Congress and the courts in dealing with crime.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., a strict constitutionalist, led the fight against the District of Columbia bill but he was up against Senate leaders of both parties as well as the Administration.

AND OF 28 senators running for re-election this year who voted on the bill, only eight voted against it. Among this group who voted for the bill were eight Democrats usually classed as liberals.

One was Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., who was floor manager for the bill. He maintained that much of the opposition was based on misinformation and misstatements.

Referring to no-knock entries and pretrial detention, Tydings said that two of the chief critics of these proposals, Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., "represent states where both these practices are sanctioned by their own state's laws."

Muskie and Goodell were among the senators up for re-election this year who voted against passage.

Ervin appealed to his colleagues not to yield to "the siren voice of that old devil political expediency" and vote for the bill on grounds it would enhance law and order. He contended the bill is "honey-combed with unwise, unjust and unconstitutional provisions."

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said the bill "says to the criminal in terms that are clear and simple that this nation and this city have committed themselves to an all-out fight against crime in any shape or form."

Mansfield noted the Senate now has passed all but one of Nixon's major crime proposals.

HE SAID the exception is a measure that would extend the preventive detention procedure to all federal courts—not just to the District of Columbia. The nationwide measure is bottled up in Ervin's subcommittee on constitutional rights.

Tampering Discovery Grounds 3 Helicopters

By RUSS MacDONALD
Staff Writer

At 8:30 Saturday night, the Lakewood Sheriff's helicopter, Skyknight, landed at Southland Helicopter Service, near the Long Beach Airport, for refueling.

Its pilot, Dep. Cedric Schreiber, and observer, Dep. Leo Weitzel, stretched their legs for about 10 minutes before returning to the craft to resume their night patrol. They found the helicopter's fire extinguisher had been taken.

Quickly, they took the craft up and began a search of the immediate area, knowing the thieves must still be close by.

About 8:50, the deputies spotted a trio of males, apparently juveniles, discharging fire extinguishers against the wall of a nearby hotel.

SKYKNIGHT swooped down, the deputies arrested the youths—aged 13, 13 and 15—and called the Long Beach Police Department for assistance.

After Officers Gary Denham and Rod Carpenter took the teen-agers into custody, along with three fire extinguishers as evidence, the deputies returned to Southland Helicopter Service.

It was only then they discovered several wires had been ripped out from their helicopter's control panel—luckily, not vital ones.

They also discovered a fire extinguisher was missing from the Anaheim Police helicopter, also serviced at Southland. And that another fire extinguisher was missing from one of Southland's own helicopters.

All three helicopters were grounded immediately for inspection and repairs. The three youths were still "talking to" Long Beach juvenile officers at 11:30 p.m.

Heath's Campaign Manager Named to Head Treasury

By BERNARD WEINRAUB
New York Times Service

LONDON — Prime Minister Edward Heath Saturday appointed Anthony Barber chancellor of the exchequer. Barber, who has served as Britain's chief negotiator with the Common Market, replaces Ian MacLeod, who died of a heart attack Monday.

It is widely acknowledged that the chancellor occupies the most powerful position in the government next to the prime minister.

He has almost complete freedom to impose the taxes and regulations necessary for the government's economic objectives.

AS CHANCELLOR, the trim, dapper Barber will move from his home in the Knightsbridge section of London to an official residence at 11 Downing Street, adjacent to the prime minister, with a connecting inside door.

"This is for me a great challenge and an opportunity which I readily accept because the fact is that almost everything we want to achieve as a nation is dependent on getting our economy and our taxation on to a sound footing," said Barber, a 49-year-old Yorkshireman who flew RAF Spitfires during World War II and earned a law degree, under International Red Cross auspices, in a German prison camp.

Barber has only barely been tested in a major cabinet post as Britain's Common Market negotiator. He served as Conservative Party chairman during the triumphal campaign of Heath, a close personal friend.

Barber's relative inexperience—and the indications that Heath has decided to keep an extremely close watch on treasury affairs during the next year—stirred some criticism.

"IT WILL be argued that the prime minister will be taking on too much if he tries to combine running the government with the onerous tasks of closely overseeing not only the treasury but also the Common Market negotiation," the Financial Times said Saturday.

The Manchester Guardian wrote: "What inspires confidence is a chancellor who has a clear grasp of the problems we face, and a declared strategy for tackling them . . . (Barber) is not known for any broad economic philosophy, and even if he has been harboring a strategy in secret, it is hard to be convinced that he has the weight or the intellectual tenacity to carry it with the treasury.

"It is no comfort to be told that he will be working in amiable harness with Mr. Heath: It is simply not possible for a modern prime minister to be his own chancellor."

AS THE chancellor, Barber will seek to fulfill the Conservative Party's major election promises: of tax reductions, cuts in government spending, faster economic growth and

Welfare Reform Probable

New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Sen. Russell Long, the powerful chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has decided to attach President Nixon's welfare reform plan — probably in a somewhat revised form — to the pending omnibus Social Security bill.

The decision, reached this week as the committee resumed stormy hearings on the welfare program, is expected to increase the likelihood of its passage and the speed with which it can become law.

If Long is able to overcome committee opposition to joining the two related bills, the combined package would almost certainly pass both the committee and the full Senate, although, of course, subject to amendment along the way.

THE SOCIAL Security bill provides for a 5 per cent increase in benefits and an escalator clause to keep them automatically aligned with the consumer price index. In an election year, very few members of Congress are likely to vote against this kind of assistance to the nation's older citizens.

Merging the welfare and Social Security measures will also increase the prospect that the Senate will act on welfare reform before the election. Leaders of both parties now expect that Congress will recess about Oct. 15 for a campaign break and then return in November to close out the session.

Social Security is ahead of welfare on the Finance Committee agenda and will thus presumably reach the floor first. Administration officials are not sure that the welfare program can get to the floor by mid-October unless it is hooked onto the Social Security bill.

Tom Jones Turned 'Em On 'Just Prancing, Purring'

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Tom Jones twisted and purred before a packed house Saturday night at the Hotel Fontainebleau. His coat was a shiny white and black, his eyes flashing green.

This cat was obviously a sex symbol. His audience roared approval although Tom didn't sing a note. Just a slow prance across the stage was enough to turn them on.

A St. Paul, Minn., teenager led Tom around, Lori Clepper, 14, smiled every step of the way. To her, there's nothing in the world to match Tom Jones.

As a matter of fact, Tom won the overall competition. Among his prizes is an oil painting of himself.

One thing: This Tom Jones is a common housecat, not the Welshman who sings for his living. Miss Clepper is his owner. Tom outdid seven other finalists for the title of Glamour Kitty 1970, sponsored nationally by a cat litter company.

ANTHONY BARBER

curtailment of wage-price inflation.

Barber also must cope with wage inflation and a balance of payments position far less favorable than it was six months ago. Many observers believe the chancellor will bear the brunt of government responsibility for the next several years.

The new appointment, after the queen's approval, is expected to result in a reshuffling now of Heath's cabinet, only a month old. Heath has not yet made up his mind about Barber's replacement as negotiator for Britain's entry into the Common Market, a cabinet post with the title of Duchy of Lanchester.

Economist Chosen as Italian Leader

ROME (UPI) — Emilio Colombo, a chief architect of the Italian economic "miracle," agreed Saturday to try to form a new government that would end a 20-day-old national crisis.

The 50-year-old Christian Democrat and six-time treasury minister made his decision during a brief meeting with President Giuseppe Saragat, who only two hours earlier completed a one-day round of political consultations.

Although he has long been a national political power, this was the first time Colombo had been asked to form a government and lead it as premier.

Saragat summoned Colombo to the Quirinale presidential palace to ask him to make another effort at reviving the coalition of Christian Democrats, Socialists, Unitarian Socialists and Republicans that have ruled for seven years.

Success would mean formation of the 32nd government since the fall of Fascism in 1943. Failure could mean a presidential decision to call new national elections three years ahead of schedule.

Saragat's announcement

EMILIO COLOMBO

followed a day of consultations with representatives of the 10 parties represented in parliament.

Italy was thrown into its latest political crisis 20 days ago by the unexpected resignation of Premier Mariano Rumor. Rumor, like Colombo, a member of the dominant Christian Democratic party, said it was obvious members of his four-party center-left coalition government could not work together well enough to deal with the country's problems.

Georgian Charged for Shooting Six

ATLANTA (AP) — "I saw people groaning and falling. The shots went bang-bang and people were on the concrete . . . I was afraid he was going to shoot me next."

Then, said Mrs. Hardy Cowen of Tucker, Ga., the man who shot six persons in the driveway of a downtown parking garage about midnight Friday fled past dozens of passersby who had scrambled for cover.

None of the six was critically injured. One man was grazed on the head; the others were shot in the hands and arms.

About 20 minutes after the shooting, police arrested Harry Mitchell Camp, 29, of suburban Riverdale and charged him with six counts of aggravated assault and carrying a pistol without a license.

Brandt Defends German-Russ Pact

BONN (UPI) — Negotiation of a nonaggression pact with Moscow does not mean West Germany is trying to play the United States off against Russia, Chancellor Willy Brandt said Saturday.

"We are not wanderers between the worlds," Brandt said in an interview on the eve of Foreign Minister Walter Scheel's departure for the Moscow negotiations.

Brandt said West German membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and other western alliances is essential to successful negotiation with the Communists.

"An effective western alliance, an effective Atlantic alliance and a western European community with an inner substance that is in a process of expansion is an indispensable precondition for our efforts at removing tensions," Brandt told South German radio.

Foreign Minister Scheel spent his last day in Bonn conferring with the 33 members of the executive committee of his Free Democratic party.

Scheel's party shared Brandt's insistence on Russia agreeing to an improvement in Berlin's situation as a condition for West German ratification of a nonaggression treaty with Moscow.

"A treaty renouncing the use of force would have no political basis if West Berlin remained in a condition of insecurity, unrest and unilaterally threatened," the Free Democrats said.

RUMMAGE

CALM

HONG-KONG (AP) — Fisherwoman Lo Cheung-Tai didn't panic when his young son took a tin can to a shop for a few cents refund, even though the can contained the family's life savings of $2,350. He went to the shop, rummaged through a pile of discarded cans, and recovered the money.

UNTRAP

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The 19-year-old soldier who was arrested for warning motorists of a speed trap won't be prosecuted.

The state attorney's office said Wednesday it believed the Florida Highway Patrol's charge of "resisting arrest without violence" was not broad enough to cover the action of David Lee Kersch, of Jacksonville Beach.

After being arrested for speeding July 4, Kersch doubled back behind the arrest zone and held up a sign warning motorists, "Speed trap ahead."

Officers investigated when all cars suddenly started operating within the speed limit. They arrested Kersch.

RIPE

KARIBA, Rhodesia (AP) — It's marula berry time in northern Rhodesia and motorists have been warned to watch out for drunken elephants. Game wardens say the pachyderms eat their fill of the ripe berries that then ferment, turning the jumbos into staggering nuisances.

SCOUTS

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — The mimeographed calendar of Gov. Dan Evans' activities next week was mailed out Friday and contained this entry:

"Tuesday, July 28 — 9:30: Three plagues to Seattle Explorer Scouts."

Asked about it, a spokesman in the governor's office explained:

"No, no — that's supposed to be plagues, not plaques. The governor really likes Explorer Scouts."

LIFTED

HALIFAX, England (UPI) — A Halifax weightlifting club has had to close because a strong arm gang has "lifted" all 3,000 pounds of its equipment.

LOSS

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Sheriff Gil Wright has written off a 16-cent expense item incurred in the line of duty.

As part of a sobriety check on a woman driver, he dropped a dime, nickel and penny on the pavement to check her ability to pick them up.

She passed that portion of the test, and slipped the three coins down her blouse.

"The 16 cents was never returned to me by the suspect," Wright wrote in his report of the incident.

GOLF POT

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Four marijuana plants ranging in height from seven to nine feet were discovered Wednesday on the Ohio University golf course Wednesday.

Authorities didn't know if the marijuana was planted or grew wild. But Sheriff Harold Shields said the pot was "the finest I've seen in 22 years of police work."

PRAYERS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Waterfront commission agents say they woke up pier guard John Daly when they took his picture. Daly claims they interrupted his prayers.

Daly, 57, of Brooklyn, was one of three guards a waterfront commission team of agents said they caught asleep on the job Thursday morning and photographed him to prove it.

Daly said he was saying his morning prayers when the agents burst in on him. The three were handed notices to appear at a waterfront commission hearing where they face penalties ranging from fines to suspension of their registrations.

Censored Report Calls Safeguard Phase Adequate

BY FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A security-censored report on the Safeguard antimissile system says the full Phase II program would provide protection against a limited Red Chinese missile attack and some defense of U.S. Minuteman missiles from a Russian blow.

"It provides thin area coverage and some defense of Minuteman," said the report by seven civilian scientists to Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

The January report, secret until now, was the center of a dispute before the Senate disarmament subcommittee last month.

Dr. John S. Foster, the Pentagon's research and engineering director, told the subcommittee the report said equipment proposed for the Safeguard system "will do the job the Department of Defense wants to do."

TWO MEMBERS of the panel—Prof. Sidney D. Drell, of the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, and Physics Prof. Marvin L. Goldberger, of Princeton—disputed Foster.

They testified the report's conclusions were misstated.

The 14-page report resulted from a study requested by Foster who, Pentagon officials said, wanted expert technical opinion on the Safeguard before President Nixon made a decision to go ahead with a second phase of the project.

The document notes: "Although members of the group hold a range of views concerning the desirability of a BMD (ballistic missile defense) deployment and concerning the interactions between a deployment and diplomatic, strategic and political factors, it was not asked for and did not offer advice based on assessment of such things."

THE CENSORED version of the report contained no explicit criticism of any of the Safeguard's components. Defense officials said no criticisms were contained in the sections kept from public view.

The group did say it believes a more cost-effective system can be devised for terminal defense of the Minuteman and urged an approach featuring smaller, less costly and "less technically formidable" radars.

The panel said "it is necessary to proceed vigorously" with developing better components for the system, which defense authorities say they are doing.

The advisory committee seemed to imply that there aren't enough short-range Sprint missiles cranked into the first phase of Safeguard, which was limited to protecting two Minuteman ICBM bases in Montana and North Dakota. Pentagon officials noted this year's Safeguard proposals put more Sprints at these sites.

THE REPORT, signifying it was approved by all members, was dated Jan. 27. Nearly a month later, on Feb. 24, the Nixon Administration came up with its modified Phase II program.

Facts You Should Know About Jade

One of the most precious and fascinating of all gems is JADE. It is called YU in Chinese, which means precious, prized, and preserver. This ancient meaning is derived from the fact that not only is Jade highly valuable, but it is also an exceedingly tough, durable and hard stone. It keeps its high polish and brilliancy for ages due to its compact hardness.

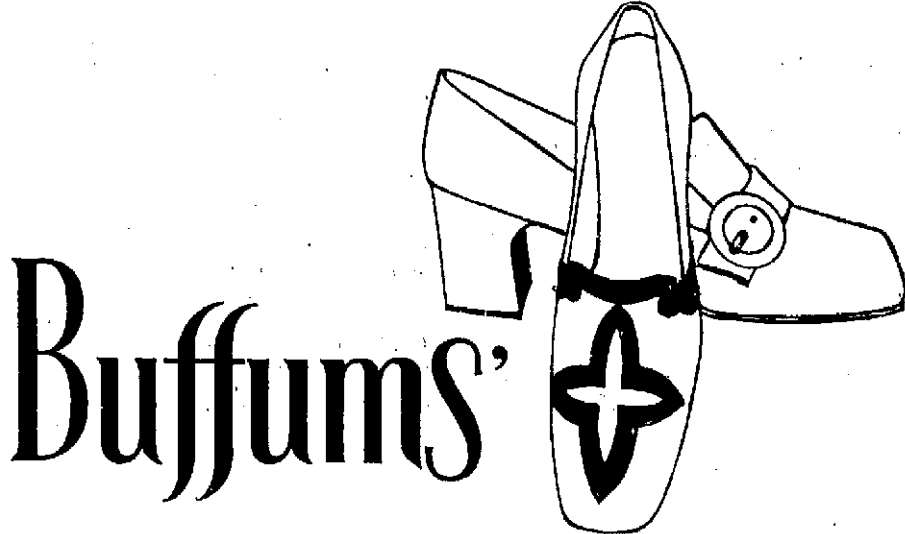

Jade comes in all colors — lavender, black, red, white, brown and the popular green. Each color of jade has its own tradition: White Jade bestows upon the wearer or owner reproductivity; Red Jade was an ancient remedy for any blood ailment; and Green Jade will keep one eternally young. Whoever wears jade will protect his or her body from decay, can easily make friends, create an atmosphere of peace and a gift of jade is a pledge of enduring friendship.

Jadeite is the best and most costly form of Jade. When the color is green, it is the most sought after. There is a common misunderstanding as to Jade. There is NO GREEN JADE MINED IN CHINA. THE ONLY TRULY CHINESE JADE IS WHITE JADE!! Only recently, in the 18th Century, was Green Jade discovered, in Burma.

Thus, Green Jade is really Burmese Jade. It is cut and polished in China or Hong Kong by Chinese craftsmen. Our government will not allow any Jade into this country that is cut or mined in China. Therefore, for the United States citizen, the only source of Jade is Jade mined in Burma and cut in Hong Kong!

There was no immediate

Methadone Gains for Treatment of Heroin Addiction

By ROBERT REINHOLD
New York Times Service

BOSTON — The "methadone maintenance" treatment for heroin addiction — developed amid much medical and political controversy in New York City — appears to be gaining a strong foothold in dozens of cities throughout the country.

More than 60 local methadone centers have filed applications with the federal government to use methadone, a cheap synthetic narcotic that eliminates the physical craving for heroin without inducing euphoria. Its use for long-term maintenance of addicts is still considered experimental.

MANY OF the centers, public and private, have chosen the methadone method hurriedly in the last several months amid rising public alarm over addiction and crime and recent independent study confirming the dramatic successes attributed by the New York program in keeping addicts off drugs and out of jail.

At the same time, there are indications of growing abuse of the drug. Strict guidelines on its use were recently put into effect by the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs and the Food and Drug Administration.

These guidelines require that methadone, which is as addictive as heroin, be given only under conditions of close medical supervision and scientific evaluation. This makes it difficult to obtain the drug through private physicians, thought to be the chief cause of illicit use.

NEVERTHELESS, the federal government, recognizing the promise of the treatment, now supports 16 community treatment centers through the national institute of mental health. Another six will be opened this year. But the agency is moving cautiously because the long-term impact of methadone on behavior and the system is not fully understood.

"We can create as big a problem as we solve," said Robert Carrick, deputy chief of the narcotics addition rehabilitation branch at the Mental Health Agency. "We also need careful evaluation. We don't want to add to methadone a kid who has shot heroin once."

Interviews with government officials, the police, medical men and addicts from coast to coast produced no consistent picture. While most of the centers appear to be achieving local acceptance, proponents and critics of the method abound in all camps. Some police-

New Health Benefits in Canneries

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California canning industry, which just averted a crippling strike, has agreed to pay up to $1 million to provide complete health checkups and follow-up treatment for 50,000 workers.

Since 1967, the employees have received free comprehensive health checkups through a collective bargaining agreement between the Teamster Cannery Council and California Processors, Inc., representing the employers.

Canning companies have paid one cent per hour for each employee, or about $350,000 a year since the initial agreement. Under the new contract, negotiated recently in Palo Alto only hours before a threatened walkout, the companies agreed to increase this to 2½ cents an hour for an estimated $1 million a year.

Finar O. Mohn, director of the Western Conference of Teamsters, said the new contract will make possible a more complete follow-up program.

NYC Teeters on Power Brownout

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City's troubled power generating system, further taxed by a heat wave, moves toward a test this week of whether it can supply the needs of more than 10 million people in the area.

Officials of the Consolidated Edison Co., which supplies power to the city and neighboring Westchester County, warned that with two of its major generators out for the remainder of the summer and the current hot, humid weather expected to continue, "Wednesday will be a true test day."

The peak demand of the summer so far was reached Friday afternoon, the first day of the heat spell. Even after borrowing 1.2 million kilowatts from neighboring utilities, Con Ed came within 1.2 per cent of reaching its total capacity.

THE IMMEDIATE cause of the trouble was the breakdown of the company's largest generator, located at its Ravenswood plant, last Tuesday and the earlier breakdown of a nuclear generator at Indian Hill. Neither will be back in operation this summer.

The critical situation lessened during the week-end because of offices and businesses being closed and the thousands of residents who fled the city for the beaches and mountains, but come Monday peak demands may again be reached.

Con Ed officials said that after three days of such demands on the system, its capacity could be reached and it may have to reduce power in some areas, first in outlying residential areas. The alternatives are blackouts or "brownouts."

Last summer, Con Ed had to appeal to consumers to cut back on their use of electricity to avoid blackouts.

Con Ed plans to buy power from other utilities and the Atomic Energy Commission made plans to halt production of uranium fuel at three of its plants and move the power to the city via transmission lines.

Action Due on Congress Reform Bill

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The first congressional reform bill in 20 years comes up for a decisive action in the House this week with its sponsors warning bluntly that any further delays may kill the legislation entirely.

While support has been growing in the House for an amendment to the bill that would end the prevalent practice of "secret voting" on key amendments, the legislative reorganization measure itself has been caught in a "time squeeze" that has left the fate of the legislation in doubt.

"UNLESS we are able to conclude debate and come to a final vote by Tuesday night, I believe the bill is in serious jeopardy," said Rep. B. F. Fisk, D-Calif., the floor manager of the legislation. "Frankly, I'm not too optimistic."

The chief Republican co-sponsor of the measure, Rep. H. Allen Smith, R-Calif., agreed with Fisk that the House would not return to the bill before its August recess unless it reaches a decision by Tuesday.

"But we're going to be here a long time this year," Smith added. "Probably long enough to cook a turkey for Thanksgiving and decorate a Christmas tree."

The reorganization bill itself is considered something of a "turkey" by some members of the House leadership, particularly if the measure is strengthened with provisions requiring record voting and open committee meetings.

After reformers won a test vote two weeks ago to improve staffing for the minority party, the leadership showed a marked reluctance to bring the measure up for extended debate.

THE MAIN amendment desired by bipartisan coalition of reformers is a proposal by Rep. Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., and Charles S. Gubser, R-Calif., that would require a record vote on amendments when the House convenes as a committee of the whole.

Most of the House's most significant decisions, votes on such issues as the antiballistic missile and the supersonic transport, are reached in committee-of-the-whole meetings. Only the total vote is given and individual members are unrecorded.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — An apparent witness to the placing of the bomb that killed the president of Continental Telephone Corp., Saturday told police, he saw a broad-shouldered man over 25 dressed in a business suit sitting in the 1966 Fleetwood Cadillac 30 minutes before it exploded.

Philip J. Lucier, 49, was killed when a bomb wired to the ignition of his car exploded as he started the auto.

The headquarters of Continental—the third largest telephone utility in the nation—are only a few blocks from the scene of the bombing.

THE COMPANY announced that a $25,000 reward was being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the killing.

The witness, who asked that his name not be used, told police he was looking for a parking place on the lot where Lucier's car was parked when he saw the man.

"I came about two car lengths behind the Cadillac," the man said. "I saw a man in the driver's seat. The door of the car was open slightly and the man's foot was outside. I thought he was going to leave.

"After a few minutes I guessed the man was waiting for someone. Then he looked back for a glance, pulled his foot inside, shut the door and sat there."

THE EXPLOSION occurred as Lucier and two vice presidents of the firm, James L. Robb and James V. Napier, both of the St. Louis area, were returning from lunch at the St. Louis Club in the Pierre Laclede building in suburban Clayton.

Neither Napier nor Robb was injured. Lucier died instantly.

The witness said he was unsure if he could positively identify the man. He described him as more than 25 years old, under 50, broad-shouldered, in a dark business suit, sandy or brownish hair with a standard cut.

Lawrence "Pun" Plamondon is manacled as he arrives at the U.S. Federal Building in Detroit for arraignment on charges of bombing a Central Intelligence Agency office in Ann Arbor, Mich., in 1968. Plamondon was captured near St. Ignace in northern Michigan last Thursday by State Police who stopped the van in which he was riding for littering.

DETROIT (UPI) — Hands and feet manacled and heavily guarded, White Panther party leader Lawrence "Pun" Plamondon arrived in Detroit Saturday. He immediately was arraigned on charges of dynamiting a Central Intelligence Agency building.

PLAMONDON'S wife, Genie, visited him immediately after the arraignment. Dressed in a strapless purple blouse and blue jeans, she called the bail "ransom . . . and we'll get him out."

A Traverse City, Minn., native, Plamondon moved

Plamondon, 25, one of the FBI's 10-most-wanted criminals until his capture in Michigan's upper peninsula two days ago, stood mute and a plea of not guilty was entered for him. Bail, at the request of U.S. Attorney James Brickley, was set at $100,000.

Soft-spoken and cheerful, Planondon joked with newsmen on his way to the court of U.S. District Court Judge Lawrence Gubow. "I'm going to jail, there's nothing I can do about it," he said.

Plamondon, who is minister of defense for the White Panthers, publicly described as a hippie group which supports the Black Panther party and advocates revolution in the U.S., described his arrest as a "lack of revolutionary discipline."

SALT LAKE CITY
(UPI) — A homemade bomb with the power of six hand grenades demolished the patrol car of a deputy sheriff Saturday.

Another device, also described as "built by an expert," was found undetonated near the deputy's nearly private automobile.

Cap. N. D. "Pete" Hayward, chief of detectives for the Salt Lake County Sheriff's office, linked the bombs to his recent investigation into burglary and robbery rings.

The explosion occurred at 2:20 a.m. while Hayward and his family were at home. No one was hurt.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jane Spielman, who authorities believe could tell the story of the mysterious explosion in a Greenwich Village townhouse that led to a full scale federal investigation into the Weathermen radical, surrendered Saturday to face bombing conspiracy charges.

Miss Spielman, 23, was the fifth of 13 alleged Weathermen named in an indictment handed up Thursday by a federal grand jury in Detroit to be placed in federal custody. A nationwide search is under way for the other eight.

Maoists Harass France

PARIS (UPI) — Although wooing Communist China on the diplomatic front, France cracked down Saturday on gangs of young Maoists painting revolutionary slogans and warnings that "Mao is watching you" across the country.

Interior Minister Raymond Marcellin issued orders to national police to tighten security precautions and stop the devotees of Chinese Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung in their campaign to organize a "hot summer" for France's wealthy.

Andre Bettencourt, minister for planning and regional reform, said he raised the question of lawless Maoist activities in France during his recent two-week official visit in Peking.

Bettencourt told Radio Luxembourg Friday that Premier Chou En-lai told him communist China and its leaders are unable to control Frenchmen who claim to be guided by the words and spirit of Mao.

MAOIST GROUPS have been declared illegal and banned in France.

Thousands of policemen in France's summer resorts have been busy for weeks tracking down elusive gangs of self-styled Maoists who have been daubing the hammer and sickle and slogans such as "no vacations for the rich" and "Mao is watching you," on automobiles, pleasure boats, villas and sidewalks.

In Deauville, the luxury English Channel resort, and elsewhere, Maoists have set fire to expensive sports cars.

Police reinforcements have been sent to Cap Ferret, on the Atlantic coast near Bordeaux, where dozens of cabin cruisers and sailboats have been found smeared with a thick coating of red paint.

Hunt 'Most Dangerous Criminal'

BRISTOL, Va. (AP) — An escaped convict, described by police as "potentially the most dangerous criminal in America today," has been charged with the armed robbery of a local food market which netted $287.

Detective Lt. Robert McNutt said Saturday the bandit who robbed the B&B Market here Monday night has been identified as Melvin Luther Cox, who is sought in four states on three charges of murder and two counts of bank robbery.

McNutt said Cox has been charged with the murder of bartender Clark Arasmith in Portland, Ore., May 28; the murder of police officer Ralph T. Russell in Lewiston, Idaho, June 15; and the strangulation murder of Albert Harry Storey in a cabin near Malott, Wash., July 12.

COX ALSO is charged, McNutt said, with two recent robberies of the Farmers and Merchants Bank in Limestone, Tenn. — a May 5 holdup in which $6,000 was taken and a July 16 holdup in which $5,000 was taken.

Police said Cox escaped from the Greene County, Tenn., jail in April by sawing through the bars of his cell window and lowering himself with a rope made of blankets. Cox had been jailed in Greene County while awaiting trial on charges of armed robbery.

Stock Car Slices Through Spectators, Kills Woman

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Spectators described Saturday how a stock car left a race track and smashed into a screaming crowd of onlookers, killing one woman and injuring several other persons.

"We saw the car coming and tried to jump back," Mrs. Carlene Kimball, daughter of the woman killed in the accident Friday night at the Black Hills Speedway. "I guess Mom was the first person who got hit."

SHERIFF Glen Best saw the accident from a seat in the stands, on the opposite side of the track. He said he saw the car ride high on the curve.

"I could hear the screaming all the way across the track," Best said. "It seemed like the car crawled up the embankment on the curve and went into the crowd. It was just like someone pushing cord wood with a bulldozer. People were falling over like dominoes."

Larry Tish, 30, Rapid Valley, S.D., driver of the super class stock car powered by a 427 cubic engine, was not injured but was

Pollution Hot Line

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The league of Ohio Sportsmen has instituted an "operation hot line" to battle pollution in the Buckeye State. "Any sightings of discolored water, bad odors around water or dead aquatic life and continuing signs of smoke or fumes in the air, should be reported," said Richard L. Paugh, league officer.

treated for shock following the accident.

"Lord only knows how he went over the bank," said the speedway operator, George Davis Jr. "Usually the cars are stopped because it is a fairly steep bank with some washouts."

AUTHORITIES said the victim, Mrs. Everett La-Croix, 51, Rapid City, may have been struck on the head by a four-inch steel pole that helped support the wire fence around the track.

Seven of the persons injured remained patients at Rapid City's two hospitals late Saturday. Four more were hospitalized at nearby Ellsworth Air Force Base. Authorities said they believed others rushed away in private cars following the accident and sought medical attention.

Longhairs Marching for Peace

PASO ROBLES (AP) — Longhaired youths carrying a flag of nonviolence on a 400-mile jaunt from Santa Barbara to Sacramento said Saturday they were being treated warmly by police.

"It's amazing," said Chris Harris. "We didn't know what to expect. But the Paso Robles police chief signed the flag, urged his officers to sign, and gave us an escort with squad cars as we left."

Police Chief O.B. Davis told newsmen later the banner was presented to him as "opposing violence within this country."

DUBBING their promotion of nonviolence a "run for peace," the 20 long-haired college students are carrying an American flag along with a red, white and blue flag of nonviolence, and are urging citizens en route to sign as a pledge of promoting peace within the nation.

They are jogging through the cities and driving cars on freeways. They started Friday from Santa Barbara and expect to reach Sacramento Monday.

En route they are stopping to talk to local civic groups and police, the latter in an attempt to promote youth-police rapport, Harris said. "We've had to do a lot of explaining," he said.

"But the police have sat down and talked with us. A lot of the kids don't like police. This is making us realize that they're human beings, too."

The reception has not been "unanimous," Harris said a motorcyclist in Gonzales 20 miles south of Salinas, tried to run him off the road, and police were unwilling to talk with the group. "We got out of town fast," he said.

Report Says Pennsy Lost $95 Million in '69

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Penn Central Co. reported a profit of $4.4 million last year while in fact it lost $95 million, Fortune Magazine said Sunday.

In a 9,000-word article based on three months research, Fortune accused Penn Central's management and directors of using a "unique" bookkeeping system in recent years and of paying $100 million in dividends while the company was suffering heavy losses.

In Philadelphia, W. A. Lashley, Penn Central vice president for public relations, said the company had no immediate comment on the article but may comment later.

"Our financial people have not seen the article, and we are not prepared to comment on it," Lashley said.

FORTUNE said that in 1968 Penn Central's bookkeeping converted a real loss of $20 million into a "profit" of $87 million.

Among practices cited by the magazine were carrying reportedly uncollectable bills as normal income, charging normal expenses, such as wages, maintenance and phase out costs to capital accounts instead of operating costs, and selling assets of the bankrupt railroad at inflated prices to the non-railroad subsidiary, the Pennsylvania Co., for cash to bolster the profit and loss account.

Fortune said Penn Central also made loans to affiliated companies, then took the money back in the form of dividends, some of them inflated, which could be credited to the parent company's operating income when, in fact, they were mere return of capital.

This resulted in inflating income by $19 million but, in order to realize this $19, Penn Central had advanced affiliates $17.3 million which was not charged off against revenues, the magazine said.

The surprising thing, Fortune said, is that neither Penn Central's outside directors nor Interstate Commerce Commission accounts realized what was going on until after it was too late to do anything about it.

Wallace May Have to Run as Independent

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Loyalists holding the power on the State Democratic Executive Committee adopted a rules change Saturday, designed to force George C. Wallace to run as an independent in Alabama if he seeks the presidency again.

The change in party rules, adopted by a 69-28 vote, will have nominees for presidential electors named by the state committee from among members pledged to support the presidential nominee of the Democratic National Convention in 1972.

'Blue Flu' Puts Police Off Beat

CHICAGO (AP) — Facing the threat of court action, police on strike in three northern suburbs Saturday were reported ready to go to jail rather than submit to the dictates of "political officials."

John Flood, president of the Cook County Police Association, said striking policemen in Waukegan, Skokie and Wheeling "have respect for the courts, but not for the politicians."

More than 90 per cent of the policemen in the three communities have contracted "blue flu" since Friday night to press demands that the CCPA be recognized as their negotiating agent and that their wages be put on a par with those of the Chicago Police Department.

British Call 'Dock Meeting'

LONDON (UPI) — The British government kept troops out of the country's strikebound ports and held back action to control food prices, Saturday in preparation for new peace moves next week.

Britain's 47,000 longshoremen pushed their strike in support of an 80 per cent wage hike into its 11th day.

Officials said the Cabinet has decided to take no action that would risk extending the walkout until a three-man court of inquiry probing the pay dispute releases its findings. It was expected to do so Monday.

Robert Carr, secretary for employment and productivity in the government, said that as soon as the court's findings are published he will call the two sides to his office for the first negotiations since the strike began July 15.

OFFICIALS said the government has decided it is not worth risking a chance for settlement by using troops or moving to fix prices in the next 72 hours.

But they said if the peace hopes collapse, the country is likely to face a prolonged strike and the government will use its emergency powers. These include the use of troops in the docks and setting controls on food prices, which already have begun to soar.

In a new move to tighten the strike, union leaders at London's Covent Garden central fruit and vegetable market called on workers there to boycott any supplies brought in without approval of strike committees. This would, in fact, mean refusal to handle food unloaded by troops.

Most of the market porters both at Covent Garden and London's Smithfield central meat market belong to the same 1.5 million-man Transport and General Union which represents 85 per cent of the striking longshoremen.

$1,600 Set for Capture of Trawler

FORT BRAGG (UPI) — A grocer and other irate citizens offered a $1,650.50 reward Saturday to anyone capturing a Russian fishing trawler inside the 12-mile limit along the northern California coast.

Jack Azevedo, who hoped his offer might tempt a "soldier of fortune," accused "weak-kneed and cowardly" officials in Washington of allowing repeated violations of territorial waters by a fleet of 17 Soviet trawlers.

But north coast fishermen, whose boats are about 40 feet long, said trying to bring in one of the 300-foot trawlers would be "like a flea trying to arrest an elephant."

And the U.S. Coast Guard warned that only its officers can legally board foreign vessels inside territorial waters during peace time.

The reward, which started at $150, was swelled by donations to $1,650.50 Saturday, including $40 put up by Azevedo.

He said the Soviet fleet was ruining Northern California fishing grounds because their tight-meshed nets don't allow small, young fish to escape.

Rear Adm. Mark A. Whalen, commander of the 12th Coast Guard District, dispatched two officers from San Francisco to explain international law on fishing and warn against piracy on the high seas.

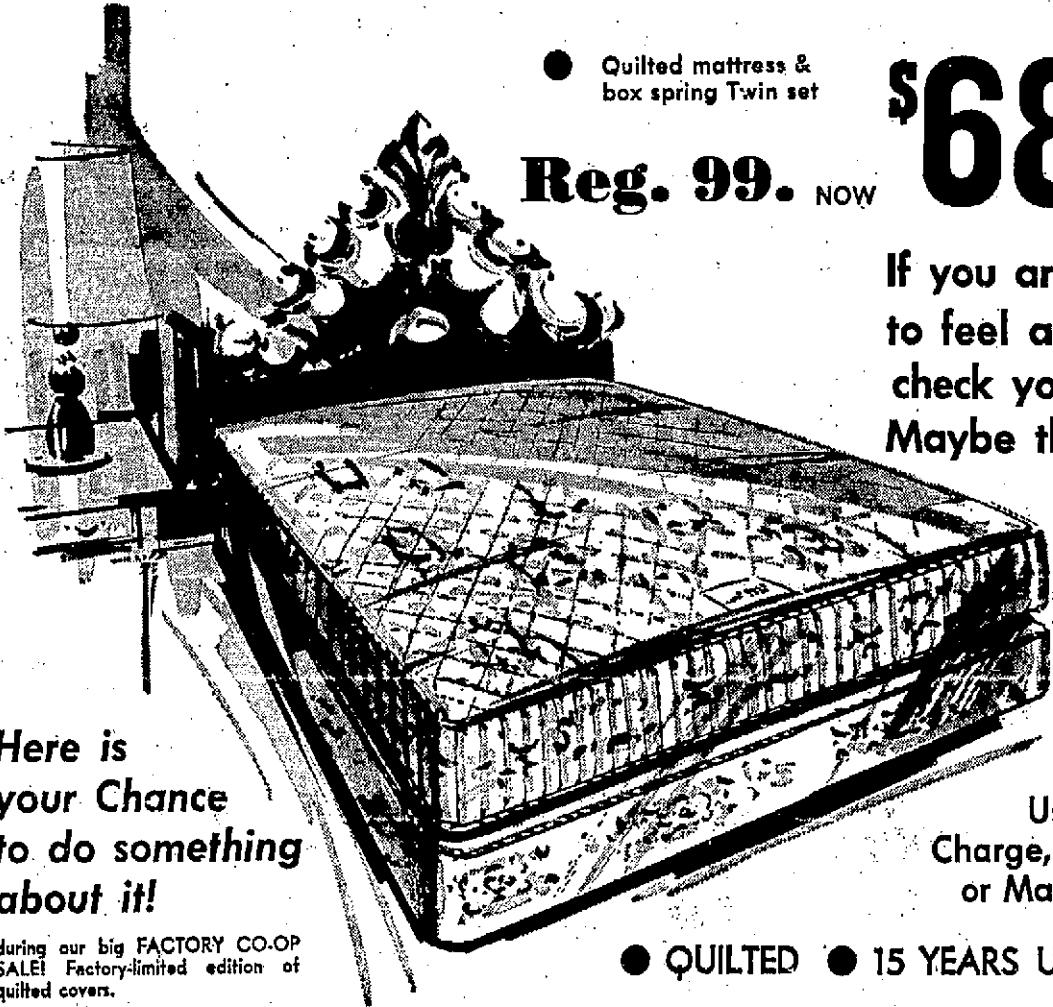

Judge's House Hit

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — An explosion Saturday night blew in the door and front windows of the house of Sir Lancelot Curran, lord chief justice of appeal in the Supreme Court. The judge was on holiday and no one was in the house at the time.

Jimmy Doolittle's Credo: Stay Busy, Be Useful

By JACK V. FOX

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jimmy Doolittle leaned back in his swivel chair and thought for a few seconds about the question.

Does he envy the young Americans who are flying to the moon?

"No, I don't, and I'll tell you why," the tough little general said. "I boxed when I was younger. I enjoyed boxing. As a matter of fact I was featherweight intercollegiate champion when I was at Berkeley.

"That was — no it can't be — that was 48 years ago. That rocks me back on my heels. Now at the age of 73 I have no desire to get into the ring. By the same token I have no desire to go to the moon and for about the same reason."

Of all the lustrous names that came out of World War II — MacArthur, Eisenhower, Halsey, Bradley — none shone more brightly than that of Doolittle. That war ended 25 years ago but the older generation remembers that the first piece of good news in that great struggle was Jimmy Doolittle's raid on Tokyo.

SIXTEEN B25 bombers took off from the deck of the carrier Hornet the morning of April 18, 1942, and struck the war's first blow against Japan proper. Of the 80 men aboard, six were killed and eight taken prisoner. The majority managed to make it safely to bases in China.

Does Doolittle consider that the high point of his career?

"Well, it certainly got the most publicity," the retired lieutenant general replied. "I still see that movie, 'Thirty Seconds over Tokyo," on the late late show on television."

JIMMY DOOLITTLE

Thirty-two of the original 80 still survive and they held a reunion this year — as they have for many years. The latest gathering was in Florida.

"We drink a toast to those who have made the supreme sacrifice," Doolittle said. "There are 80 silver goblets in a case which is kept at the Air Force Academy. Each year they send it to the reunion with a cadet guard and each year we toast those who are gone.

"THEIR GOBLETS are turned upside down. The goblets that are right side up are living members. They also gave us a bottle of old Napoleon brandy. And the last two that survive will open that bottle and make a toast to the 78 who are gone."

Doolittle's grandson, James H. Doolittle III, is now serving as a fighter pilot in Southeast Asia.

What does he think of the younger generation in general?

"Young people live in a very complex society," he said. "I feel they tend to see things either black or white, good or bad, and it is not until they have lived quite a while that they realize there is a great deal of grey between the black and white and the grey is lighter or darker according to your viewpoint.

"They see that our system isn't perfect. But some of them are for destruction instead of construction. I believe in protest but I don't believe in protest that assures the rights of some but in so doing denies the rights of others."

WHAT ABOUT the American presence in Vietnam?

"Well, I question the wisdom of going into Vietnam in the first place. But once we were there our course should have been to achieve prompt and decisive victory. But political decisions prevailed.

"I'm not smart enough to know just what should be done now. I support the President 100 per cent in what he is doing — anything we can do to help the boys who are there and those who have been taken prisoner."

Doolittle is best remembered for the Tokyo raid. It is frequently forgotten that he was one of the ace flyers in the pioneer days of aviation winning the MacKay, Harmon, Bendix and Thompson trophies. He also went on in World War II to command the 12th Air Force in North Africa, the 15th Air Force in Italy and the 8th Air Force both in England and Okinawa.

"SOMEONE asked me the other day if I would like to live my life over," Doolittle said. "I said no I wouldn't. I've had a very interesting life. I've done some colossal stupid things and came out lucky. I could never be that lucky again.

The general is now on the board of the Mutual of Omaha Insurance Company. His office is on the seventh floor of a building in the Wilshire district and he climbs up and down the steps every day to keep trim.

Generals' Risk High in Viet

WASHINGTON (AP) — American generals in Vietnam run a greater risk of being killed on the battlefield than in any previous 20th Century war partly because they often travel to ill-defined battle zones to oversee troop movements.

Seven generals have been killed to date in Vietnam. Three perished when their helicopters or planes crashed after being struck by enemy groundfire. Another was picked off by a Viet Cong sniper.

And an Air Force general died when the B-52 in which he was riding collided with another big bomber during a Vietnam mission.

Veteran officers and military historians, noting the high number of battlefield deaths, cite the ill-defined battle lines of the guerrilla style conflict as part of the reason.

IN WORLD WAR I, World War II and Korea, they said, the action was fought along clearly identified lines. General officers rarely appeared on the front lines, they said, directing the operations from the rear by issuing commands over the telephone and radio.

But in Vietnam, where there is no battle line, a division or brigade commander may find his units widely dispersed and fighting as individual elements.

Thus, the generals often have felt it necessary to fly over the battlefields to monitor and direct the actions of troops under their command. They also have adopted a practice of making flying visits to units in the field.

The helicopter also has come into its own, replacing the horse of the Indian campaigns and the jeep of World War II as the favorite mode of transportation.

THE CHOPPER has proven itself as the most convenient vehicle for moving around the war zones and unit commanders ranging up to generals make frequent use of it.

But the helicopters also pose the additional danger of a fatal crash because of a mechanical malfunction or enemy roundfire.

Maj. Gen. George W. Casey, commander of the 1st Cavalry Division, was the latest victim in a helicopter crash July 7. The U.S. command in Saigon formally declared him dead on Wednesday.

Three other generals died in helicopter crashes before Casey.

They were Marine Maj. Gen. Bruno A. Hochmuth, commanding general of the 3rd Marine Division, killed in a crash Nov. 14, 1967; Maj. Gen. Keith L. Ware, commander of the Army 1st Infantry Division, shot down Sept. 13, 1968, and Maj. Gen. John A. B. Dillard, commander of the engineer command in Vietnam, shot down May 12.

Brig. Gen. William R. Bond, commander of the 199th Infantry Brigade, was killed April 1 by an enemy sniper after he had landed his helicopter in a forward position and was walking toward a unit to discuss a tactical situation.

THE OTHER two general fatalities in Vietnam were Air Force leaders. Maj. Gen. Robert F. Worley, vice commander of the 7th Air Force, was shot down in a reconnaissance plane July 23, 1968.

Maj. Gen. William J. Crumm, commander of the 3rd Air Division, was killed when a B-52 bomber in which he was riding collided with another B-52 en route to a bombing mission in Vietnam July 6, 1967.

In World War I, one general was killed. In Korea, there were three.

World War II, which was a global war of many fronts, took the lives of 20 generals, who were either killed in action or died of wounds, exposure or maltreatment in prisoner of war camps. The Navy lost three admirals.

6th Fleet Keeping Eye on Russ Navy

By CHARLES W. BELL

ON BOARD THE FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, SOMEWHERE IN THE MEDITERRANEAN (UPI) — The heat from the jet exhaust of an F4J Phantom fighter bomber rolled half the length of the aircraft carrier and the vibrations shook coffee cups one deck below.

Suddenly, the plane shot forward, catapulted several hundred feet off the steel-plated deck of the ship they call "Rosie," and climbed into the clear blue sky off the Italian coast.

"It looks like we're playing for keeps," shouted a sailor wearing special earmuffs to protect himself from the roar of noise.

A flight deck officer looked at the sailor. "We are playing for keeps," he shouted back.

They were almost the same words used earlier by Rear Adm. Lester E. Hubbell of Hackensack, N.J., commander of one of the U.S. 6th Fleet task forces prowling the Mediterranean constantly these days from the Straits of Gibraltar to the coastal waters off Turkey.

HUBBELL HAD joined several hundred of the 4,100 officers and enlisted men on board the FDR in watching some of the daily maneuvers that keep the 6th Fleet ready for war — and remind the Soviet Union that watchful waiting is a policy for two.

"Rosie is quite a girl," said Hubbell as he stepped a grey bulkhead of the 25-year-old Franklin D. Roosevelt. "She can do anything we ask her."

Indeed Rosie is quite a girl. She's a floating city 999 feet long with a television station beaming Johnny Carson, Johnny Cash and other favorites, a daily newspaper, a hospital with 44 beds, a supermarket and a plant producing enough fresh water a day to irrigate a Mississippi cotton town.

She also is quite an ace in the defensive hand the United States and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization shows in the sea where once the might of America was unchallenged.

The FDR is one of the world's largest warships, bristling with armament and capable of carrying more than 70 aircraft — and able to launch one of them every 30 seconds. The Phantom is the most modern of the planes on board.

ALTOGETHER, the 6th Fleet boasts 50 ships, 200 aircraft and about 25,000 men. The Soviet navy has as many ships in the Mediterranean some of the time, but it packs nowhere near the power of the 6th Fleet.

Still, the sight of Russian ships and sailors on permanent duty in the Mediterranean is a fairly new, and disquieting, phenomenon facing Western defenders.

U.S. naval commanders are not yet ready to describe the Soviet presence as a challenge. Adm. Horacio Rivero, the U.S. Navy man who commands NATO forces in Southern Europe, said recently the entire Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean could be sunk in six hours if war broke out.

But, as a symbol of Soviet political and military thrust in the Middle East and the Mediterranean, the Russian warships — which at times include two helicopter carriers — is formidable.

On any given day, from 30 to 50 Soviet naval vessels plough the Mediterranean. The total reached 75 one day last year, but Western surveillance showed this was mostly due to a switch-over with some of the vessels replacing others returning to Black Sea home ports.

The growth of the Soviet fleet was quick, increasing from a daily average of 11 ships in 1966 to figures four times as much now. Much of the buildup followed the six-day war in 1967 between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

TWO SOVIET first came after the fighting. The helicopter carrier Moskva, armed with surface-to-air guided missiles, entered the Mediterranean in the fall of 1968. U.S. military intelligence reported two months later the first appearance of a Soviet nuclear submarine in the area.

With the Soviet buildup has come new NATO organizations designed especially to keep an eye on Russian ships and submarines. Aerial surveillance is the key and allied planes patrol the Mediterranean around the clock.

At the same time, the Soviets keep a close watch on U.S. ships. American Navy men tell new stories every week about Soviet plane buzzings, electronic spy vessels that drift close to American warships, and radio messages between Russian signalmen discussing what the Americans are doing.

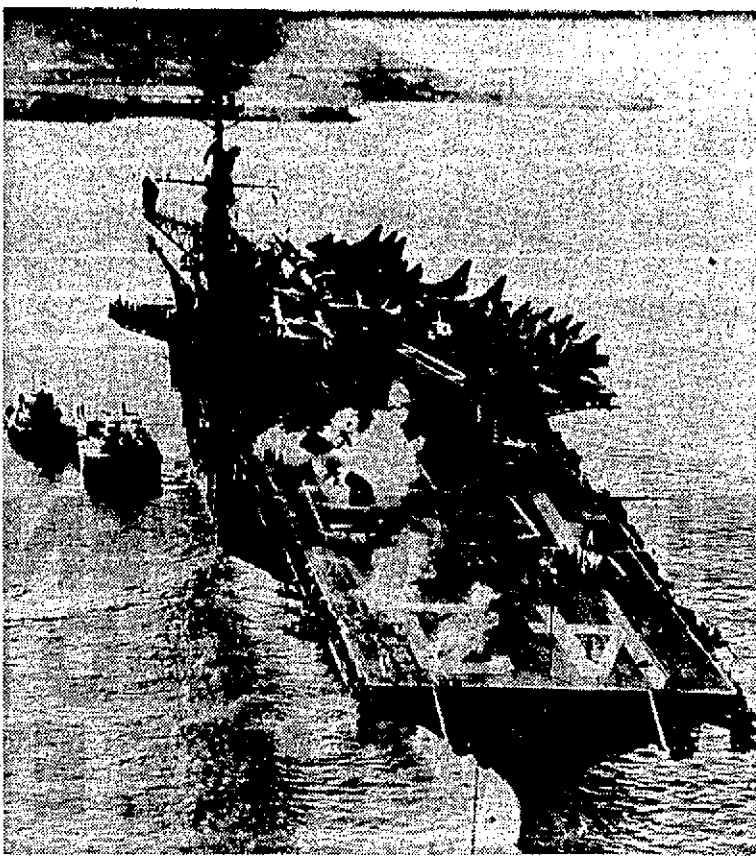

The results of U.S. and NATO surveillance are often classified, but Westerners say there are few Soviet secrets.

"We know where they keep their ships," Hubbell said. "We know how and when and, most times, why they go from one place to another."

Forest Fire Fight Aided by Showers

OMAK, Wash. (UPI) — Cool, moist weather with showers Saturday aided crews fighting forest fires in north central Washington.

Only two major fires remained out of control.

Foresters said one was the Bunker Hill Creek blaze on the U.S.-Canadian border and the other was the Safety Harbor fire in the Wenatchee National Forest.

The Bunker Hill fire in the Paysayten wilderness area has covered about 2,200 acres so far, but officials reported things in that area were in "good shape" because of the weather change. A total of 670 Americans were battling the fire along with an unknown number of Canadians.

A light rain was falling on the Safety Harbor fire and officials hoped to bring the blaze under control Saturday. The main fire lines held during the night and fire fighters hoped to save some of the land inside the lines which has not yet burned.

Plane Crashes Off Long Island; 1 Dead

EAST HAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — A 47-year-old man was killed Saturday when the single-engine he was piloting crashed in dense fog in Napeague Bay off the eastern end of Long Island, police reported.

A passenger was rescued from the wreckage by a police launch. He was reported in fair condition at South Hampton Hospital after treatment for two broken legs.

The dead man was identified as Frederick Dioguardo of Bayport, a contractor.

Taft 'Clan' Gathers at Ancestral Settlement

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Ninety-six years ago Alphonso Taft called them "kindred" and "tribe."

Today the politically famous Taft family has clans in 22 states. Representatives will gather Aug. 15-16, as they have every five years since 1874, at the family's place of origin, Mendon, Mass.

Annual reunions are held in numerous states, but every five years the clans make the pilgrimage to the little Southern Massachusetts farm town to pay homage to their common ancestor Robert Taft who settled there in 1679.

According to Charles P. Taft, brother of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft and a Cincinnati city councilman and former mayor, Robert

2 Killings Laid to Death Squad

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The bullet-riddled bodies of two men were found Saturday in the Rio de Janeiro area, both bearing some of the marks of Death Squad execution.

Since last weekend, the slaying of 14 other men, all small-time criminals, have been attributed to Death Squads, believed to be off-duty policemen avenging the slayings of fellow officers.

The two latest bodies had nylon cords around their necks, signs of torture and innumerable bullet wounds. But missing were other Death Squad trade marks: a picture of a skull and bones, a Chinese face or the word "killing" stamped on the body.

Nixon Urged to Follow Plan for Integration of Schools

By AL EISELE

From Our National Bureau
WASHINGTON — The chairman of a Senate Committee studying school desegregation called on the Nixon Administration Saturday to stick by its declared policies aimed at assuring that federal school desegregation plans are enforced this fall.

Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., said he has urged the Justice Department "not to back down" from its recently announced plan to send 100 federal attorneys and other officials into the field to monitor school desegregation this fall.

Mondale said he is encouraged by the Justice Department move and by an announcement by the Internal Revenue Service that it will no longer grant tax exempt status to private segregated schools, but he questioned whether both decisions will be actively enforced by the Administration.

"I AM CONCERNED about reports that plans for this 100 man integration task force may have been dropped and efforts to monitor the new IRS policy may be minimal. I am especially concerned about statements by high Administration officials, including the President, which raise questions about whether the task force will indeed be established."

Descendants of Robert Taft's five sons roamed far and wide across America becoming educators, newspapermen, businessmen, clergymen and prominent politicians.

The list includes President and chief justice of the United States, William Howard Taft, the late Senator Robert Taft, his son Robert Jr., a U.S. representative and candidate for U.S. senator from Ohio, former Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson, Alphonso Taft, secretary of war and attorney general in the Cabinet of President U.S. Grant.

Alphonso was the guiding spirit behind the Taft family gatherings, calling them together for the first time in 1874.

regation efforts.

MONDALE said the trip confirmed testimony before the committee about the frustration, anger and potential for violence that exists among these groups because of resistance to school integration orders.

He said he found what appeared to be widespread abuses of the desegregation process, including officially desegregated school districts which are maintaining segregated classrooms or transferring public property to private (segregation academies.)

"I'm convinced that something has to be done before it's too late, but the first thing we need is a clear and unequivocal expression of leadership from the President of the United States," Mondale declared.

He said the situation in the South can become explosive "if we don't have national leadership to make desegregation work."

IT'S HARD for me to express the disappointment and resentment in the South on the part of those who believe in school desegregation about what's going on," he added.

"There's a pervasive and fundamental feeling that neither the Justice Department nor the President is committed to enforcement of the requirements against desegregation."

Mondale's committee will hold hearings Thursday on the effect of a television on educational opportunity, and has three more days of hearings set for the following week to hear from past and present federal education officials.

Nixon Aide Cites No Action Need for Students on Rights to 'Keep Current' of Women

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Nixon's adviser on student affairs, returning to the Vanderbilt University campus after 2½ months in Washington, said Saturday White House communication with the nation's college students "needs to be kept current."

But Dr. Alexander Heard, Vanderbilt chancellor, said he had no indication that his assignment, announced in the midst of nationwide campus unrest after U.S. troops moved into Cambodia, will be made permanent. He noted, however, that the President "has said on a number of occasions he wants to confer again with certain university presidents with whom he has conferred previously."

ALEXANDER HEARD
Advises Nixon

HE REITERATED this to me in the past few days," said Heard, one of the presidents involved.

Heard said he felt the fall congressional elections are viewed by most college students as "an important opportunity to take part in the political process and hopefully to influence public decisions."

But, in response to questioning, he emphasized that if the President's views on Vietnam and similar questions "cannot be reconciled," the views which must prevail are "the President's views."

"He is the duly elected president of the United States and he is . . . the only one with the authority" to make such decisions. Students, with the exceptions of some radical groups, seem to want primarily to know that their views are considered before any decision is made.

"I THINK the question of responsiveness consists of two parts," he said. "These are, first, the presenting of views for consideration and, second, the feeling that the views are considered before a final decision is made."

Asked if students might be wrong in their views, Heard responded:

"I think that it is certain that citizens, including college students and others, are not fully informed of public decisions in many cases" and that college students, like others, do not fully understand some decisions as a result.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said Saturday that job discrimination against women is "subtle and more pervasive than against any other minority group," but that the Labor Department will not take any immediate action to combat it.

He told 10 representatives of women's rights organizations in a meeting at the Labor Department that "I have no intention of applying literally exactly the same approach for women" as carried out under an executive order issued by President Lyndon B. Johnson outlawing discrimination against minority groups in job hiring and promotions by federal contractors.

In a hallway news conference following the 50 minute session, Dr. Ann Scott of Williamsville, N.Y. said Hodgson's refusal to make a commitment means "women have been left out again" by the Nixon administration.

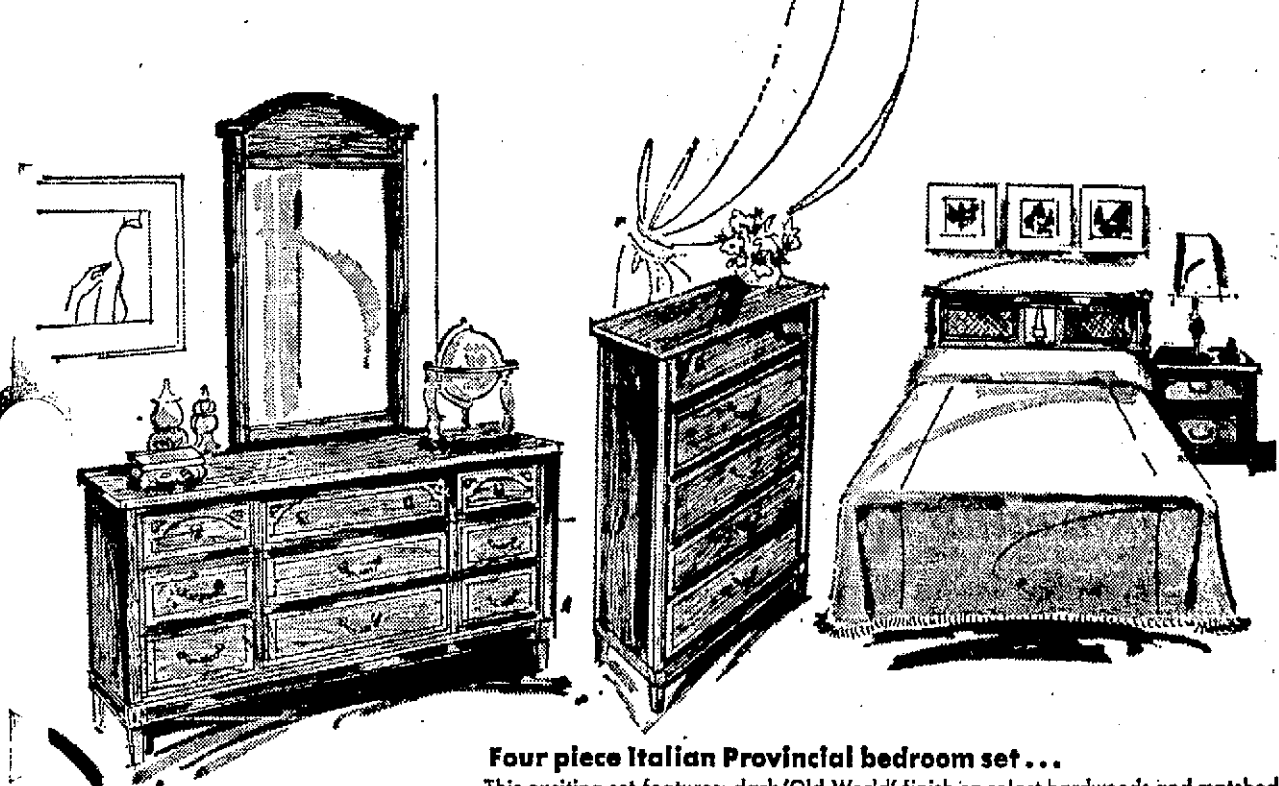

"This is not limited to the secretary of labor," Dr. Scott said. "It is part and parcel of the attitude of the administration."

A department spokesman said Hodgson was "sympathetic" to the women's complaints, but needs more time to "study the situation."

Hodgson said he will issue a position paper on sex discrimination within a week, but Dr. Scott said he had made it clear that the administration would move cautiously.

Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home, left, shakes hands with Paul Miller, Associated Press president and chairman of Gannett Newspapers, in Douglas-Home's London office. Douglas-Home Says Egypt, Israel Warming to Talks

LONDON (AP) — Sir Alec Douglas-Home says both the Egyptians and Israelis are starting to think of negotiations as their best course. He says the North Atlantic Treaty Organization must take account of new Soviet influence south of Europe and possibly consider protection of trade routes around southern Africa.

He sees Vietnamization as a beginning toward a reduction of hostilities in Indochina.

The British foreign secretary presented his views in the round-the-table discussion with Paul Miller, president of The Associated Press and chairman of the Gannett Newspapers, and Arthur L. Gavshon, the AP's diplomatic correspondent in London.

It was the first interview he has granted newsmen since resuming his old post as foreign secretary in the new Conservative party government of Prime Minister Edward Heath. The blue-green colored room, where the discussion took place, has been used by a succession of foreign secretaries in the Foreign Office since 1862.

DOUGLAS-HOME said the most important matter facing him was the Middle East crisis where he thought he detected "signs both the Egyptians and Israelis are . . . just beginning to think . . . a negotiated settlement might better than a continuing war."

But he cautioned that "one must not be too optimistic" and said prejudices on the two sides are difficult to overcome.

He added that there was a "slightly more optimistic feeling" in four power talks because the Russians "have been talking the same language" as the other participants.

Nevertheless, he saw Soviet arms shipments to Libya as part of a regular pattern now, illustrating Soviet expansionism in the area.

ON INDOCHINA Douglas-Home said President Nixon himself has recognized that he has chosen "a second-best alternative" by beginning phased withdrawals of American troops alongside the process of Vietnamization. The best solution would have been a negotiated settlement to leave the South Vietnamese free from all outside forces and free to settle their own future. He hoped North Vietnam would not make it more difficult to continue American withdrawals.

The foreign secretary said he expects Red China to play a major role in the development of Asia. He thought it incorrect to talk of Indochina "becoming a Chinese sphere of influence." Successive British governments have favored seating Peking in the United Nations. The British now "are ready to do anything in our power to cooperate with China" in the search for an Indochinese peace.

At 3:23 p.m. May 31, 1970, a major earthquake off the coast of Peru produced the greatest natural disaster in the history of the Western Hemisphere.

More than 50,000 persons died — how many more will never be known — yet the earthquake was not as powerful as the 1906 California earthquake, or the 1964 Alaskan earthquake.

Could a similar disaster occur in California, or elsewhere in the United States?

The answer must be a qualified "yes," both in terms of property and lives. In fact in terms of property and lives the destruction might well be greater, because there is more to be destroyed.

A preliminary report from the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey on the Peruvian earthquake shows that a combination of features led to the high loss of life.

First, the epicenter, the heart of the earthquake, was within 20 miles of the second largest fishing port in Peru. And it hit a highly vulnerable area.

The portion of the coastal area of Peru most affected by the earthquake "... is extremely arid and characterized by numerous sand dunes and wind-blown deposits," the report noted.

In fact the coast is not too unlike parts of Southern California.

UNLIKE California, however, "nearly all the buildings in the affected area were of adobe construction, bricks made of sun-baked clay and straw with timber-supported roofs. This sort of building has very poor vibration resistance"

Agents Buy Russian Rifle, 2 Salesmen Held

OXNARD (UPI) — Two men who allegedly tried to sell undercover federal agents a Communist-made rifle were arrested Friday night after completion of the prearranged sale.

Robert William Peterson, 26, of Camarillo, and Michael James Webb, 20, of Oxnard, were booked on suspicion of possession and sale of illegal firearms and for carrying concealed weapons.

Officers said the men had tried to sell a Russian AK-14 rifle. The chrome-plated, automatic weapon is the basic individual gun in the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong arsenal. It was apparently smuggled into the country from Southeast Asia.

California construction, of course, is modern, and supposedly earthquake resistant.

But destruction was also reported in Lima, a modern city, and a steel road bridge near Casma was severely damaged.

In fact, modern buildings, including ones meeting code specifications, have been destroyed by earthquakes, in Alaska, Latin America and the Philippines.

Adding to the earthquake toll was the location of the cities involved.

"To make matters worse most of the villages in the Callejon de Huaylas (a high casualty area) are situated on poorly compacted, deep alluvial fans with high water tables which tend to magnify the vibrational amplitude (amount of damage)," the Coast and Geodetic Survey noted.

A good many California towns are constructed on similar lands, Sacramento for example, and although Southern California rarely complains of high water tables, many of its cities are built on what is in effect sand rather than bedrock.

THE SECOND important cause of loss of life was slides, both mud and ice.

Earth and portions of glacier buried Yungay to depths of 10 to 15 meters, and then the avalanche flowed on down the Rio Santa River.

A final source of damage was repeated landslides:

"The number of slides was increased greatly along the valley roads and the railway right of way because of the particular engineering practice used in the cuts and fills. . . . Many of the slopes failed . . .," the report said.

At the same time the Peruvian report was released the U.S. Geologic Survey made the following announcement:

"Earthquake hazards and risks along a 175-mile segment of the San Andreas fault in California are depicted on a strip map just placed in open file."

The San Andreas Fault runs from El Centro to Humboldt County. It was the source of the 1906 so-called San Francisco earthquake.

"The map shows the location of recent active breaks along the San Andreas fault in Marin, Sonoma, Mendocino and Humboldt counties. The map also shows areas of probable landslide deposits along the fault."

"THE PROXIMITY of many of the landslide deposits to the recent breaks suggests that the triggering of landslides by large earthquakes may be a major problem in the area of this strip map," said Robert D. Brown of the U.S. Geological Survey's Menlo Park office.

The map is on display at 7638 Federal Building, Los Angeles.

The map and the Peruvian earthquake illustrate geologic problems faced by California, and other seismically active areas. Some of the problems include:

—Any massive earthquake near population centers will produce massive numbers of casualties.

—The number of casualties will depend in part on construction methods used and the condition of foundation soils, but the best construction methods will not guarantee an absence of loss of life and property. In fact, loss of life and property is guaranteed.

—California faces many of the same seismic problems faced by Peru, and its population centers are vulnerable to earth movement.

—A major California disaster has been avoided so far only by luck.

St. Mary's to Honor Director of Pediatrics

A reception honoring St. Mary's Hospital's new director of pediatrics and nurseries will be held Monday at the hospital, 509 E. 10th St.

Dr. Rosemary Dobson Leake will organize and develop a new teaching program for interns and medical students in her newly created position.

Dr. Leake, a graduate of Ohio State University College of Medicine, is certified by the American Board of Pediatrics. She recently completed a fellowship in Neonatology (the medical diagnosis and treatment of newborn infants) at Stanford University Medical Center.

She resides with her husband, Donald Leake, D.M.D., M.D., the Chief of Oral Surgery at Harbor General Hospital, in Palos Verdes Peninsula.

Cassandra, who worked as a chemist before retirement, has only one major critic in the house — her nine-year-old daughter.

With typical female duality, the bubbling little blonde will threaten a playmate: "If you do that my mother will turn you into a frog." Or, she will come in and complain to her parent:

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A narcotics ring operating out of a gas station distributed its consignments of drugs in frozen, hollowed-out cantaloupes, sheriff's deputies said Saturday.

The cantaloupes were stored in the station freezer until ready for delivery, deputies said.

The disclosure followed a raid on the station in which thousands of dollars of hashish, marijuana, heroin, and morphine were seized. Three suspected pushers were arrested and charged with possession and dealing in narcotics.

They were Vincent Berardi, 27, Edward Chergi, 27, and Anthony Bayer, 18.

A fourth man, Edward Carr, 25 identified as the supplier, was later arrested and charged with resisting arrest and narcotics dealing.

Authorities said the group catered to drug parties at the gas station for a flat fee of $200 dollars.

CAMPERS, BEWARE OF RODENTS Warning on Plague Issued

Because two cases of plague have occurred within the past six weeks, a warning has been issued to campers and travelers going into specific areas in the mountains and coastal regions by the California Department of Public Health.

I. D. Litwack, M.D., Long Beach Health Officer, reports that ground squirrels, chipmunks and other wild rodents in many tucked-away portions of the areas may be infested with fleas.

If an animal is sick or dies, said Litwack, the fleas will attach themselves to the next warm-blooded animal passing by and if this should be a human, it is possible to transmit diseases, including plague, to the individual.

Litwack noted that families vacationing in open or wooded areas should use insect repellent on socks and trouser cuffs, and set up tents and sleeping bags away from animal burrows.

Campers or travelers are urged to report to the nearest County Health Department any evidence of sick animals in or around parks, playgrounds or open country. Investigation will be made and treatment of these grounds will follow.

Litwack further warned that any wild animal that would permit a human to play with it is sick. Therefore, adults traveling or camping with children should warn them to leave all wild animals alone.

PRACTICING "WITCH"

Cassandra Slem (Mrs. M.) of Huntington Beach holds bottle of love potion which made headlines two years ago. She says satanism and cannibalism will continue in the Southland as long as drug use continues.

LOVE POTION STILL WORKS

Cassandra, a Witch, Links Drugs to Deadly Devil Rites

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

On a quiet sidestreet in Huntington Beach, a dark-eyed witch today spelled out some dimensions of satanism and cannibalism and conjured a guess that both will continue in the Southland.

Pretty Cassandra Salem (Mrs. M. to her neighbors) made headlines two years ago with her formula for a sure-fire love potion.

Astonished at the ensuing fallout from kooks and cranks, she quit her job at a Newport Beach electronics plant, turned fulltime housewife-mother — practicing sorceress, and hid behind her bewitching name.

Her credentials as analyst of the occult include 10 years as practicing witch, membership in an Orange County coven and an extensive reference library.

TODAY SHE LOOKED at the current scene — including recent mutilation murders in Orange County and Montana and declared:

"It's drugs — plus the kids' craving for instant power.

"They probably got hold of some writings about ancient human sacrifice and the transfer of power and then they freaked out. . . . It's incredible, horrible, but I'm afraid there will be more of it," she added.

(Both the June 3 murder of a pretty El Toro schoolteacher and the slaughter of a 22-year-old social worker whose dismembered body was found in the Yellowstone River have ties-in with cannibal and satanic rites, police say.)

"AS LONG AS the drug scene continues, as long as kids are in revolt, bored, or turned off with the Establishment and its religions, there will be theseumatic fringes," she said.

"Devil worship is as old as time," she continued. "It is on the increase because people are bored with organized religion's outdated approach," said the curly, jet-haired conjurer.

"Witchcraft, of course, denies the existence of either a Devil or a force of evil. We believe in positive and negative, but the bad in the world exists because people cause it," she added.

"Destruction of any life force is contrary to our belief, and any negative action comes back against you — doubled in intensity," she says.

SATANISM probably had roots in Druid rites but its golden age was during the revolt against feudalism and the hierarchy of the church, Cassandra continues. They developed the Black Mass and other rites to relieve the monotony of their daily lives as well as to express dissatisfaction with the church, she declared.

Today, Satanist cults often follow rites in a manual, "The Lesser Key of Solomon," a "Book of Evil Spirits" published in 1916 in Hackensack, New Jersey, says Cassandra. Cults are functioning in Hollywood and San Francisco, and one is being formed in Orange County, she adds.

"One Satanic rite which dates back to a pre-Christian fertility ritual included removal of a still beating heart and sometimes the liver from the sacrificial human victim," the witch explained. "The organs were cut up in a bowl and distributed to each member to eat in order to obtain some of the vital force of the victim — always an exceptionally strong or brave person.

"The practice actually began with the ancients in Crete and elsewhere who picked the strongest, ablest, smartest man in the community to rule for a year. At the end of the year he was killed, his body dismembered, and each person buried a part of the body in his field to insure good crops," she explained.

CASSANDRA decided to become a practicing witch after early reading of Sir James Frazer's "Golden Bough" left her spellbound.

A lone witch for years, she now admits membership in a local coven which she attends irregularly.

"I get more out of reading and research than I do out of meetings," she explains as she thumbs through a richly disordered floor-to-ceiling library in her suburban tract home.

Outside, around a kidney shaped pool, a spooked black cat named Belial prowls in her garden of conjuring herbs, flowers and spiders. Half a dozen resident frogs take care of the bugs and are also on call for conjuring.

Parked in her driveway is a station wagon adorned with a few peace flowers.

"BROOMSTICKS and black capes are very old hat," explains the barefoot bewitcher in pink capris.

What about the well publicized love potion and its aftermaths?

"It still works — beautifully," she smiles.

The recipe — clover leaves, honey, rose petals, rosemary, and the legs of a spider in a pint of rainwater — is unchanged but the results continue to fascinate, she says. "I still have to be very careful about distributing it, however, because, unlike an aphrodisiac, effects are very long lasting."

Cassandra still conjures; not in cauldrons, but in stainless steel pots atop a push button range. Nearby, canned soft drinks for daughter Michele and friends share refrigerator space with green bottles and plastic jars of potions which are dispensed — with caution — to Cassandra's friends.

ONE OF THE most popular spells is her "come hither": write the name of the one you want to see on three bay leaves, burn them in a clean container

MENTAL HEALTH CENTER OPEN TO ALL

Six L.B. Area Facilities Fight Drug Problems

By MIKE PHILLIS
Staff Writer

If someone you know has a drug problem, the Long Beach area presently has six facilities to help solve that problem.

Dr. Robert M. Rankin is Chief Psychiatrist for the Long Beach Mental Health Center at 236 E. Third St., a county and state supported organization under the Department of Mental Health.

"We can see anyone with a drug problem who does not need hospitalization," Dr. Rankin said. "But we can't help the heroin addict until after he has quit using."

"WHAT THE person is on, how long he has been on, how bad he wants off and what his motivation to get off is determines the difficulty involved in treatment," Dr. Rankin explained.

The initial visit of a drug abuser is for the purpose of evaluation and to determine the best treatment procedure, Dr. Rankin said. Depending on the need, a person can be put into group therapy or individual therapy with medication available when required. He added that a person can continue treatment as long as it is necessary.

Many patients are referred by private physicians or friends, and some just walk into the center and ask for help, Dr. Rankin said. The center is staffed with 25 psychiatrists, psychologists and counselors to provide the necessary help. The center charges on a sliding scale based on the patients income with the average charge being $3 a visit. Many pay nothing.

"ANYONE coming to the center will not be turned into the police and all information is strictly confidential," Dr. Rankin said.

The center also has a Psychological Emergency Team (PET) that goes out on call on an emergency basis to those who can't come in for help. If a person takes an overdose of drugs, PET is on 24-hour call to give immediate aid.

The Psychiatric Clinic for Children, 5007 Atlantic Ave., has been working with school-age drug users for a year with growing success.

According to Dr. Norbert Glasser, chief psychologist at the clinic, they have a special program which was developed by the Long Beach Unified School District and Welfare Planning Council to provide treatment and services for children under 18 years old from Long Beach, Signal Hill and Lakewood.

MOST patients are referred by the school district or other agencies, but a person may just walk in and ask for help, Dr. Glasser said that all information is confidential but the clinic must have the permission and cooperation of parents to begin treatment.

Dr. Glasser said that treatment may include group and individual counseling, parent counseling and group discussions with both parents and child present. Charges are based on a sliding scale in accordance with family income and range from no charge to $10.

The Long Beach Free Clinic, 1043 Pine Ave., has a self-referral drug abuse counseling center that operates on donations and never bills a patient, according to Ed Preston, a counselor at the clinic.

Preston said the Free Clinic is a nonestablishment type of clinic whose counselors operate in an informal atmosphere that lends ease to persons who would not normally go to an "establishment" agency. He added that people coming to the clinic need never fear the information they give leaving the building.

"OUR BIGGEST problem is that we're not geared for a long range program," Preston said. "We try to get to drug abusers before the police do. Our counseling is set up for six to eight weeks with one session a week, but we set no specific limits."

The clinic handles all types of drug abuse problems and has a medical staff ready if necessary. Some of the personnel is also available to go out on emergency calls.

The Long Beach Memorial Counseling Center, 2001 Atlantic Ave., offers limited counseling on drug abuse in group therapy, according to Rev. Martin Schluter, assistant director of pastoral care.

"As part of the counseling center we have drug abuse groups," Rev. Schluter said. "People who are now on and want off, we try to help through group therapy. Medically we are not equipped to help drug users and if the need is immediate, we refer them to someone who can. Much of our help for people on drugs is to refer them to the agency best suited to handle their problem. Our drug abuse counseling is mainly part of counseling where there are other problems involved."

ALTHOUGH the center, part of Memorial Hospital, does charge a fee for its services, charges are on a sliding scale and their services are less expensive than private care.

Hard core drug addicts who need to go through withdrawal can turn themselves in to the Long Beach District Attorney's office and they will eventually become part of the State of California's Narcotic Addict Out-Patient

Program with a regional office at 222 E. Third St. THE LONG BEACH Teen Centers have introduced an unique program called the Learning Center in which school age children are taught their school lessons while they are on suspension from the school district because of drug possession or use. The classes are held in the Teen Center building at 1365 Gladys Ave. Concurrently with attendance at the Learning Center, the student is also required to seek treatment at the Psychiatric Clinic for Children.

Legal Aid Tries to Untie Credit Knots

By BARBARA FRYER
Staff Writer

It is bankruptcy day at Long Beach Legal Aid Foundation.

The office, sandwiched between a laundromat and a delicatessen at 1006 E. Pacific Coast Highway, is brimming with people. There is a middle-aged man who has had a business failure, a young couple with endless stacks of bills and no money, a woman whose meager salary is about to be garnished.

They are all waiting to see Legal Aid Attorney William Buckner, who sits in his small office berating an educational system that turns out students who "can read, write and pledge the flag" but are unable to cope with the perils of a credit-oriented society.

Buckner's frustration is apparent. "Look at the faces of those people out there. They're in dire straits," he says. "Sure, they have an endless number of rights, and consumer protection laws are becoming more numerous. But the only way they can find out what the laws are is to come to a place like this."

THE LAWS ARE meaningless, he says, unless consumers are aware of them and too many are not. This lack of knowledge, he says, knows no class, race or nationality distinctions.

Many of those waiting in Buckner's office are there because they are mired in debt. They face garnishment proceedings and they want to declare bankruptcy. (Nine out of 10 do not file bankruptcy, so bankruptcy day is really a misnomer, says Buckner of the weekly two-day period set aside for financial problems.)

As these people wait, hundreds of others in the Long Beach area are signing their financial death warrants by signing contracts they do not understand, and cannot possibly afford.

"So many people tell me 'if I only knew.' They could know! Something could be done at the schools to stop this," Buckner says.

Educators themselves concur. "WE JUST DON'T have courses on personal law and credit for people to make them aware. Somewhere along the line, we have failed," says Talma Hupfield, who retired last month as a California State College at Long Beach associate professor in home economics.

Her sentiments are echoed by Diana Cole, a Southland junior high home economics teacher enrolled in Buckner's summer seminar on home finance at state college who says she sees no reason why "our protection should be a secret known only to attorneys."

"Most people," she adds, "don't even know basic legal terms, much less their own legal rights. This is the kind of thing that must be tied into the curriculum — at the elementary level."

In a country where consumer credit soars into more than $100 billion, the average individual is like Alice in Wonderland, say some critics.

Buckner cites case after case where consumers unfamiliar with law err . . . and often in the creditor's favor.

He says there is a vital need for debtor financial centers combining the services of attorneys and home economists who would help the consumer pay his bills after figuring out if he does owe them.

"We had hopes of developing something like this with this office," he adds.

According to Buckner, contracts are the one thing over which a consumer has the most control — and the most trouble.

"Many people do not realize it is possible to add to a contract. If a salesman promises to give you something if you agree to buy, have him write the promise on the contract, because the courts will attach more importance to the handwritten part than the printed portion."

Buckner provides a brochure on contracts prepared for the layman. It details the promises the contract signer makes:

1. He promises to pay the amount of money the contract says he owes.
 2. He promises not to sell the item (and not to move away with it) until he finishes paying.
 3. He agrees it is not his to keep until he makes the last payment.
 4. He agrees that the seller (lender) can take it back if he doesn't make payments when they are due.
 5. He agrees that he will pay any damages which have occurred if the seller has to repossess the item.
- The booklet likewise warns the signer to work out the proper payment plan by deciding what size payment he can afford, how many payments he will make, when they will be due, and determining what happens if a payment is missed or if he wants to pay off the entire sum early.

"Hundreds of people have asked me if it is true that as long as they send what they can, their creditors can't do anything to them. I don't know where they ever got this idea," Buckner says.

He warns consumers signing contracts to beware of someone who tells them just to list "two or three of your debts." They may be setting you up to accuse you of fraud in case you declare bankruptcy.

If a person does sign a contract, then becomes dissatisfied, under certain circumstances, says Buckner, he can be excused from the contract's terms.

THE NEW "TRUTH in lending law" offers one such circumstance.

"If you sign a contract for a home improvement, say, and put up collateral in the form of real property, then you have three days in which to change your mind."

Concerning such contracts as those signed for body-building or figure shaping courses, Buckner says many people do not know that if they do not take all the courses they have signed for, the law says they do not have to pay the full amount on their contract.

"You must pay only the amount of profit the contract holder would have made," he explains, "and you are not obligated to contribute towards payment of his fixed expenses or overhead."

Succor Available to Consumers BEEF, CLOTHES SHRANK? GRIPE!

So your bargain ground beef shriveled into a fatty puddle in the frying pan . . . the imitation leather trim on your new pantsuit curled into ruffles at the cleaners . . . Or your new pushbutton appliance malfunctioned and should be replaced. Or you discovered that the installment contract you signed makes you liable for more money than the salesman quoted.

You're Mr. or Mrs. Consumer and you're mad.

But you figure you're one of faceless,

Faced with complex merchandising practices and intricate financing arrangements, the consumer has reason neither to accept less than full value for his dollar nor to allow credit purchases to force him into bankruptcy. Ways to avoid the former are explored in this article; ways to avoid the latter are detailed in the article at left.

voiceless, impotent majority and there's little or no recourse.

Figure again. In the first two instances you have several avenues of help available if you live in Long Beach. But in the latter two instances, it's still mainly "caveat emptor." Even if you do beware, you can still get bilked, say legal and consumer organization spokesmen.

For your meat and cleaner problems, local remedies are available through the City Health Department and the Better Business Bureau.

Markets are bound by law to limit fat content in ground beef to 30 per cent, and moisture content to 70 per cent. If your "bargain" beef exceeds either limit, you should ask for a replacement or a refund.

If you have a question on the quality, notify the Health Department. Its regular inspection program covers 526 retail food and beverage outlets which are checked at random by seven inspectors for adulteration, sanitation, refrigeration, and quality.

L. G. Estes, Director of Environmental Health, says:

"Each market is checked three or four times a year unless we get a complaint; then we check immediately. We tell violators to conform to law; if they don't, we file complaints with the city prosecutor. We do the same for fish and poultry outlets. On conviction, violators face up to $500 in fines and six months in jail."

A measure of the success of the routine inspection service is the lack of court cases in the past year.

"Prior to that we used to refer about 20 cases a year," Estes says. "The word is out, and the markets are cooperating fully. Our testing indicates most of them sell meat that is better than the 30-70 per cent limits."

The pantsuit problem is typical of those that have come before the Long Beach Better Business Bureau's Cleaning Arbitration Panel for the past two years.

The 18-member volunteer group studies customer complaints, orders analysis of the damage (a $5 lab fee is paid by the cleaner) when needed, and fixes a sum to be paid by the cleaner if he is at fault. Both customer and cleaner sign an agreement that each will abide by the board's ruling.

Some 150 laundry and dry cleaning firms in the Long Beach, Torrance and Lakewood areas belong to the plan. Each member will soon carry in his shop window a plaque indicating that "This establishment is pledged to fair dealing with its customers."

Arbitration panel members meet once a month to consider five to 20 complaints, according to Harold Orr, local cleaning business operator. Decisions are based on guidelines developed by the National Institute of Dry Cleaners.

THE PANEL was developed because of the bewildering variety of new synthetics which have hit the market in the past two years, said Orr. He estimates half

Airline Leases on Agenda

The city council Tuesday will consider Pacific Southwest Airlines and Air California lease proposals for inauguration of service at Long Beach Airport.

The city manager's office last week negotiated 5-year agreements with the two air lines. Both leases would provide that use of the premises be "solely for operation of air carrier and air charter service."

The Pacific Southwest Airlines agreement provides for no more than 10 operations daily, an operation being defined as a landing and subsequent takeoff. Operations are limited to 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. except in emergencies caused by weather or mechanical failure.

CITY MANAGER John R. Mansell said Dwane M. Wittmeyer, vice president for sales for PSA, initially proposed to provide four flights daily to San Francisco and two flights daily to San Diego, ultimately expanding to the 10 flights.

PSA would pay the city $128.67 monthly for rent of one room in the terminal building and 224 square feet in the basement.

The Air California agreement limits the carrier to five operations daily between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. except in emergency conditions similar to the PSA lease.

Dudley Miller, vice president for marketing, and Gen. Charles Banks, vice president for civic affairs, said Air California initially proposes three daily flights from Long Beach to San Jose, later expanding to the maximum of five flights daily.

Both leases specify use of planes which do not exceed noise levels of Douglas DC-9, Boeing 727 or Boeing 737 aircraft.

Beards, Sideburns Bedeck Navy

Military Affairs Editor

Moustaches are mushrooming, sideburns slipping and beards sprouting throughout the Navy commands of Long Beach.

Official word came out earlier this month: beards and moustaches always have been in order, and now full sideburns will be permitted if they do not sink below the earlobes.

Use discretion in applying these regulations in changing times. This was the word from Adm. Thomas H. Moorer just before he became chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Adm. Moorer's directive was a clarification and a subtle reminder to some commands that had been banning moustaches and beards altogether.

"Too stringent interpretation of rules will do the Navy no good in the '70s," a spokesman said. "It has given us some problems that should have never arisen."

The new regulations, put out quietly, say beards must be full, hair must not exceed three inches, and moustaches and beards must be neat.

A look at regulations in effect earlier shows that beards and moustaches were to be "neat, noncentric and clipped."

Increasing the sideburns' length is the only new rule.

A variety of interesting combinations have cropped up at Pacific Mine Force headquarters.

Communications Yeoman 3.C. Joe Banuelos, Lemoore, is sprouting a beard. "My wife wanted me to grow a beard, and so far there have been no complaints," he said.

Yeoman Seaman Jeff Manley, East Troy, Wis., has let his hair grow to the maximum 3-inch length now acceptable and is working on luxuriant sideburns.

Lt. Cmdr. Bob Nelson, Bar Harbor, Me., has a distinguished set of side-burns similar to those of the current chief of naval operations, Adm. Elmo Zumwalt Jr. Nelson, staff assistant for training, said he is "proud of the set" although he has been accused of "copying the big boss."

Lt. (jg) Pete Bogle, Santa Barbara, data processing, has "always wanted a moustache," and his wife hailed his starting one.

Lt. (jg) Ed Thompson, Los Angeles, in inventory management, grew a beard on leave and says "the girls are flocking to me."

Yeoman 3.C. Ron Bowerman, Ashton, Iowa, has to settle for some longer sideburns since his only top crop is skin.

Fellow sailors have poured hair-growing suggestions on him but Bowerman is destined to be one of the have-nots.

Ship's Serviceman 1.C. Mel Rabbe, San Antonio, who does about 80 haircuts a week at Mine Force, said he was surprised when the hair directive came down.

Rabbe, who figures he has trimmed 60,000 scalps in seven commands in 12 years, figured that "probably a quarter of the men at Mine Force have taken advantage of the new policy—in most cases the junior men and officers."

"Times are changing and so do people," Rabbe added. "I figure the new setup is not bad."

Adm. Moorer's final comment in the haircut directive:

"No regulation is a substitute for good judgment, especially in our changing environment. Use common sense and good judgment; knock off any arbitrary local rules that are based on personal feelings."

"Review your rules that might keep dependents or other authorized personnel from access to stations, unless their dress or grooming goes beyond the bounds of decency and cleanliness or would demoralize the troops . . ."

Sea Festival Due to Begin

A $1,000 treasure hunt, an air show that will include the California Condors precision flying team, a parade of lighted boats and a fireworks spectacular are highlights of the fifth annual California International Sea Festival at Long Beach Aug. 1-16.

A gala Sea Festival Spectacular and Parade of Lights from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Aug. 1 is expected to bring more than 300,000 Southern Californians to two miles of the city's shoreline.

THE FREE show will open two weeks of aquatic sports and marine related events.

Scheduled for the opening weekend are the Powerboat Magazine Marathon of Champions powerboat races Aug. 2 at Long Beach Marine Stadium; also on that date, the Sea Festival Aquatics Meet off Bayshore Beach at Alamitos Bay, involving more than 700 entrants.

Other events will include:

International sabot regatta, model sailboat regatta, Navy gigs inspection, Chuck Stearns world water ski drag championships, California Outrigger Assn. state championships.

Also, the International Underwater Photographic Society Exhibition, Grand National Catalina ski race, Fathomiers Southern California spearfishing derby, sand sculpturing competition, Long Beach Art Fair, Starlight Concert, Long Beach Hennessy Cup Race, and the National Drag Boat Assn. western regional championships.

A Sea Festival Photo Contest will feature competition by amateurs for $2,500 in merchandise prizes for their Sea Festival pictures. The contest will extend through the entire Aug. 1-16 period.

The $1,000 Sea Festival Treasure Hunt will start with the first clue published in the Independent Press-Telegram Aug. 2. Two new clues will be published daily, one in the Independent, and the other in the Press-Telegram.

Final clue will be published in the combined I,

P-T on Aug. 8. If the treasure is not found by midnight of Aug. 8, the hunt will be declared finished and the money will be donated to charity.

The treasure will be hidden, but not necessarily buried, on public property somewhere in the city of Long Beach. It will be given to the person whose hands first touch the treasure in whatever form it may take — for example, an envelope, a metal plate, box, can, bottle, bag, photograph, tube, boot, drawer, basket, sack or whatever.

EACH DAY'S clue will attempt to lead treasure seekers closer and closer to the treasure. Hunters should not invade, trespass, cross or in any manner disturb private property.

If the treasure is found as a result of a team effort or partnership it will be divided as agreed upon by the team or hunters.

The finder should contact the city desk of the Independent or Press-Telegram as soon as the treasure is located.

Nobody's Renting to Teen Center

The recently activated Long Beach Downtown Neighborhood Center is seeking facilities for a teen center to serve the downtown area, according to Harold McFarland, director of the center.

At a recent Downtown Neighborhood Council meeting, Miriam Smith, director of the Youth Development Project, indicated to council members that lack of a rented building is all that stands in the way of a teen center in the area.

"We have the funds, the program personnel and the desire" to open the teen center, she said, but no facility. "No one wants to rent for a teen center."

The area served by the neighborhood center — at 324 E. Broadway — lies between Pine Avenue and the Los Angeles River and between Anaheim Street and the seashore.

B-2 LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA, SUNDAY, JULY 26, 1970

Antismog battle plan

IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA there is lots of climate but very little weather. So people talk about smog, as they would talk about weather in Maine or Louisiana.

They not only talk about it, they think they are doing something about it — by requiring antipollution devices on their cars, by filling their gas tanks with lead-free gasoline, by paying for the operations of an air pollution control district.

Some are smug about smog. "There is nothing much left for me to do here," said the county's air pollution control officer when he retired in March.

WITHIN THREE MONTHS of his retirement, a new record for smog alerts had been set in the county.

Gilbert Bailey came to grips with the problem as a congressional aide in Washington and as a writer on ecology in California. He joined this newspaper's staff as contributing editor and studied pollution in Southern California.

His findings were reported in a series of articles that concluded in yesterday's Independent and Press-Telegram.

Bailey was frankly alarmed by what he learned.

HE DISCOVERED THAT in a six-year period San Francisco, with far fewer industries than Los Angeles, issued five times as many notices of industrial pollution.

He discovered that, with little attention from press or public the Los Angeles County air pollution control board granted 70 per cent of industry requests for permission to violate air pollution standards. The air pollution control chief has the job of regulating industrial pollution but devotes most of his energy to talking about automobile pollution, about which he can do nothing. Automobile industry officials, who could do something about it, prefer to talk about industrial pollution.

He discovered that Los Angeles and San Francisco statistics on both industrial and automobile air pollution simply do not mesh. Either the Los Angeles statistics are preposterously low or the San Francisco statistics are deliberately inflated. It is hard to guess why San Francisco would deliberately inflate its smog statistics.

HE DISCOVERED THAT when San Francisco officials asked the State Air Resources Board about the puzzling discrepancy in the statistics they got no answer.

He discovered that outside experts do not share Los Angeles City officials' sanguine view that an attack on automobile-caused air pollution can largely solve the smog problem. The experts agree that industrial pollution plays too large a role to be ignored. And they agree that even the methods used to fight auto exhaust pollution are ineffective at best and damaging at worst.

He discovered that Long Beach has special pollution problems caused by oil refineries, power plants and chemical factories. That was the bad news. There remains the potential for good news.

BAILEY CONCLUDED THERE were a few things motorists can do: use lead-free gasoline if an engine will run satisfactorily on it, buy less powerful cars, have emission control systems kept in order — and walk or use bicycles and public transportation whenever possible.

At home, we can keep use of electrical appliances to a minimum to reduce the need for power from our smog-producing fossil fuel generating plants. When new power plants are needed, we can insist on nuclear plants, which do relatively little damage to the environment.

Such plants do put heat into the water, but the plants can be so located that the adverse effects are minimal. It is even possible for the effects to be beneficial, with warmer water making possible importation of fish life that could not survive without it.

These measures to fight smog will have a limited effect even if they are universally adopted, which they won't be.

THE MAJOR ATTACK on smog will have to be made by the county supervisors, the state legislature and Congress.

That attack will not be mounted or sustained without public pressure.

We hope readers will urge the supervisors to ask some hard questions about the operations of the Los Angeles County Air Pollution Control District, its standards for the granting of variances and the procedures of its extraordinarily lenient hearing board.

We hope readers will demand that the supervisors order tighter regulation of industry and — a smaller matter — control of gasoline spills at service stations, a problem about which San Francisco is doing something while Los Angeles is not.

State legislators should be encouraged to ask why the statistics the state gets from Los Angeles and San Francisco are apparently compiled on different bases so useful comparisons are impossible.

SINCE NO SOLUTION to automobile pollution problems is in sight, a large-scale public transportation system is essential. The automobile and highway construction lobbies must not be allowed to continue to block expenditure of gasoline tax funds for such a system.

State and national laws are needed to require assembly line testing and 25,000-mile guarantees of vehicle emission control devices. At present only hand-tooled prototypes are tested. If they work, the manufacturer gets the go-ahead for a year's production. But when rental car fleets in Los Angeles and Detroit were checked, more than half the cars failed to meet federal standards for hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions.

Congress should be told to crack down on the auto makers and the industrial polluters — and Congress must finance the research needed to make the crackdown intelligent.

Is Big Brother in the corner office?

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — "One of the great problems with the federal government trying to run things from 3,000 miles away," Gov. Reagan said last Tuesday, "is that blanket programs tend to ignore the requirements or the needs of individuals."

The governor thus repeated the traditional Republican distrust for the "Big Brother" concept of government, in which the central government paternalistically tells local government what it should do, how it should do it, and how much money it can spend.

If that were the real Ronald Reagan speaking, then there is an impostor occasionally inhabiting the governor's corner office!

Because someone, On July 10, issued an edict in Sacramento superimposing on county government, Big Brother-like state government's idea of just how a particular portion of the county welfare program should be run.

Furthermore, someone told county governments just how much they could spend on the program.

AND EARLIER this year someone presented the legislature with a tax reform package which, among other things, told local school districts just how much they could spend to maintain what state government had decided was an adequate school program.

And last year someone signed Ronald Reagan's name to legislation removing from local governments the right to regulate the possession of deadly weapons as it saw fit, and superimposed on local governments Big Brother's idea of what those regulations should be.

If Washington should not try "to run things from 3,000 miles away," why should Sacramento try to run things for Los Angeles County from 400 miles away, or for any other county, for that matter?

But it does. Or rather Ronald Reagan does. On July 10 and it really was Gov. Reagan, and not an impostor — he told California's county governments, in effect, "I have decided that you don't need all the money we have budgeted for you to provide adequate home care for disabled welfare recipients. I am therefore taking away $10 million you don't need."

IT WAS NOT a question of the money not being available. The 1970-71 budget signed by Reagan only six days earlier included an appropriation of $24.5 million for the home care programs. The governor, on July 10, arbitrarily sliced it to $14.5 million, and this reduction, since it also reduced county eligibility for matching federal funds, actually meant that the counties who had such programs would have to get along with a total of $25 million less than when they planned their 1970-71 operations.

The governor may be right when he says some of the people getting money from that program should not be getting those county checks. But he acknowledged that he didn't know just how many of those people there were, and he scheduled hearings for next month to find out.

He rescinded his July 10 order Friday, but that does not change the fact that he had attempted to do to the counties what he has frequently criticized Washington for doing to states and local governments.

HIS TAX REFORM plan can be criticized for the same attempt. In it, he tells local school districts just how much money they need to provide adequate services to the children in those districts. The districts say he is wrong, but he insists on substituting his judgment for theirs.

This is not an attempt to discuss the merits of either the welfare program cutbacks or the school expenditure limit concept.

It is simply a further illustration of the elasticity of the governor's philosophy of government. He is quite willing to take one view for one purpose and another view for another purpose.

Last year, for example, he signed into law a bill denying to cities the right to regulate possession of guns and reserving that right to the state. In the same session, he signed into law a bill reserving to cities the right to decide what constituted pornography and denied to the state the right to impose a uniform standard.

The governor's disinclination to take one position and hold it makes like a constant challenge for officials in local government. The County Supervisors Association and the League of California Cities have spent a considerable amount of time, money, and effort this past year trying to tell the governor he's making life even more difficult for them than it already is. He doesn't seem to be getting the message.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Postal Pioneers

EDITOR:

Recently in your newspaper, a frustrated male citizen, for no obvious reason, belabored the entire complement of female letter carriers. Had he been better informed, he would know it is not "a relatively new policy" in hiring by the Post Office Department, but the law of the land passed by Congress in the 1964 Civil Rights Bill.

I personally suspect this individual is the victim of a jealous delusion or he is being vindictive for some imaginary affront on his dignity. It would be interesting to know where this gallant gentleman conducted his survey which resulted in the consensus that all female letter carriers are pretty hopeless. In my opinion our lady letter carriers do the job they were hired to do and do it well.

We have in our office single girls, married women, widows and divorcees, each one working very hard in an honorable livelihood. These same girls rush home after their tour of duty, to clean house, wash and iron clothes, make dinner, in many cases for three or four children; and then to finish off the day, after the dinner dishes are done, have the distinctive pleasure of mowing the lawn or washing the car.

I am reasonably sure that these worthy ladies would be very happy to accommodate their newspaper critic by staying home if it was economically possible. All possible credit should be given to these postal pioneers for a job well done against tremendous odds.

Disenchanted youth

EDITOR:

Lou Harris' article on disenchanted youth is proof that students have been brainwashed by socialist teachers who do not know the score. Youth today has more freedom, more money and many opportunities that their parents did not have. It is high time they start thinking for themselves instead of listening to leftist professors and off-campus radicals who do not have the welfare of the student in mind.

They're no 'dummies'

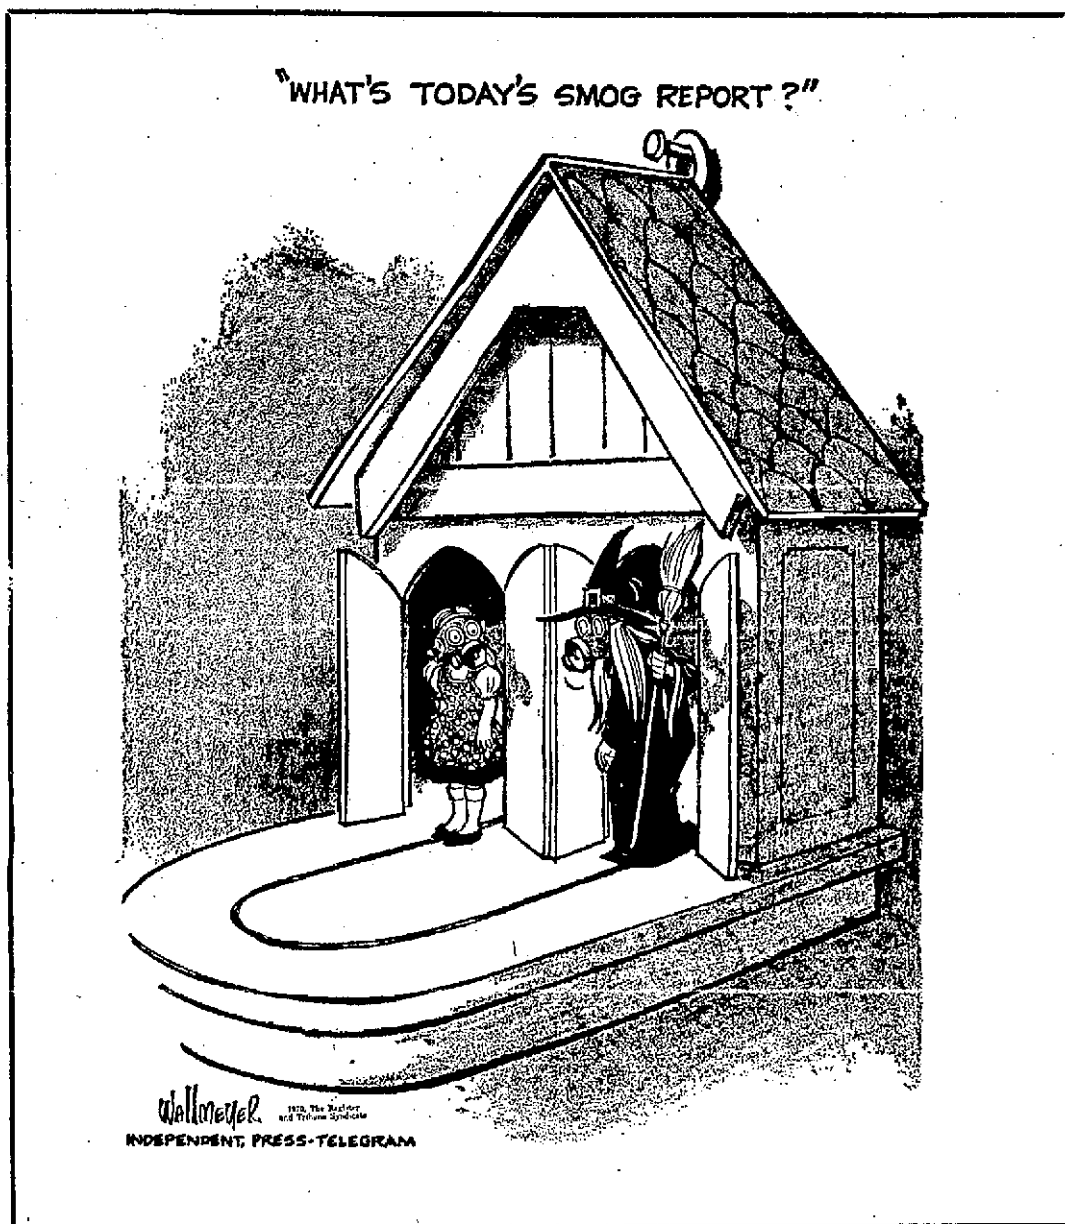

EDITOR:

I feel I should express my gratitude for those interested enough to gather the facts concerning the deaf and for bringing it to the attention of the public.

I have a son who is deaf and feel I know what is lacking, as those in the world of sound are appallingly ignorant concerning this type of handicap. Upon explaining to anyone I met or who came to the house what his problem was, it was usually met with complete blankness. All too often they are categorized as "mutes, dummies, or deaf and dumb," and then ensues a long explanation that their assumptions are wrong.

I sincerely hope the article was purchased by the public.

Long Beach MRS. EVELYN MOLLE

He'd rather be VP than 'right'

THE SAME MATERIAL that NBC newsmen Chet Huntley "brags about having on his shoes," said Vice President Spiro Agnew, characterizes the Huntley view of repression in this country.

Huntley recently used that redolent rhetoric in some remarks about Agnew; manure is what it was.

The Veep, a legend and face of a watch in his own time, made his re-entree at the urging of look-see, talk-show host Robert K. Dornan, resident young fogey at Channel 5. Dornan's 90-minute interview with Agnew was taped Tuesday for play last night.

THERE IS NO need to fear any repression in this country, Agnew said, adding that he has never seen such freedom of expression — within legal boundaries — as exists in this nation.

Despite his leading questions to the Vice President, Dornan did not succeed in locking his distinguished guest into his own right-wing corner. Agnew rejected "don't you think" sallies by Dornan that would require identified Communists to be labeled as such as their faces appear on TV screens, or an implied censorship of lyrics of some rock music.

For those needing more convincing that Vice President Agnew is a reasonable man, Dornan provided it. Agnew, vis-a-vis Dornan, came off as the moderate of the piece.

Agnew dealt with the "double-standard" ethics of liberal writers and editorialists, noting that "if I refer to the instigators of riots, disruption and illegal acts as effete snobs," it sends them in orbit — "not the words, but because I said them."

And when Sen. William J. Fulbright called Agnew an upstart and a smart aleck, Agnew said he saw no one criticize Fulbright.

INVECTIVE, as some call it, Agnew said, is simply a way for him to say to the people of the U.S. that all the new revolutionaries of overnight stature are not to be immune from strong criticism. "I want the U.S. to understand what and who they are . . . and what I think of them," no matter how many liberal editorial writers attack him.

Dornan asked Agnew's reaction to former Ambassador W. Averill Harriman's charge that Agnew used "Nazi tactics" in charging that several American diplomatic failures bore the unmistakable footprints of Averill Harriman.

Harriman, said Agnew, is used to the accolades of the Washington-New York axis of the intellectual community. But then they're not really intellectuals, he said, but "the most visceral people I've ever seen."

Harriman should not consider himself sacrosanct nor above reproach, said Agnew — "I criticized his performance on these assignments and I stand by my criticisms."

DORNAN ASKED Agnew if there is a generation gap in his house, with specific reference to 14-year-old Kim Agnew. "Kim and I," he said, "have become more close." He said she has certain opinions that not always agree with his but "we're getting along very well."

He doubted that Kim is distressed by innuendoes that the Vice President was responsible for some acts of college terrorism and the Kent State slayings.

"No reasoned words by a public official can cause this kind of tragedy," said Agnew. "The administration and faculties (of the schools) have somehow failed to protect the students against the outrageous conduct of a small minority . . . That is what brought the National Guard there (Kent) — not my words."

Agnew said he thought Kim has the right to listen to the kind of music she wants to although he is disturbed by the thrust of some of the acid rock music, "but it's worse to try to freeze out this peer group identification."

Dornan respectfully disagreed, noting that his own children had pointed out to him "a lot of pathetic brainwashing" in some of the rock lyrics.

Agnew said he does not quarrel with Dornan's conclusions but the response, rather than censorship, should be "making sure the values we want to teach are more attractive."

THE VICE PRESIDENT agreed that the tiger cage imprisonment in South Vietnam is "a very bad invasion of human rights," but pointed out that the last installation of any government to get proper attention is its prisons. But "why this outpouring of terrible wrath" against us and our allies while remaining oblivious to what our enemies are similarly doing?

Polls which show Agnew in majority regard and esteem are gratifying, the Vice President said, but such moods and readings are transitory. He is more concerned, he said, about a poll which is weighted toward the "unpopular" side. "It's important to me to try to rectify that."

Agnew had a word on radicals. First he deplored the steady diet of downgrading the country that the young are fed on, but is hopeful that with maturity they will not retain these "distorted images."

None ever accused us of fixing an election, he said, and the Constitution is still valid. "There is room to accommodate any radical who can persuade a majority."

Wit of Will Rogers still soars high

IN THE SUMMER of 1935 a drawing cowboy from Oologah, Okla., who had risen from Indian Territory to stage, screen and writing fame, flipped a coin.

He let it decide that he should accompany Wiley Post on a flight around the world. The small plane crashed over the tundra in Alaska and crashed in the fog. His widow, Betty, never knew whether the coin had turned heads or tails. It was enough for her that Will Rogers had said, "See, I win." People who knew him — senators, congressmen, presidents, kings and blue collar workers — always took him at his word.

The plane went down on Aug. 15, 1935, but the man from Oologah is still soaring in fact and legend as the humorist closest to the American public in this century.

He began in a Broadway show, twirling his lariat and cracking jokes, looking shy and innocent under the tangle of his hair. After that it was Hollywood, a series of comedies that never caught the prairie ranges of his homespun jests, and a daily column which a lot of the nation's editors were smart enough to present on Page One as an antidote to war, depression and the general ills of humanity.

Will's short, grinning essays rarely missed the mark. On stage, his lariat roped thin air. In print the lasso of his wit brought down the fatted calves of sham, and hypocrisy. Here are samples:

FEDERAL BUDGET — A mythical beanbag. Congress votes mythical beans into it and then tries to reach in and pull real beans out.

CONGRESS — Washington papers say, "Congress is deadlocked and can't act." I think that is the greatest blessing that could befall this country.

CONVENTIONS — If our government is by the people, how is it that the candidate with the most votes by the people going into a presidential convention never gets nominated? . . . The same fellows make insurance policies and political platforms. What they say on one page, they can deny on the other.

VETERANS — If they really wanted to honor the boys, why don't they let them sit in the stands and have the people march by?

STANDARD OF LIVING — We sure are living high. Our children are delivered to school in automobiles but whether that adds to their grades is doubtful. Rail splitting produced an immortal president in Abe Lincoln but golf on 29,000 courses hasn't produced even a good congressman.

CAMPAIGNS — You've got to admit that each party is worse than the other. The one that's out always looks the best . . . I guess the truth can hurt you worse in an election than about anything that could happen to you.

TRAINS — Garfield was assassinated waiting for a train . . . But he is not the first casualty as thousands have starved to death waiting for them.

DEMOCRATS — The nation never looked like it was to face a worse winter — birds, geese, Democrats and all perishable animals are already huddled up in three or four states down South . . . I think we can with the help of some progressive young Democratic governors and senators and congressmen; make this thing into a party instead of a memory.

REPUBLICANS — The Democrats take government as a joke and the Republicans take it seriously but run it like a joke . . . They only vote for our gang when they are starved out. We fatten 'em up and then they turn Republican again.

PEOPLE — Nobody wants to be called common people, especially common people.

PUBLIC INDIFFERENCE — Henry Ford is wrong when he says that 90 per cent of the people are satisfied. Ninety per cent of the people are not satisfied. It's just got so that 90 per cent of the people don't give a damn.

Columnists on the opinion pages are chosen to represent diverse viewpoints and do not necessarily reflect the editorial position of this newspaper.

WILL ROGERS knew when to mix tenderness with his wit. Years ago Charles Russell, Montana's premiere artist of the Old West, asked Will to write a foreword for a book, "Trails Plowed Under." But before Rogers could oblige Russell died. So Will fulfilled the request in the form of a letter. Some will say it was corny. Others will appreciate a sentiment that could have been the epitaph of William Penn Adair Rogers, part Cherokee and all American. Here is most of it:

"There ain't much news here to tell you. You know the Big Boss sent a hand over and got you so quick, Charlie. But, I guess he needed a good man pretty bad. I hear they been workin' short handed over there pretty much all the time. I guess it's hard for him to get hold of good men.

"They're just scarce everywhere . . . I bet you hadn't been up there three days until you had cut your old pencil and was drawing something funny about some of the old punchers.

"I bet you Mark Twain and Bill Nye and Whitcomb Riley and a whole bunch of those old joshers was just waiting for you to pop up with the latest ones.

"What kind of a bird is Washington and Jefferson? I bet they are regular fellows when you meet 'em, ain't they? Most big men are . . .

" . . . Well, when you are thanking the women folks, you jest tell the sweet looking little old lady that you knew her boy back on a outfit.

"Well, I can't write anymore, Charlie, the darn paper is all wet. It must be raining in this old bunkhouse . . .

"From your old friend, Will."

ON GUARD IN DETROIT
After the riots, what next?

Detroit awaits new life —or riot and collapse

By JERRY M. FLINT

DETROIT — Three years ago a whirlwind swept this city, burning, looting, killing, the nation's worst urban riot. It ended with a pledge by whites — big business, big labor, government — to solve the problems of the past while building a new Detroit.

Today, if there is a mood in this city, it is one of waiting — a calm in the center of that whirlwind. It is not necessarily another riot that they are waiting for. It could be a furious burst of life that would create a new city in the image of its inheritors, the blacks, or it could be a final collapse of Detroit as a fit place to live.

But waiting is the mood.

The pledges of July 1967 are unredeemed. And today the polarization between blacks and whites appears sharper, while white liberals have largely abandoned the central city, giving up influence and interest.

But to the city's blacks the riot was not a disaster, but a liberation, an unleashing of spirit. If you forget the death and destruction it was "an exhilarating feeling of recognition," said William Patrick Jr., who heads New Detroit, the city's Urban Coalition.

The list of unredeemed pledges is lengthy:

Rebuilding in the riot area? There has been practically none.

"Urban renewal is an eight-year process," said Detroit's mayor, Roman Gribbs. "The process takes time. Thirty years from now the inner city will be rebuilt."

Housing? Practically no lower income housing has been built. A business-labor coalition which talked of building thousands of homes has produced only 220. And with the city filled with vacant lots and vacant blocks the housing authority complained it could find no land.

Crime? Robberies in the first half of this year, totaling 10,429, were 43 per cent ahead of the total number a year ago, and the 210 murders showed a 5 per cent gain, reinforcing an atmosphere of fear.

The federal government? The symbols of the federal government's commitment to rebuild Detroit are empty, weed-filled blocks in the downtown area, cleared and sold to the government which pledged to put up federal buildings.

The Urban Coalition? The New Detroit committee "failed for 2,000 reasons," said a former staff member about its goal to rebuild the social fabric of the city. "It became a funding agency" instead of a catalyst pushing for action, he complained.

But there also are sharp signs of progress, particularly for blacks.

Today there is a black bank in Detroit when three years ago there was none, and three black car dealerships where there was one in 1967. The average pay in the automobile industry — a major employer of blacks in Detroit — has climbed from $3.87 an hour in 1966 to $4.40 an hour today.

The mood of the blacks has changed, said Murray Jackson, a black community college president and political leader.

"Blacks are impatient with the yo-yoing around. There's a new attitude, a new militancy.

"Like Stokely said, first we'll get ourselves together and then maybe there will be a way" to work with the whites, said Jackson.

L. A. C. SAYS

Quite a change from the past

By L. A. COLLINS Sr.

JUST 60 YEARS AGO Andrew Carnegie gave $25,000,000 to establish the Carnegie Foundation. In succeeding years he gave many times this amount. Result was free public libraries sprang up in cities, towns and hamlets all over the nation. It caused the greatest public interest in libraries ever shown in the nation.

Carnegie was a poor immigrant who came to this country to make his fortune. He made it by developing our great steel industry. He brought out the great technological advances of the time. While making his fortune he also was largely responsible for the foundation of our industrial supremacy throughout the world. He was ruthless in business when it took ruthlessness to overcome the inefficiencies of an industry and an era.

During the same period John D. Rockefeller was building his oil empire. He became the symbol of ruthless competition. The amount of his private fortune has never been disclosed. But from that fortune over a billion dollars has been used by the Rockefeller Foundation. Throughout the world disease and epidemics have been wiped out by the scientists from that foundation. It is today probably the greatest single force for good in the world.

HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS of dollars were set aside for the Henry Ford Foundation. That money is spent for scientific research seeking to better the lot of the common man throughout the world. The money comes from profits made by Henry Ford when he pioneered in giving the people a low priced car while doubling the wages then paid workers.

These are only three of hundreds of examples of how great wealth has been used. Under the same careful business judgment used in accumulating the wealth it is being spent to help the people of this nation and the world. The foundations are so set up they will go on for centuries unless stopped by government. But no more great fortunes can be accumulated as were these.

When Rockefeller and Carnegie were accumulating great fortunes there was no income tax. When they received a million in a year they could keep it. In this way they built fortunes of hundreds of millions over a quarter century. Today most of them would pay out over 80 per cent of those yearly incomes as taxes. If Carnegie had $10,000,000 a year income over his living expenses he could have saved that first $25,000,000 in 30 months. On the same basis today, after taxes, it would take 150 months or 12½ years to accumulate $25,000,000.

SOME OF THE GREAT fortunes accumulated over the past 50 years have been accumulated by individuals selling stocks or other assets on which they pay only a 25 per cent capital gain tax. Or they give these assets to charities that pay no tax. But the above example indicates how great fortunes were accumulated before the income tax.

It is right that great incomes be heavily taxed. We have no other way of financing government which has become so expensive. But we wonder if government will ever do as much for the welfare of the people as do these foundations dedicated to serving the people. We may well wonder what great service to the people could be had if government was organized and administered with the same efficiency that is found in many of these foundations.

SUPPORTS FIRE FIGHTER GOALS

L.B. Fire Buffs Expanding

BY GEORGE LAINE
Staff Writer

The Long Beach Fire Buffs, part of a national organization dedicated to making the community aware of the services rendered by firemen, are expanding.

The Buffs have taken solid stands on keeping Fourth of July fireworks out of the community and supporting wage increases for Fire Department personnel in recent months here.

Jerry Colton, president of the L. B. Fire Buffs, said that communications with other Fire Buffs organizations have given the local chapter ideas on how all segments of the community can be aligned behind firefighter goals.

"Firemen are a vital community resource," said Colton. "We have been heartened by the public displays of support for these men in recent weeks."

Other Long Beach Fire Buffs officials include Jack Austin, secretary, and Newton L. (Mac) McLaughlin, treasurer.

The Long Beach Fire Buffs were certified by the International Association of Fire Buff Associations during the international convention held July 21 in Indianapolis, Ind.

The LBFB said it would hold its next meeting at 7 p.m., on the third Tuesday of September, probably at the Elks Club.

Persons seeking information on the Fire Buffs should write to Long Beach Fire Buffs, c/o J. G. Colton, 800 South St., Long Beach, Calif., 90805.

TO SPEED THE VOTE COUNT Orange County will turn to this Cubic Votronics System. A simple to use marker places a dot rather than the traditional X on the ballot. Left, the voter holds a marker and presses down. Right, the pre-inked marker registers a choice.

Orange Co. Will Test High-Speed Ballot Counter on Nov. 3 Election

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

A new mechanical vote-counter will be tried by Orange County in the Nov. 3 general election — hopefully to untangle a tabulation snarl which kept totals a secret for a record 301 hours after the June 2 primary.

County Clerk William E. St. John said Saturday he thinks the Votronics vote counter will speed the count.

He said it will augment the Coleman electronic vote tabulators the county bought six years ago — but which seem to get slower with each election mainly because there are so many more ballots to count.

The Coleman system, approved for accuracy but sadly deficient in speed, was engineered to handle 300,000 ballots. Last June 2, the county had 555,570 voters — but only 67 per cent of them cast ballots.

Through a combination of circumstances, including a power failure which knocked out one of the two Coleman tabulators, the counting process lagged.

The county agreed to lease 40 Votronics vote counters for the general election. It will cost $60,000 for the year; if the county wants to buy them, the $60,000 will be considered a down-payment credit, according to officials of the Cubic Corp. of San Diego, the manufacturers.

The 40 machines cost $1.7 million on the market.

THERE ARE some similarities between the Coleman and Votronics systems. Both use a paper ballot, which must be marked with a special-ink stamping marker in the voting booth.

The Coleman uses a light green ink for its dot; it is inked with the familiar stamp pad in the voting booth. The Votronics uses a black dot, fed by an ink supply in its spring-actuated marker.

It was this kind of marker the Coleman system had six years ago; they promptly broke, and pandemonium reigned in many precincts until new supplies were delivered.

St. John doesn't look for any such problems with the Votronics pen. They're "more sturdy," he said, adding that the voters "understand their use now; they didn't with the Coleman system."

THE CLERK said he'd push the Votronics system to its rated capacity of 40,000 ballots per hour, if they can be handstacked and fed into the machines at that speed.

The results are produced differently: the Coleman system punches cards, which are fed into a computer for a print-out. The Votronics systems delivers results on a 2½-inch-wide paper tape.

Both therefore, have an "audit trail" by which recounts can be made.

NEW DESTROYER BEARS HIS NAME

Tribute to Man Who Gave Life

The Navy paid its highest tribute Saturday to Hospitalman Francis Hammond, who 17 years ago won the Medal of Honor for valor as he gave up his life for his country.

"THE TRADITION of courage and intrepid dedication shown by Francis Hammond is needed badly today by America and the Navy," said Flotilla 7 Cmdr. Worth H. Bagley, presiding over the commissioning of a sleek new destroyer escort bearing the dead hero's name.

"It is high quality men of Francis Hammond's caliber the Navy needs and is proud to have in it," Rear Adm. Bagley added.

The Navyman's mother, Mrs. Elvira Hammond of Bakersfield, travelled 2,500 miles from Alexandria, Va., for the ceremonies. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Agnes Nugent.

Rear Adm. H.V. Bird, Los Angeles-Long Beach base commander, read the commissioning directive and at 10:58 a.m. the USS Francis Hammond joined the Pacific Fleet and was based officially in Long Beach.

The 225-man crew manned the ship in brisk double time after the Star Spangled Banner heralded the raising of the Stars and Stripes, Union Jack and commissioning pennant.

CMDR. JOHN E. Elmore, the first captain, had previous duty in Long Beach aboard the nuclear frigate USS Truxtun and the destroyer Turner Joy.

"We will never fail for lack of trying," he told his crew. "Our mission is to preserve freedom and keep peace but if we have to fight, fight we will for the goal of peace."

The ship, designed for antisubmarine warfare, is 438-feet long and displaces 4,100 tons. She is armed with tube and rocket-launched torpedoes and a five-inch gun mount.

A delegation of 100 was present from Bakersfield's Navy League Council, which adopted the ship.

Jim Sughrue, president, said the city had designated Saturday as a special day for the ship.

Todd Shipyards, San Pedro, built the Knox-class vessel.

the new fabrics are not tested before they are made into clothes.

The existence of the arbitration panel has had a degree of psychological effect upon even nonmember cleaners, Orr says. When an unhappy customer takes a problem to the panel and gets a ruling, in most cases the nonmember also abides by the board ruling, he adds.

IN THE CASE of the faulty new appliance, your warranty may be meaningless and unenforceable legally. A reputable dealer, however, usually will give you a replacement.

If you are not provided a replacement, there are these several alternatives suggested by Harold Eisenberg, of the legal aid society:

- 1—Write to the manufacturer, including proper identification of the article and describing exactly what happened. If you like, send a copy to your attorney and your newspaper.
- 2—Tell the city attorney.
- 3—Have an attorney write a forceful letter for you.
- 4—File in small claims court, if the value is under $300.

The State attorney general's office would like to know about your problem even though it can't prosecute, says Chief Deputy Charles O'Brien.

"We often write to offending manufacturers or dealers," he says, "and we get good results in many individual cases."

"We go into action whenever we find a widespread trend, but we cannot prosecute for individuals."

IN NEWPORT BEACH Badham Bill Asks New Highway Plan

Assemblyman Robert E. Badham, R-Newport Beach, said Saturday that his bill to eliminate the Newport Beach section — as presently mapped — of the proposed Coast Freeway will not halt construction of the freeway.

The bill, he said, merely requires engineers to find a new route through town.

He said he authored AB 1701 after almost 20,000 residents of Newport Beach petitioned him to eliminate the freeway along the present Coast Highway.

The Newport Beach City Council also asked for elimination of this route, holding that it should be atop the bluff roughly at the Costa Mesa-Newport Beach boundary. Costa Mesa residents object, preferring the Coast Highway routing.

Major complaint of Newporters is that the route approved by the state Highway Commission would bisect the city and destroy already-developed business and residential properties.

Defiling Flag Sentence Set for Student

A UCLA student convicted of defacing and defiling the American flag insists he likes his country but thought he had only bunting.

Thomas J. Ruch, 21, of Santa Monica, was arrested when a police officer noticed that his books and lunch were strapped to the rear of his motorcycle in a bag made from the flag.

Ruch told Municipal Court Judge David J. Aisenon Friday that he had the highest respect for the flag. In fact, Ruch said, when his girlfriend gave him the bag he thought she had made it out of bunting.

Aisenon returned the misdemeanor verdict and set sentencing for Sept. 11.

DEVIL CULT TRIAL OFFICIALS SILENCED

By BOB GEIVIT
Staff Writer

A tight gag was slapped Saturday on official comments about members of a devil-worshipping cult charged with two brutal murders in Orange County.

Judge James F. Judge of the Orange County Superior Court issued what he conceded to be the toughest restrictions ever drafted against pretrial publicity in the sensational case.

It involves the ax-murder of Jerry Wayne Carlin, 21, a Santa Ana gas station attendant, and the fatal knifing of pretty Mrs. Florence Nancy Brown, 31, an El Toro schoolteacher whose body was dismembered during Satanic sacrifices.

Steve Hurd, 20, a gangling moustachioed confessed "devil worshipper," who headed the Sons of Satan motorcycle club, is charged with the murders. He is from Santa Ana.

Arthur "Moose" Hulse, 16, an overweight youth from Garden Grove; Herman H. Taylor, 17, of Santa Ana; Christopher "Gypsy" Gibboney, 17, of Portland, Ore.; and Melanie Ann Daniels, 31, of Santa Ana, are co-defendants.

The Orange County Grand Jury indicted Hurd, Hulse and Taylor on charges of hacking Carlin to death June 2, and which linked Hurd, Taylor and Gibboney with the bloody butchering of Mrs. Brown June 3. Mrs. Daniels was charged with being an accessory in both murders.

Judge Judge held that "to assure the defendants a fair trial," the clamp-down on pretrial publicity was necessary.

He noted that "this case has received extensive news media coverage," and he insisted that his order forbidding officials to make statements about the case "is compatible" with ... constitutional guarantees of a free press.

His gag order, however, was applied to private citizens as well as to public officials, the attorneys involved, and their aides.

The court included "any grand jury ... any witness having appeared before the grand jury ...

any person subpoenaed to testify at the trial" in the ban.

None may "express outside of court an opinion or make any comment for public dissemination as to the weight, value or effect of any evidence ... nor shall they discuss any testimony which has been given."

Judge Judge also limited identification of prospective witnesses, and discussion of their probable testimony.

He said he would not limit authorities from giving "factual statements" of circumstances of the arrest, quoting from records of the court, or public documents, or reporting on any judicial proceeding if done in open court.

Officials also may disclose requests for assistance in obtaining evidence or locating witnesses, Judge Judge decided.

Grand jury transcripts of the case, normally open to the public as soon as charges are filed, were sealed "until 10 days after the court delivers copies to each defendant."

The judge said he might extend the transcript ban "pending trial" if the defendants demand it.

80 Blind Youngsters on Cruise

A HELPING HAND FOR YOUNG SAILOR REGINA BRINK
Jerry Moorland Helps Her off Boat at Tour's End

By AIRLINE SHERER
Staff Writer

Regina Brink, a pretty 8-year-old from Long Beach, is blind, but Saturday she took a cruise aboard a 60-foot yacht and "saw waves, foam, sharks and birds trailing a fishing boat."

Regina was one of 80 blind or part blind youngsters from the Braille Institute of America who participated in a sea-going adventure sponsored for the seventh time by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, Division V.

EARLY SATURDAY morning at Marina del Rey, the youngsters boarded 16 boats owned by members of the auxiliary and the Del Rey Yacht Club.

After a three-hour cruise around the Palos Verdes Peninsula and Point Fermin, they arrived at the Coast Guard's Terminal Island base. From there, they went to Long Beach Recreation Park for a picnic.

"Many of us have changed our ideas about the handicapped. Before these cruises, I had never been around blind children. I always thought you had to be careful and solicitous toward them. I've discovered they are very self-sufficient," said Capt. John Eppink of Division V.

Mike Horron, youth supervisor for the Braille Institute in Los Angeles, said kids enjoy the cruise.

"MORE IMPORTANT, it helps them discover what the sighted world is like and lets them have the same experiences as their sighted friends," he said.

On board ship, the youngsters learned to know objects their eyes would never see. They wandered from bow to stern finger-finger lines, stroking compasses and radios and exploring other equipment.

Auxiliary volunteers, Sea Scouts, teenage volunteers and staff from the Braille Institute served as the youngsters' eyes and described things and places of interest along the way.

"Our guide described the pelicans, fish and sailboats he saw," said Marsha Harrison, 19, of Long Beach.

"WE 'SAW' Marineland and Ports of Call," said Mike Leon, 17, of Long Beach. "The trip was both fun and educational. It's the only way to go. The skipper let me steer the boat. It was like cranking something. The wheel was like a bicycle wheel; it had spokes."

Leslie McCracken, 7, of Montebello, got a chance to work a megaphone.

"I pushed a button and talked, and the megaphone made my voice louder," Leslie, whose parents own a fishing boat, scrambled over the boat like a veteran seaman.

"I WENT UP on the bow and walked around the two decks, she said. "And you know what I found, a Siamese cat named Sammy, and he was seasick."

Sammy wasn't the only landlubber on the cruise. A few of the youngsters got seasick or fell asleep because of the antimoion pills they were given.

Little Regina admitted the motion of the boat made her sick, "but not for very long."

Assuming a grownup tone, she said primly, "I found the ride very relaxing."

NEW SKIPPER

Cmdr. Robert H. Sullivan has taken command of the Long Beach destroyer USS Henderson from Cmdr. Robert A. Mesler. The new skipper comes from a Washington assignment while Cmdr. Mesler goes to the Naval War College. The Henderson has just completed a deployment to Vietnam.

NEW YORK — Pearl Bailey and David Merrick had an amusing feud for a while based on Pearl leaving "Hello, Dolly!" in Dallas while the show went on to Milwaukee — with Merrick twisting his mustache suspiciously and asking, "Just how sick was Pearl May anyway?"

Pearl said she got well right away — as soon as she got away from David.

It smoothed out at the Miss Universe pageant in Miami Beach when they were two of the 11 judges — but not speaking.

Merrick was interviewing the contestants and at the finish one of the executives asked "Has everybody talked to Mr. Merrick?"

Pearl sang out, "I haven't talked to him, and he ain't talked to me, either."

Merrick grinned and started talking to her round-about . . . through me, whom he hadn't been talking to, either. "Ask her about her health," he suggested.

"Didn't need one pill after I left the show. Got cured of my Merrick's disease and I'm fine," she said.

PEARL WENT ON to say she likes Merrick. "I love him and I think he loves me. My daughter passed him somewhere and she was hurt. He didn't smile. I told her he doesn't smile."

(Merrick feels that if you're around actors much, you don't have a lot to smile about.)

Pearl was happy at being invited to the White House. "I'm not taking him along like I did the last time," she said.

"She stole a chair the last time," Merrick needed.

Pearl laughed. She did take away a chair. She didn't steal it. She just sort of suggested she wanted a souvenir and President Nixon was soon urging her to take the chair with her inasmuch as she had a pretty good grip on it and wasn't showing any sign of giving it up.

"When does your TV series start?" we asked Pearl.

"January, '71," Pearl said.

"Will you have Merrick on your show?"

"NO — NO!" she cried — then, thinking it over, she said, "Yes, yes, he's my first guest. I'll force him to smile. It'll be so DIFFERENT!"

And it could happen. "He kids a lot," Pearl said. "Whether he's kidding, I'm not kidding. I like him sincerely and I think he sincerely likes me."

Rossini's 'L'Occasione' Fine in Grove

By DANIEL CARIAGA Music Critic

"Opportunity Makes the Thief, or, An Exchange of Baggage" ("L'Occasione fa il ladro, ossia, Il Cambio della valigia") was Rossini's seventh opera, first produced in Venice in late November, 1812. It falls between "La Pietra del paragone" and "Il Signor Burchino," two now rarely performed works we have been lucky enough to see in recent seasons, thanks to enterprising university opera workshops in this area.

We are lucky to be able to see "L'Occasione," this weekend (your last chance is tonight at 8:30), thanks workshop, the one run by to another aggressive local Hans Lampl at Cal State, Long Beach. Together with Lockrem Johnson's brief and poignant "A Letter to Emily," the early Rossini work forms the centerpiece of this summer's "Concerts in the Grove" series on this hillside behind CSLB's Soroptimist House.

NOT TO BEAT around the grove, I think this double bill is the most successful operatic program conductor Lampl and his colleague, stage director John Noschese, have produced these last four summers. The two works are delightful and complementary, the double-cast young-singers as talented and promising a group as any local workshop can display, and the productions easy to look at and smoothly executed.

Through a combination of chemistry and craftsmanship, Lampl and Noschese, with help from set and costume designers Leslie and Carol Bliss, have fashioned stylish dramatic and comedic productions, and have elicited from their singers easy, unmannered, clearly delivered performances.

As must always be the case when experience and inexperience occupy the same stage, there are some unevennesses here: occasional flat singing, mushy pronunciation, or unpolished line-reading. Yet the overall standard is high, and certain of the oval characterizations really impressive — for this training-level.

Robert Gray, who has participated in Grove Opera since the first productions in 1967, provides one of these as the young Count in "L'Occasione." So does James Cowell, as Parmenione, in the same work; in fact, Cowell here gives his most convincing, promising performance to date.

In "Emily," the Friday night cast was led by Patricia Zieg (who alternates with Lonna Arklin), a sympathetic and femininely-strongly Emily. Her helpful collaborators were Sharon Jensen, Lee Vail, and Donald Combs. Lockrem Johnson's attractive score is so fluently theatrical, we must wonder why other local opera producers have not brought it to us before now.

THERE ARE other comers, notably Judy Kuelen, SALZBURG, Austria — Austrian critics are complaining because the 50th Salzburg Festival, opening today, features only one new musical production of Verdi's opera "Otello."

Opera Fare Criticized for 'Senility'

SALZBURG, Austria — Austrian critics are complaining because the 50th Salzburg Festival, opening today, features only one new musical production of Verdi's opera "Otello."

Karl Loebl, writing in the Vienna Express, compared the anniversary season to a "tired and senile man of 50 years," another charged a "virtual lack of ideas."

In reply, festival officials said none of the 10 other operatic productions to be given are more than three years old. One official explained that the directors scheduled the new productions gradually to spread the cost and still have them all ready by 1970.

The criticism has had no effect on the box office. Orders have been coming in from all over the world since the 1969 festival closed, and most of the 111 performances to be given in 36 days have been sold out for weeks.

Stuart Erwin, Andrea Holycross, and Michael Conney, all of whom seemed comfortable in fulfilling the demands of Rossini's score.

'FIXER,' 'ANGEL,' 'BLACK...' ETC. More of Malamud in Movies

By A. H. WEILER New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Bernard Malamud is getting to be the grooviest, moviest author around. A film version of his novel "The Fixer" appeared last season, the movie of his short story "The Angel Levine" opens at the Little Carnegie Thursday, and adaptations of his "Black is my Favorite Color" and "The Assistant" have also been announced. Now Malamud's latest book, "Pictures of Fidelman," has been purchased by producers Sulfat Miller and Elliott Kastner. They're playing it cagey when it comes to saying how much they've paid for the movie rights to the book, but they do admit that Malamud will participate in the profits of the film, which will be shot in Italy next year.

flipped for "Fidelman," which consists of six stories about an artist who picks up and moves from New York to Italy.

"It's a masterpiece, both as a comic and dramatic delineation of a really unusual man," he says. Well, no wonder he's in such a hurry to get it down on celluloid.

Malamud isn't commenting on the screen editions of "The Fixer" or "The Angel Levine," but he does wonder out loud about the fate of "The Assistant." Elliott Gould and Jack Borsky have had this story of a Jewish grocer, his sensitive daughter and the gentle with whom she falls in love on their production slate for more than a year.

Contract Post to Col. Nunn

Col. Donald G. Nunn, a 23-year Air Force veteran and former chief of staff of the Space and Missile Systems Organization, last week was named commander of the Air Force Contract Management Division in Inglewood.

Col. Nunn replaces Brig. Gen. Warner E. Newby, who has assumed duties as director of the C-5A program office at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio.

AFCMD supervises over $40 billion worth of government contracts, including the giant C-5A transport, the Minuteman III ICBM, the F111 and more recently the F15 air superiority fighter and the B1 bomber.

Col. Nunn is a graduate of Hamline University, St. Paul, Minn., and the Air Command and Staff College. He is married to the former Clara Garrett of Fountain Inn, S.C. They have three daughters.

2d Armored to Mark End of WW 2

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Insight is your strongest personal need in the coming year. Material needs are solved by consistent work. The natural drift of circumstances brings you opportunity to express what is within you. Creative talents, according to your individual endowment, can be brought into meaningful expression soon. Today's natives are searching for ultimate truth, may make many sacrifices for their study.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your week begins with a burst of energy. Start early. Your intellectual grasp of things spurs you to do something immediate about them. With care, please.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Ideas and information come at you thick and fast. Take what you can cope with; the rest can be handled later. Protect yourself against undue fatigue.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): This active day begins a productive week of congeniality and personal success. You can persuade people to do almost anything for the time being. Be selective — it pays.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Investigate the history and reasons for the present state of affairs. You come into possession of very interesting bits of know-how. Incidentally.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Fresh ideas bring you much nearer some long cherished hope during the next few days or weeks. Begin with the core of the project. Its intuitive concept.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): More people are in the act than you realize. Some are helpful. Give it thought, and you do not trump your own or your partner's ace, so to speak.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Personal projects thrive. You have easier access to resources, and changes are available within your specialties. But don't go beyond them into the unfamiliar.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): All sorts of things now show their flaws suddenly, with little provocation. Let everything that is falling apart finish doing so, then plan replacement or repairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some privately support your views. Speak out on whatever you really believe in, and eventually you are endorsed by these people.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You draw attention, recognition. Step right up and ask for increased rewards. Put in a full day's effort. Change pace this evening, meditate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What you do today is of unplanned importance, so do it well. Be selective in seeking cooperation. It is a long day with overtime or further developments this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your material and spiritual resources are well replenished. Improve your home, your way of life. Habits are susceptible to firm discipline or change.

Dreams know no color line

By DIANNE SMITH
Staff Writer

When it comes to the hopes she holds for her children, the color of a mother's skin doesn't matter.

Nor does her economic status. She will say, "I want them to be happy, independent and secure."

Or so it was when four black mothers were asked their dreams for the future of their children.

They come from varied backgrounds. One can be described affluent, one is middle class and the other two are poor. Two completed college, the others did not finish high school.

Equal opportunity is possible in America today, according to the women, who believe their children already have more opportunities than they had while growing up.

But, as Mrs. William C. Barnes explained, "It's hard to project how the social conscience will swing. Things are improving, but a lot still depends on the person and his ability. Regardless, a college education is necessary."

Mrs. Barnes, a graduate of UCLA, has three sons, ages 11, 9 and 7. Her husband is dean of student affairs at Long Beach

Strings to sing at Starlight Serenade

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Jack Benny, if all goes well, will come to the Starlight Serenade Tuesday in Recreation Park to hear his good friend Dylana Jensen perform as soloist with Long Beach Symphony Orchestra.

A couple of weeks ago, Dylana interrupted her camping vacation to come to Hollywood for a taping session with Benny. The tape is for a video cassette, a new device which Motorola will distribute this fall to 5,000 hospitals and hotels. In color, the tape will reproduce through television sets.

The Benny-Dylana friendship started in 1966, a year after Dylana began studying the violin at the age of 4. Now, at 9, this dark-haired, dark-eyed little girl has the poise of a veteran performer. Since she gave her first recital when she was 5½, Dylana has been garnering honors and awards as routinely as other youngsters accept birthday and Christmas gifts.

The little violinist has played for Jascha Heifetz, David Oistrakh, Mehli Mehta, Isaac Stern. She was only 5 when Yehudi Menuhin first heard her play.

"He dropped to his knees to be at her eye level," recalled Dylana's mother. "Just think — this great, kind man knelt on the floor and taught her for 20 minutes. He said, 'Bring her to my school for gifted violinists in London.'"

FOR HER CONCERT TUESDAY at 8 p.m., Dylana will play "Scene de Ballet" by De Beriot and the first movement of "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra" by Mendelssohn.

At this first of three free summer Starlight serenades, the audience will welcome conductor Derck Hudson, English-born music director of the Cape Town Symphony in South Africa. In addition to the De Beriot and Mendelssohn works, Hudson will conduct the orchestra in "Semiramide" overture by Rossini, ballet music from "Le Cid" by Massenet, "Sheep May Safely Graze" by Bach-Walton and the first movement of "Romeo and Juliet" by Tchaikovsky.

As is customary, many families will come early to spread their picnic suppers on tables and green grass.

Earlier this week, Dylana came with her parents to Long Beach for rehearsal. The family lives in Sherman Oaks; Dylana is the fifth of Ana and Lee Jensen's six children.

Her parents credit the Suzuki teaching method for the development of Dylana's talent.

"Shinichi Suzuki of Japan believes that every child has a greater potential than is commonly recognized," See LITTLE VIOLINIST, Page W-8

Some jet to White House ball others go to Topolobompo

By PAT McDONNELL

A NIGHT TO REMEMBER — and you can be sure it will be by lucky Long Beach area guests in attendance — was the White House supper dance honoring Britain's Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

Jetting to Washington, D.C., on the invitation of David and Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Nixon were Loretta Lungren, Randy and Richard Ridder and Anthony C. du Pont.

"It was the kind of party every girl dreams of attending," enthused Loretta when she phoned her parents, Dr. John and Lorraine Lungren, after the ball. "It seemed perfectly natural for Tricia, David and Julie to be standing beside the Prince and Princess. Everything — the weather, cuisine, entertainment and setting was flawless."

Lucky A. C. du Pont danced with Princess Anne and says she was charming.

Randy and Rick Ridder came away from spectacular evening with good things to say about David Eisenhower — whom both found to be a "really nice, personable" host who's much more handsome than news cameras reveal.

Our Long Beach "tipsters" left the party at 2:30 a.m. while Princess Anne still was dancing to rhythms of the "Guess Who" musical contingent. "Best of all," reports one guest, "there wasn't an over supply of secret servicemen — and the food was GREAT!"

SHIP WRECK party at Frank and Mary Malan's 517 Ximeno address was the way Long Beach Masonic Lodge past masters and wives extended bon voyage wishes to Stan and Lorraine Davis who are enplaning to London with the Melvin Berhows for a 17-day cruise of the Mediterranean. Quartet will board the Canberra at Southampton and sail to Istanbul.

Garnering laughs for his desert isle garb was honor guest, Stan, attired in bib overalls, fisherman's hat, one rubber boot and a tennis shoe.

Clayton and Margaret Heinz were among partygoers penalized for not wearing ship wreck costumes — when they were forced to walk the plank to dressing rooms and put their clothing on backward.

Others partaking of grog and buffet spread were Roy and Mary Blakeney, Floyd and Luanna Eldred and Bea and Dora Grogger.

IF DOING YOUR THING is collecting foreign stamps — the people to cultivate are Shirley and Arthur Gottlieb. Reason being — they're staunch supporters of the American Field Service program — and this week are welcoming daughter, Stacey, home from a year in Chur, Switzerland, where she was an AFS exchange student. They're also corresponding with daughter, Randi, who's mid-way through an AFS sojourn in Artigas, Uruguay.

That's not all, folks, next month Shirley and Arthur will become parents of a bouncing 17-year-old AFS son, Norbert Landers of Wesel, Germany, whose arrival is much anticipated by their son, Greg, 15.

Still sorting out her impressions of a year in a quiet farming village in the shadow of the Alps is Stacey. Not only did she become fluent in German and Swiss, but pretty teen-ager learned to ski from her AFS sister, Christina.

"I didn't want to come back," she confides. "But with each new report of unrest in the States, I decided there was too much work to be done at home to enjoy the tranquility and beauty of Switzerland."

No doubt, the Gottlieb cousins, uncles and aunts will learn more about Stacey's experiences when they gather

Aug. 8 for golden wedding celebration honoring Joseph and Jennie Gottlieb in Pepperwood Avenue home of Bev and Norm (you guessed it) Gottlieb.

HAPPINESS TO Bernis Copeland is winning $750 in prizes on KTLA's "Movie Game." Bernis, who is taking up contests as a hobby, is gloating over the new refrigerator, washer-dryer and range she received on the TV show.

GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY was extended in El Dorado Park Estates by Hildi and Jim Fosberg when they threw a Filipino-style baby shower for Cynthia and Romeo Patriarca who became parents for the fifth time June 29 with arrival of son, Jonathan James.

Bamboo screens, tiki torches, palm fronds and arrangements of hibiscus provided a tropical setting for the surprise fest honoring Cynthia and Romeo who came to the United States from Manila 10 years ago.

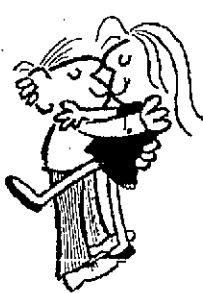

Honored couple had been told the party was in celebration of Hildi and Jim's wedding anniversary — and, consequently, they were the only guests not attired in South Seas garb. After opening gifts for the newest Patriarca, Cynthia and Romeo led partygoers in a traditional Filipino dance which calls for some mighty fancy footwork between bamboo sticks.

Tom and Rosemary Doran, Peggy and Jim Maxwell and Sandy and Tom Shadden were the first to sample marinated mushrooms brought by Barbara Graham. Others savoring Polynesian type hors d'oeuvres were Darryl and Sue Cannon, Henry and Norma Olague, Earl and Sally Dillon and Jerry and Sandy Short.

ALL ABOARD the train ride from Mexicali to Mazatlan had a ball reports Virginia Blake, who with husband Jim, masterminded a south-of-the-border holiday for 30-plus couples and a gaggle of 18 young 'uns.

Eight-day excursion was the first train experience for most of the young set including Elizabeth, James and John Blake. Highlights were a "crazy" bus ride to the remote Indian Village of Creel and viewing the awesome spectacle of Copper Canyon (reputed to be four times the size of Arizona's Grand Canyon).

So much fun was the trip that Virginia and Jim have invited everyone to bring their movies and slides to share at a weekend reunion in their Surfside beach house. Travel buffs reviewing hi jinx at Topolobompo include Margaret and Bill Wallace, Joanne Vermillion and Dru and Dean Grenier.

couple's children, Dale, Dwaine, Neil, Barbara and Betty Marie.

Wedding vows were exchanged in 1945 at the chapel at Gore Field Air Base, Great Falls, Mont., where Jean was a staff sergeant in the WACS and Howard was attached to the 38th Air Base Squadron Ferrying Command.

Joining in merriment will be Margaret and Harvey Woods, Ed and Inge Elstrom, Roy and Bertha Becker, Donna and Tom Tine, Harry and Edith Earnshaw, Dorothy David and the Herman Herschals.

SHARING THE same nest for 25 years is something for love birds to chirp about and that's what Jean and Howard Earnshaw will be doing today when well over 50 friends and relatives gather to mark their silver wedding anniversary.

Buffet dinner celebration will be in their 1908 Clark St. home where host and hostess duties will be handled by the League debs to bow at gala ball Saturday

Eight young ladies — all daughters and granddaughters of Assistance League of Long Beach members — will make their formal debut to society Saturday evening in the 11th annual Assistance League Presentation Ball.

Themed "Victoriana," the Crystal Foyer of the Pacific Terrace Center will be transformed into a Victorian garden — complete with twinkling lights, a gazebo and hurricane lamp centerpieces — for the summer affair.

Cocktails will be served on the terrace overlooking the ocean from 7 p.m. with the formal dinner, catered by Hans Danziger, to begin at 8:30.

Emcee for the evening is David Eagleston. Don Gill will introduce the presenters and Joe Moshay and his orchestra will provide music for dancing. Mrs. Theodore Webb is chairman of the event.

Debutantes who will be presented and their parents are Constance Luanne Green, Mr. and Mrs. George William Green Jr.; Molly Ann Macrate, Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Macrate; Nancy Ann Newhouse, Mr. and Mrs. George Braxton Newhouse; and Ellen Scott Prowell, Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Scott Prowell Jr.

Others are Kathleen Thurmond, Mr. and Mrs. James Phillip Thurmond Jr.;

Gretchen Joy Weed, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Edward Weed and Linda Ames Williams and Susan Tyler Williams, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilfred Williams.

PRE-BALL activities for the 1970 debutantes included a slumber party, an evening party with post-debs, a progressive dinner, sailing at the Long Beach Yacht Club and a luau.

Highlight of the season was the traditional Medallion Tea, held at Assistance League House.

There, amid yellow tulips and yellow and white daisies in the Victorian tradition, each debutante was presented with a golden medallion by her mother and introduced to the Assistance League by Mrs. Jesse Shackleton, Mother-Debutante chairman.

The provisional class of 1969-70 hosted the tea under the direction of Mrs. William Carls, Medallion Tea chairman.

Proceeds from the Presentation Ball benefit Assistance League philanthropies, including the Long Beach Girls Clubs, orthodontia aid, and a scholarship program.

Last year alone the league returned $48,000 to the community as well as 36,000 hours of volunteer service.

Frances the Cake Lady to do her baking magic

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Food Editor

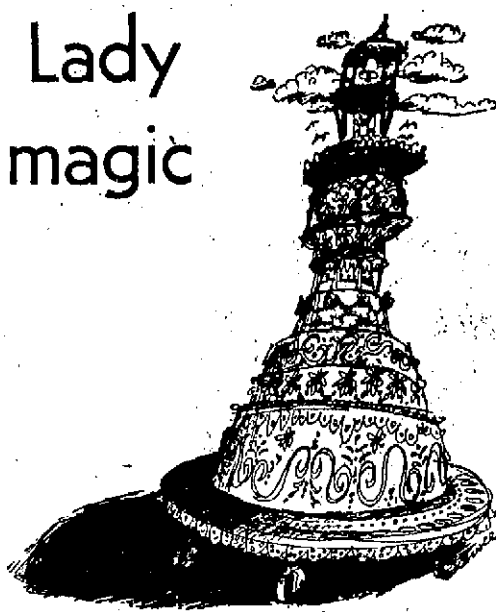

Frances the Cake Lady is coming to Bullock's Lakewood on Tuesday.

In Long Beach — the cake lady can only mean Frances Kuyper. She'll be demonstrating her skills from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Housewares Department of Bullock's, 5005 Clark Ave.

Since taking up cake decorating as a hobby 20 years ago, word has spread of the talented Mrs. Kuyper who has appeared on TV shows and while on camera designed personalized cakes for celebrities.

Youngsters have delighted with her Bozo the Clown cake, her Santa Claus cake and jolly turkey cake. Working with paper cones, pastry bag and butter cream frosting she can completely decorate a three-tiered wedding cake in 20 minutes.

To simplify her feats of cakery, Mrs. Kuyper has designed a magic mold cake pan which she'll be demonstrating Tuesday in Bullock's Lakewood.

Los Altos Center of Attraction

WHAT GIVES on the summer calendar? Showers, weddings, birthdays, family reunions? Seeking wardrobe ideas for school? Out here at Stearns and Bellflower, the shopping is the greatest. So is the parking — 1500 spaces. All this, and a U.S. Post Office, too.

THESE ARE BIG months for weddings. What, oh what, to give the bride? A keepsake gift to cherish forever is Lalique, the exquisite French crystal. Smit's of Long Beach has carried the line for years and proudly displays it in a front window. A perfect gift reflecting your own good taste as well as the bride's might be a dainty crystal ashtray with a perching frosted owl or dove. (Lalique is famous for its owls and fat-tummed birds.) We also noticed a serene madonna, and a wine set with glasses that ring like the sweetest bell you ever heard.

AN UNUSUAL, MOD gift for about-to-be-weds, executives' desk or your own home is the Electro Match, a new gimmick in lighters at Los Altos Stationers. About the size of a softball, it gives a light instantly and always when you pull out the fiberglass flint, which is about kitchen-match size, but there the similarity ends. It's wild. Somewhere in its mysterious innards, a live battery and fluid assure a never-fail light. It's yours for $20 in black, white, beige or green on a gold base. The manufacturer, clever fellow, claims it is "the perfect gift for a matchless friend."

CALL THEM dog collars or neckbands, they are really "now" — and what an idea for a personal shower, birthday, off to college gift, or just for yourself because you've been so good lately. The Musical Jewel Box has a fascinating assortment: silver or gold metal with meshy or link designs in a variety of widths, a sliver-slim loop with pearl drop, story hook black velvet ribbon bands centered at throatline with antique pins. These are on the dresser side. Then there are suede and regular leather neckbands for sportswear, some with tiny chain decor or dangling wood beads.

BREATHE EASILY, sisters young and slightly older. Boots are still right for fall. Who says? Serhan-Jacobs Shoe Salon, and if you know your shoes, you know this one carries the best brand names in shoes. But back to boots. Whether your skirt length is mini, midi or maxi, the calf-high boot continues fashionable. Serhan-Jacobs has some fall styles now, in quality crinkle patent and white patent. More are en route. Welcome prediction from Mr. Serhan: shoes for autumn and winter will have a softer, more genteel, less clunky look.

FACE IT, FRIENDS. The midi look is here. Now. At Leonard's Fashions, and the one we saw is stunning. Okay, so you have to get used to it. Better start now, with the new pant look with midi coat. Over classic navy pants you don a double breasted semi-fitted coat, deep pocketed and with silver buttons embellished with anchors. You know Jonathan Logan. Would Jon steer you wrong? Not in this case. It's a great look for campus, honeymoon or street. Confess now; won't it feel good to be warm again at outdoor events?

SHAGGIEST WOMAN in town must be the one we watched lug load after load of shag rugs into Quick 'n Clean self service laundry the other night. She was pretty smart. Since the establishment is open 24 hours, she chose a less busy time so's to use the two heavy duty machines that swallowed a couple 8x10's, plus several more of the 28 regular Maytags. In the cool and still of the night, she read a book while the rugs swished. The well-lighted corner location gave her peace of mind. No boob tube, no chattering children, no phone calls. It was a study in serenity.

CAN YOU OWN a successful business and still be an effective city councilman? You can if you are Ted Cruchley. Naturally it helps to have a son like Al manage the Los Altos Car Wash. A good location is a boon, not to mention a fair price structure. And behind all this is experience. Ted counts 35 years in the business, 19 of them in Long Beach. But you didn't know he has either had or helped establish car washes in places like Geneva, Switzerland, London, St. Petersburg, Fla., Cleveland, New York and San Francisco. It's Long Beach's good fortune he settled here.

FUNNY, we always thought fudge collapsed in the summer. Not so, avers Betty Martindale, manager of Helen Grace Candies. It holds up so well it's one of the most popular delicacies families send their servicemen. This week it's the Sweet of the Week at Helen Grace. Fudge is also included in the summer pack, along with toffee, divinity, bon bon coated nuts and fruit jellies. It's a thoughtful gift for the family whose camping equipment you borrowed, the friends who asked you to dinner, the relative in the hospital.

See you next Sunday, Jean

The Aces on bridge

IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

If only a player had the power to know when the opponents could make a slam! He could then make a preemptive bid, if at all possible. The chances would be overwhelming that either the opponents would not reach a slam bid or that, if they did, they would arrive at the wrong contract.

Many players feel preemptive bids, particularly opening preempts, should be made at the drop of a hat.

Recently, in a match against a strong Canadian team, Billy Eisenberg and Bobby Goldman of The Aces were faced with a difficult bidding problem when a featherweight three bid came their way on this deal:

small club. When East indicated a void by discarding a spade, Eisenberg was in trouble. He won the club, and led a small club toward the jack. West took the trick with his queen and continued with spades. Eisenberg simply could not win more than 11 tricks, scoring five clubs and two tricks in each of the other suits. He was hoping for some sort of squeeze, but that failed to materialize when West protected hearts and East diamonds.

After the hand was over, discussion centered around the probability of making six clubs. One club trick must certainly be lost. South can discard only two of his three red-suit losers on dummy's spades, leading to the loss of a second trick. He should but he won't! Six clubs can be made!

A heart is ruffed in the closed hand and dummy entered with a diamond for a second heart ruff. Then over to dummy with a second diamond. Now something very strange happens. This is the end position:

North leads his losing 10 of diamonds, and West must trump! West, perforce, must return a club, and South takes the last two tricks.

As you can see, Goldman was faced with a tough bidding decision. He felt there could be a slam and used two cue bids to find more about his partner's hand.

Eisenberg's rebid of five clubs promised a long suit. His five no-trump bid implied that he had nothing more to contribute and left the contract decision to Goldman. Goldman decided six no-trump was best.

Eisenberg won the spade opening in dummy, discarded a diamond, and led a

You can help

Each week the I, P-T Women's Section brings readers a list of volunteer opportunities. Those interested may call the Community Volunteer Office, an agency of the United Way, at 426-7171.

SPRECHEN SIE DEUTSCH?: If you do, there are two patients in a convalescent home who would greatly appreciate your friendly visits and conversation (in German, of course).

LEND AN EAR: Downtown agency needs the help of interviewers who have empathy and the capacity for listening and getting details.

SUMMER A DRAG? If you're at least 14 you can give your summer a lift by helping others. Pool attendants, counselors and coaches are still needed at many agencies. Also, a convalescent home is in the process of starting a candy-striper program and there is a need for more young people to join this group.

FINGERS RUSTY?: Get them back into shape and help out local agencies with typing. Manual and electric typewriters available.

CHILD'S PLAY: Pilot program in Long Beach needs volunteers to help with child care.

PROGRAM CHAIRMAN NEEDED: A group of older people in the downtown area need help with serving lunches on Wednesdays and with programming on Fridays.

LOOKING FOR ENTERTAINMENT?: A non-denominational singing group that features religious songs would like to be scheduled in the Long Beach area.

ZTA alums join drive to Save Our Scenery

Bottles, bottles everywhere, but not a drop to drink is problem confronting Mmes. John A. Williams, Patrick R. Vann and Richard Lee Farrell, Zeta Tau Alpha alumnae, as they send out an SOS to Save Our Scenery. Members and guests bidden to Saturday's summer brunch are asked to bring at least two empty, no deposit bottles to contribute to Lakewood's collection drive to buy trees. Mrs. Roscoe Howell will open her home, at 3845 Lime Ave., for the 11:30 a.m. event, with bridge completing the afternoon. Mrs. Vann or Mrs. Zona Lydig will take reservations.

A LOVELIER YOU

Built-in heat new

By MARY SUE MILLER

New cosmetics now turn on the heat, summer and winter, with pre-warmed foams and mists dispensed from aerosols.

Known as thermastatics, these products offer special advantages to the skin and hair.

The skin benefits from the use of ready-warmed facial cleanser and beauty oil. Experts agree that heat increases the deep-pore power of a cleanser and the penetration of oils and moisturizers.

After all—the steaming and sauna processes have a reputation for success in the long history of beauty care. Self-heated cosmetics seem a natural step in our time of instant shortcuts.

For several years the male contingent has enjoyed "hot" shaving creams that do a great job of softening whiskers and smoothing the skin. A lovely could not be blamed for borrowing such a cream, particularly if her leg complexion were weather or razor scuffed.

AKIN TO pre-heated products are a growing number of heat-activated types. In the category you find hair setting sprays that release protein conditioners along with extra hold when used with electric rollers. Other setting sprays react to dryers. And either a dryer or the sun gets a spray hair lighter to streaking. It's really kind of magical, this thermal stuff. And there's more to come. NEW BEAUTY FOR DRY SKIN

For ways to keep past-30 skin smooth and dewy, order my leaflet, New Beauty for Dry Skin. It tells in personalized steps how to cleanse, correct, protect and make up for dryness. AT WIT'S END

Oops--1.6 kids too many

By ERMA BOMBECK

For some strange reason, statistics show the average young married couple wants 3.6 children. (That's modern math for you.)

For reasons having to do with overcrowding the earth, population control activists say this is 1.6 too many.

The other night at the dinner table I surveyed all 5.6 of us, and announced in my usual tactful, sensitive way, "one of you has to go!"

No one stopped eating as they've been threatened before. "I'm serious this time," I said. "This is a two-children-four-member family world. There isn't an industry that considers the spare 1.6 child. Tables have four chairs, a badminton set 4 rackets, bunk beds come in two's, muffins four to a package, sedans with only four doors."

"Pass the butter, please, Mom" said my son.

"HEAVEN KNOWS I've tried to cope with an over-populated family," I continued. "In the primary readers where there were Jane, Robby, Mommy and Daddy, I pencilled in an extra face in the tree. I never told anyone, but when I divided the two marching cherries in a no. 2 can of fruit cocktail, I did without.

"Are we out of milk?" asked my husband.

"When I bought cupcakes in packages of four, I had to buy two packages and eat the other three so everyone would feel wanted. Remember when we went to the amusement park? And there were only two to a seat on the 125-foot-high roller coaster? I did the only decent thing a Mother could do. I pretended I was frightened."

"Whose turn for dishes?" interrupted my daughter.

"THINK ABOUT IT," I persevered. "Row boats have a capacity of four, dishes come in sets of four, booths in restaurants seat four, pizza comes in packages of four, our last three Presidents have four-member families. I tell you it's downright spooky. I don't want to spoil your dinner, but someone has to ship out. What are you all looking at me for?"

"I don't want to panic you," said my husband. "But have you ever heard of Bonanza, Family Affair, The Courtship of Eddy's Father, Nanny and the Professor, the Governor and JJ. and To Rome With Love? They're situation comedies where the men raise the family without a mother."

"Can't you guys take a joke?" I said. "Here, have a stick of gum. There's five in a pack, you know."

Black mothers tell hopes for children

City College and she is president of LBCC Faculty Wives.

HAS SHE experienced discrimination because of her race?
"There have been times when I wondered if the treatment I received was because of my race — like being seated in a dark corner of a restaurant — but I have no lifelong attitude of 'you're against me because,'" she commented.

The family moved into an all-white neighborhood on Heather Avenue, but hasn't encountered any problems. Their sons were the first Negro students at Bixby Elementary School and have been subjected to childhood taunts, such as "chocolate face."

"We try to tell them they look different and this is a way of making note of the fact, but that it isn't a personal attack."

They've had occasion to discuss race at home. "Our sons know they're Negro and we want them to be proud of it."

She thinks black studies programs are a good thing. "Many people my age have no idea of their background and are not proud of their heritage. It would help their self-image to know we have a rich history of our own."

The other mothers agreed. Mrs. Susie Ellis, nutrition supervisor for Head Start, pointed out, "The need for black studies is very important. It was part of the curriculum for me growing up in the South. There's need for a black image and it can be taught in an integrated atmosphere to the benefit of both races."

Mrs. Ellis, who received a degree from Tuskegee Institute, Ala., is mother of three sons, ages 22, 20 and 18. She said, "We set our sights on a college education when the boys were young. We had to assess the objective and limit ourselves to attain the goal."

Her oldest son was graduated in June from UC, Berkeley, and plans to go to law school. The middle boy is a senior at California State College, Long Beach, and the youngest just graduated from Poly High School and will enroll at Cal Poly Pomona in the fall.

COMMENTED ANOTHER mother, Mrs. Constance Smith, "Children have a right to know something about their heritage."

Mother of seven, aged 15 to 2½, Mrs. Smith, a native of Birmingham, Ala., said her biggest regret is that she didn't go beyond the 11th grade.

She expects her children to finish school and hopes they'll be able to go on to college. "Education is mandatory for a good job or anything else contributing to a better way of life. If you educate yourself well enough, you can do what you want and go where you want."

Separated from her second husband, she hopes to find work when her youngest reaches 3. "We're just surviving from day to day and not able to save much toward college, so it will be a struggle for my son to go on to school."

Mrs. Gracie Webb, who also grew up in Alabama, commented, "Education is the means of achieving what I would like for my children. I think they should be able to make a decent living and have a few luxuries."

Mother of 10, ranging in age from 17 to 5, she has been alone with them for four years, living on welfare. Last summer the duplex they lived in burned down and it took several months to find adequate housing that would allow 10 children. The family now lives in a five-bedroom apartment on 15th Street.

Job opportunities are limited with only a junior high education as Mrs. Webb knows. "I realize now more than ever the necessity of a good education. Without one, you can't make enough money to support a family." She hopes to find a job in September when all her children are in school.

WOULD THEY allow their children to participate in Civil Rights demonstrations or war moratorium marches?

"If they truly believe in the cause and can convince me of their viewpoint, then I wouldn't try to stop them," explained Mrs. Barnes.

"I wouldn't want them to, but the oldest have reached the stage where they think for themselves," added Mrs. Smith. "I'm tired of wars and fighting and other problems, but they've been going on since I was a child. They're just part of life."

Mrs. Webb said, "I would approve if the marches were like the ones led by the late Dr. Martin Luther King and the young people understand what they're demonstrating for."

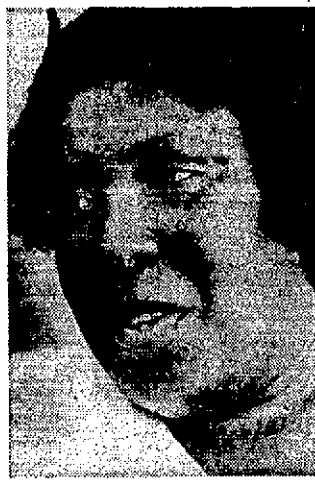

As for black militants and the call for separatism, all the women disapproved of their tactics.

Separate black and white societies are not the answer to race problems, according to Mrs. Barnes.

"I've never felt that was the way to go. We're not that kind of country. Everyone is mixed up in all ways. If we tried to find pure Negroes, we couldn't."

"I'm a quiet, home-type person and never want to be bothered with people of any color who don't want to be bothered with me." . . . Mrs. Constance Smith.

"I don't recommend everyone have 10 children like I did, but each person should have the right to decide the size of her own family and not be limited to just two children." . . . Mrs. Gracie Webb.

Mrs. Smith noted, "The Black Panthers are different from the civil rights movement. Rioting is unnecessary. I don't think violence in any walk of life is necessary. There are better ways to get what you want."

Militancy is not the answer to attaining equality in the opinion of Mrs. Ellis. She prefers to follow her favorite quotation: "Power can do by gentleness what violence fails to accomplish."

She noted, "I always told my sons, 'I don't want to come home and hear you had a fight because someone called your mother or your brother a name.' There's nothing in name calling."

Commenting on busing of school children to achieve integration, the women had varying opinions, but all agreed integrated schools provided a better learning atmosphere.

"My basic feelings are a child should go to a school close to where he lives. If busing improves the overall tone of education and is the only way to achieve this, then I'm for it," explained Mrs. Barnes.

EXPRESSING A similar view was Mrs. Webb: "I think everyone should live in the same world. Growing up in the South, we lived in two different worlds. When we met a child from another race, we didn't know what to say."

Mrs. Smith opposes busing, believing children should not have to go out of their way just to integrate a school.

Is black a more identifiable and acceptable term than Negro?

"When I was growing up in Los Angeles, the term Negro and colored were used. I resisted the label black in the beginning, but became used to it. My husband uses it as he works in the black community. It's still not my favorite term," commented Mrs. Barnes.

"When we were born, our birth certificates listed us as Ethiopians, so even then they didn't have a good term for us," she laughed.

DEAR ABBY

Where does wife's duty lie?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Recently you had a letter from a young wife whose husband was offered a better job in another state. She was reluctant to leave her mother as she was an only child, and you advised her to move with her husband.

Abby, I realize that a woman's first duty is to her husband, but why must money and position come before one's parents who have spent the best of years of their lives raising their children in the hope that in their later years they will have someone to visit them and comfort them?

It seems as though society doesn't think family love is important anymore. It's the almighty dollar that counts. — CLOSE TO MOTHER

DEAR CLOSE: You say you realize that a woman's first duty is to her husband. You're right. But if he must move in order to accept a better job in another state, there is more than "the almighty dollar" involved. His sense of accomplishment and confidence in his ability to succeed and climb higher is at stake. The wife who asks him to stay where he is and pass up promotion because she wants to stay close to her parents is doing her husband a tremendous disservice.

It's nice, I agree, when parents can have their children near to visit them and comfort them in their old age, but that is not the reason parents raise children. (And if it is, it shouldn't be.)

DEAR ABBY: I have a complaint which I certainly hope you will give a little publicity to because I am sure others have the same complaint. It's the utter and complete thoughtlessness with which some people select retirement gifts.

Example: My sister has just retired, and some of her co-workers called and asked me for "suggestions" for a gift for her. I said, "She is moving into a mobile home and is getting rid of a lot of things, so why don't you give her a gift certificate and let her buy what she wants."

So what did her co-workers give her? A set of china (108 pieces!) and a huge silver tray, inscribed, "Best wishes for a long and happy life. The employees of—" She has to stand the tray on the floor as there is no cupboard large enough to hold it. The dishes she is considering taking to a gift exchange place. — ALSO RETIRED.

DEAR ALSO: I can understand some well-meaning co-workers selecting an inappropriate gift, but when they go to the trouble of asking there is no excuse for such colossal goofs.

What's your problem? You'd feel better if you got it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 9798, Los Angeles, Cal. 90009. For a personal reply, include address, telephone, daytime.

Little violinist star of Starlight

Jald Jensen, an author and a doctoral fellow in comparative literature at Occidental College. "Suzuki believes that this potential should be challenged very early — that's why Dylana started violin study when she was 4."

When she gave that first recital a year-and-a-half later in the Beverly Hills Hotel, she performed works by Vivaldi, Bach, Handel and Paganini.

DYLANA'S FIRST music study under the Suzuki method was with her mother. "I'm not a violinist," said Mrs. Jensen. "I kept just one lesson ahead of Dylana!"

Later, Dylana began conventional lessons and now is a student of Manuel Compinsky who played with Toscanini and was founder of the Compinsky Trio.

When she was in first grade at Kester Avenue School, Dylana won the Los Angeles citywide Elementary Music Teachers Association scholarship, competing with students through the sixth grade. In the second grade, she was given special permission to join the school's orchestra and promptly earned the position of concertmistress.

At the 1968 Southwestern Youth Music Festival in Long Beach, she won two first prizes.

Vying with instrumentalists through 15 years of age, Dylana captured first in the American String Teachers Competition in May, 1969. The next month, she played her first concert with full orchestra at Mount St. Mary's College, with Jack Benny in attendance. In the fall, at the age of 8, she became the youngest person ever to win the national Jacques Tushinsky Memorial Scholarship competition for "the virtuosi of tomorrow." This covers all expenses of her study with Compinsky.

SHORTLY AFTER the brown-eyed little girl celebrated her 9th birthday in May this year, she again won the American String Teachers Award.

The Tuesday Starlight Serenade will be Dylana's second concert this year with the Long Beach Symphony — in February at a Youth Concert she was given a standing ovation.

With all of this, she remains a happy, outgoing, merry youngster who takes three-hour daily practice sessions in stride, shares family chores and pets with two sisters and three brothers, will enter fourth grade in September (she's a top student), swims, taught herself to crochet and makes doll clothes.

What does she look forward to most?

"Playing the Sibelius Violin Concerto. Maybe I'll be ready in five years!"

And does she ever daydream about being someone else?

"Only Dylana!"

AT STUDIO, DYLANA PLAYS WITH FRIEND JACK BENNY

Week at Hollywood Bowl will have Latin emphasis

The fourth week of the Hollywood Bowl season will have a Latin emphasis, as Spain's leading conductor, Rafael Fruhbeck de Burgos, making his Bowl debut, takes the podium for concerts Tuesday and Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

Soloist Tuesday will be the 25-year-old Brazilian pianist, Nelson Freire, who made his recital debut at the age of 5 in Rio de Janeiro, and his American debut with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in January, 1969, at the invitation of Pierre Boulez, guest conductor for that occasion.

Freire will perform Liszt's dramatic "Piano Concerto No. 1" and the Spanish impressionist Manuel de Falla's "Nights in the Gardens of Spain." Also programmed are Liszt's "Les Preludes" and Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe" Suite No. 2.

Mezzo-soprano Shirley Verrett and Spanish guitarists Angel and Pepe Romero will be joint soloists for the Thursday concert. The program will highlight the world premiere of the "Concierto

RAFAEL DE BURGOS

Madrigal" by Spain's renowned composer, Joaquin Rodrigo. The work, commissioned by another Spanish guitar duo, Presti and Lagoya, was never performed by them due to the untimely death of Ida Presti three years ago. This performance, at the request of the Romeros, is dedicated to her memory.

As a quartet, with father Celedonio and oldest brother Celin, the Romeros have made numerous Bowl appearances. As a duo, however, this will mark their Bowl debut.

ALSO ON THIS program will be excerpts from "Carmen" by Bizet, Rosina's aria from Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" and Falla's "El Amor Brujo," all with Miss Verrett as soloist, and, as the final work of the evening, Falla's popular "Three-Cornered Hat," Suites No. 1 and 2.

A Rodgers and Hammerstein Gala will close the week Saturday at 8:30. John Green will conduct the program which will feature highlights from some of America's favorite musical shows. The concert will mark his 20th seasonal appearance at Hollywood Bowl. Joining Green and the Roger Wagner Chorale will be soloists Patricia Wise, soprano, of the New York City Opera Company; Marcia Baldwin, mezzo-soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera; Chris Lachonas, tenor, of the former Metropolitan Opera National Company, and Richard Fredricks, baritone, of the San Francisco and New York City Center Operas.

E. HUMPERDINCK

Humperdinck at Greek

Engelbert Humperdinck will appear Monday through next Sunday at Greek Theater in Griffith Park. He will be joined by 10 young vocalists, "The Establishment," and by comedian Allan Drake.

Born Arnold George Dorsey in Madras, India, where his father was serving in the British Army, he moved with his family to England when he was 9. He started singing as Gerry Dorsey when he was 17 but had no luck until his manager changed his name. The gimmick worked and Engelbert Humperdinck's ratings zoomed. Today, an international success, he stars in concerts and on his own television series.

Tickets are on sale at the box office and agencies.

AT PASADENA MUSEUM

...Tribute to Newman

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

When word was received of the death on July 4 of the New York painter Barnett Newman, Pasadena Art Museum quickly arranged a memorial exhibition to be shown from Friday through Aug. 30.

"This is not a retrospective exhibition," said a museum spokesman. "The selection is presented in respectful tribute to the remarkable artistic vision and force that characterized Newman throughout his distinguished and dramatic career."

The exhibit will include paintings, graphics and sculpture from the artist's work of the 1940s to his most recent 1969-70 works. Many of the lenders were personal friends and members of the artist's family.

A contemporary of de Kooning, Pollock and Still, Newman was a revolutionary artist seeking pure abstraction, a concept adopted by new painters in the 1960s.

Thursday, a special memorial service will be held at the museum at 6 p.m. for the artist's wife, family and friends.

A major exhibit, "Kandinsky Watercolors," opened in the Pasadena museum July 21 and will continue through Aug. 30. Organized by the Museum of Modern Arts, New York, it includes 46 watercolors spanning the career of the influential Wassily Kandinsky. Of these, 40 are on loan from the artist's widow.

The museum has announced the appointment of William C. Agee as director of exhibitions and collections. He will come to his new position from New York this fall.

Agee, 33, has formerly been associate curator at the Whitney Museum of American Art, associate curator of painting and sculpture at the Museum of Modern Art, and instructor at the school of Visual Arts in New York.

CONCURRENT with the Pageant of the Masters at Laguna Beach are two art shows. "Art-A-Fair '70" and the "All California Show."

Both will run through the closing date of the pageant, Aug. 30.

Some 65 artists are represented in the "Art-A-Fair '70" which is sponsored by Laguna Beach Fine Arts Association and is housed in colorful roofed booths at 346 North Coast Highway. Hours are 11:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. daily, with closing time extended to midnight Fridays and Saturdays.

The "All California Show," sponsored by the Festival of Arts, is at Laguna Beach Art Gallery, 307 Cliff Drive. From more than 1,100 entries, fewer than 100 were chosen for exhibit. Judges were Gerald Nordland, director of San Francisco Museum; Edward Reep, Los Angeles artist and teacher; and Esther Bear, Santa Barbara gallery owner.

To Vic Smith of Cal State Fullerton art faculty went the $800 Juvors' Cash Award. Other artists nominated for awards are Phyllis Davidson, Willie Suzuki, Dan Concholar, Gene Gill, Ralph Connors, Karl Benjamin, Robert Dawe, Thelma de Goede Smith and Robert Thorn.

serigraphs by Annabelle Clifton will hang in Dana Branch Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave., through August. The artist is a member of Long Beach Art Association.

From Aug. 1 through 9, Mario Massimo Sassone will have an exhibit in the 1970 International Art Show in New York. The young painter was born and reared in Florence, Italy. Several years ago he came to Long Beach where he has a studio on the Peninsula.

In Esther Robles Gallery, 665 N. La Cienega Blvd., summer showings include group exhibitions of kinetics and art technology. Exhibits change, since pieces which are sold may be taken from the gallery and replaced with other work.

ALL artists are invited to enter the art section of the Santa Monica Sports and Arts Festival in Palisades Park Sunday, Aug. 16, from 10 a.m. to sunset. Anyone may enter, but to be considered by the judges for cash awards, artists must be registered with the Sports and Arts Festival committee. The fee is $1 for each category: oils, watercolor, mixed media and sculpture.

OPENING in San Pedro Municipal Art Gallery Thursday will be "New Talent VII" featuring acrylics, prints and constructions by Richard F. Caffero; oils by Gilah Hirsh; and paintings and sculpture by Norifumi Hashibe. The show will continue through Aug. 23. Hours in the gallery, Seventh and Beacon Streets, San Pedro, are noon to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays. Admission is free.

Musicians tuned up for Grove concerts

Two programs are booked for this week's "Concerts in the Grove" on Soroptimist House patio at California State College, Long Beach. Both will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Monday through Wednesday, Tim Weisberg and his Jazz Trinity will share the stage with California Streetcar. Thursday, Friday and Saturday Longbranch Pennywhistle and Peter Evans will appear.

Weisberg and his electric flute, backed by an instrumental trio, merges a quasi-rock beat with a jazz sound.

California Streetcar is a combination of poetry and dramatic excerpts performed by Joan Lemmo, Booker Bradshaw and Paul Hansen.

J. D. Souther and Glenn Frey — the Longbranch Pennywhistle — with guitarist Peter Evans offer classical and country western-bluegrass music.

NYC Opera to return

LOS ANGELES — Partial relief of its financial problems has enabled the Music Center Opera Association to avoid cancelling the return of the New York City Opera to Los Angeles in November-December.

John A. McCone, chairman of the association, said Tuesday the decision was made possible through the support of county supervisors, the Music Center Arts and Education Fund, the Performing Arts Council and donations from the public.

Further funds will come from a special benefit opera performance, McCone said.

Officials didn't say how much was contributed after a recent public appeal with a goal of $300,000.

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE
Staid Melbourne gets new jet port

By STAN DELAPLANE

Melbourne, Australia

"They've opened a beautiful new airport (as they say down here).

"Tullamarine Airport (an aboriginal word) opened with quantities of Fosters and Swans Australian beer. Champagne too. But you can't get an Aussie to drink champagne when there's beer around.

"This gives Melbourne its first jet airport. And gives you a chance to visit the longest oyster bar in the world and eat the famous Carpet bagger steaks. They slit a pocket in a thick filet and fill it with those wonderful little Sydney rock oysters and grill it."

"MELBOURNE IS a conservative town compared to swinging Sydney. Full of green parks and old Victorian buildings. A few new high rises. The Southern Cross Hotel is up to world standards.

"A white kangaroo women's coat goes for $100. Fletcher and Jones sells men's slacks for $20 that would cost $38.50 in the U.S. They claim they can fit anybody without alterations and keep 15,000 pairs in stock.

"Plenty of opera, ballet, discotheques, nightclubs. Five or six high rank restaurants. Prices are lower than ours: Roast prime rib, $3.25. New York steaks charcoal grilled, $3.60.

"We have a 45-minute stop at Shannon Airport on our way home. Can you tell us the best buys at the free port shop?"

That excellent free port has grown so big, it's like trying to shop the whole ground floor of Macy's in 45 minutes — I think it's bigger than Macy's first floor.

Nearly everybody rushes to the big self-serve liquor and cigarette section. You can only bring back one bottle of liquor duty free. But Shannon has worked out a price on five bottles that makes it the same as if it were duty-free. (I never buy liquor at Shannon. It's bulky. You have to hand-carry it. I don't think the saving is worth it.)

GUESTS FROM ENGLAND Anthony Monchens to note golden date

Golden memories spanning a half century of marriage will be shared next Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Monchen when they are honored by 60 friends and relatives on their 50th wedding date.

A dinner reception will be given in the La Palma home of the honored couple's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dietl.

Assisting with arrangements are another son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Nelson of Long Beach. Also on hand will be another daughter, Mrs. Raymond Wayne Dorsey of Kansas City, Kan., and the Monchen's nine grandchildren.

Mr. Monchen was born in The Hague, Holland, and traveled extensively through Europe and South America before coming to the United States in 1914. During a church ceremony on Aug. 2, 1920, in Chicago, he claimed the former Augusta Maria Bach as his bride.

The Monchens have been Long Beach residents since 1943 and make their home at 3211 Santa Fe Ave.

TRAVELING FROM London, Eng., for the golden celebration will be Monchen's brother, John, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Cyril Taylor. Maid of honor at the long-ago wedding was Mrs. Monchen's sister, Mrs. Otto Kuehlwein of Los Angeles, who also will be present.

Photographs depicting highlights of their marriage have been centered in frames made by Mrs. Dietl and will be featured in decor for a poolside program.

A golden wedding trip to Europe is planned for the spring.

Sept. 5 date set for vows

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. McMahon of Long Beach announce the engagement of their daughter, Tricia, to Donald A. Carder, son of Mrs. Archie Lee Carder of Dallas, Tex., and the late Mr. Carder.

Both young persons attended Chapman College's World Campus Afloat and Miss McMahon was graduated from Chapman College, Orange. Her fiancé is currently attending San Diego State College.

Chiefs Call Own Play for All-Star

New York Times Service

PHILADELPHIA — A rift in the professional football players' Assn. became evident Saturday. It evolved from the decision by some members of the Kansas City Chiefs to begin training for the game against the College All-Stars in defiance of the association.

Although a lawyer for the players negotiating the labor dispute in federal mediation denied that there was a break in their united front, these facts became known.

When the Super Bowl winners reported to their training camp in Liberty, Mo., it developed that the Chiefs' players had warned the Players Assn. that if permission were not granted for them to oppose the All-Stars Friday night in Chicago, they would begin workouts without the association's approval.

With its hand forced, the association issued a statement attributed to John Mackey, its president, at its Washington, D.C. headquarters Friday night, granting the Chiefs permission.

But the Chiefs will disband after the All-Star Game, according to their player representative, Jim Tyrer, if a settlement has not been reached in the labor impasse. The other 25 training camps remain closed to experienced players by decree of the owners.

SUN., JULY 26, 1970 SECTION 5 PAGE 5-1

"Our players wanted to play the game," said a club spokesman in a telephone interview from the Chiefs' camp. "They asked the association for permission, but they told them that if they don't get permission, they're going to play the game anyway."

Between mediation sessions, Alan Miller, the players' attorney, denied that all the Chiefs had defied the association.

"Some players felt that way," Miller acknowledged, "but the great majority would have been willing to stay out of camp."

Len Dawson, the team's quarterback and one of their Super Bowl stars, was instrumental in the Chiefs' decision.

Hank Stram, the Chiefs' coach, also contributed to the decision. Stram's reasoning was that the All-Star Game is a reward for winning the Super Bowl, a carryover responsibility from the 1969 campaign and not related to the current impasse.

The Chiefs' players also were motivated by a game's pay, based on one-fourteenth of their annual salary, for appearing in the All-Star Game.

In Saturday's negotiations the two federal mediators, Gilbert J. Seldin and Ralph C. Patterson, met with representatives of the players for eight hours and were reported to be still far apart.

The root of the impasse is a difference of $7.6 million in the pension contribution of the owners in a projected four-year contract.

Shellenback Okay But Angels Wrecked, 5-0

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

It figured Frank Howard might do some damage. It did not figure Jim Shellenback would.

Shellenback is a left-hander pitcher for the Washington Senators. On Oct. 1, 1967 he was not much of anything as he lay in a hospital bed with a compound fracture of the right leg, rib fracture, a sprained left wrist, tongue lacerations and assorted internal injuries.

Doctors hovering over this broken piece of humanity who had come to them direct from the scene of a violent automobile crash declared that he would never pitch again.

They should have seen Jim Shellenback Saturday night. Shellenback unraveled his first major league shutout and held the Angels to two hits — their fewest total of the season — as he pitched the Senators to a 5-0 conquest of the uninspired Californians.

It was a game the Angels could not really afford to lose but they did not appear excited about the prospects of winning, either.

With the Minnesota Twins conveniently losing to Baltimore, the Angels could have recaptured some precious acreage in the American League West but they surrendered meekly before Shellenback in an obvious coma of indifference following their disheartening 9-8, 10-inning loss Friday evening.

The only Angels who hit on this night of ineptitude were Jarvis Tatum and Alex Johnson. Tatum lined a crisp single to center in the second inning and Johnson legged out an infield bounce to short in the fourth.

When Tatum walked in the same inning, it was the last flicker of opposition that the Angels could mount. Shellenback retired 16 of the last 17 batters to win his sixth game in nine decisions and become the third lefthander to throw a route-going blank at the Angels this season.

Howard, the so-called gentle giant who is anything but a wallflower with a bat in his possession, outlived the Angels himself. Batting against the Angel shift which finds three infielders lined up strategically on the left side of the diamond, Howard retaliated against the maneuver by singling to rightfield on his first two trips to the plate.

On his third try it didn't matter where the Angels were playing. Howard hit one of Clyde Wright's offerings 495-feet, arching the ball just below the Big A scoreboard in left-center. It was his 27th homer. Howard's rocket was the second longest in Anaheim archives, trailing only Carl Yastrzemski's 518-footer in 1968.

Wright, who mastered Washington with a four-hit shutout a week ago, had another four-hitter working Saturday. But it was only through two innings.

After a walk to Tom Grieve and Howard's single produced a threat but nothing more in the initial round, the Senators got to Wright for a pair in the second.

Jeff Burroughs, the pride of Wilson High and the Senators' top draft choice in the free agent draft last season, made his first major league start and launched the rally by beating out a slow roller to short.

Paul Casanova's ensuing single sent Burroughs to third and he scored on Wright's wild pitch. A sin-

MORE MISERIES AT HOME

Sliding plays at home plate continued to plague Dodgers Saturday. New York's Ron Swoboda crashes into Dodger catcher Jeff Torborg, knocking ball loose to score run in fifth inning. Swoboda came home from first base on Jerry Grote's single.

Buford KO's Twins, 6-5

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Don Buford's two-run homer with Dick Hall aboard in the eighth inning snapped a 4-4 tie and paced the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-5 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday before the second largest home crowd of the season.

A crowd of 34,588 paid and 7,010 knotholders came out to see the American League two division leaders and saw Buford connect for his 360-foot homer off reliever Tom Hall after Dick Hall beat out a grounder to short for a single.

The Orioles had taken a

2-0 lead in the first when Buford was hit by a pitch, went to second on a passed ball and scored when starter Bill Zepp threw wild to first on Paul Blair's bunt. Boog Powell followed with a double to left, driving in Blair.

The Twins went ahead 4-2, in the fourth, knocking out starter Jim Hardin. Harmon Killebrew doubled off the left field fence to drive in Rich Reese, who singled and went to third on a single by Tony Oliva.

Hardin walked George Mitterwald intentionally to load the bases but Leo Cardenas singled to left, scoring Oliva and Killebrew, and Frank Quilici singled home Mitterwald.

The Orioles tied it up again in the sixth when Frank Robinson singled and scored on hits by Elrod Hendricks and Dave Johnson. Brooks Robinson, who reached first on a fielder's choice prior to Hendricks' and Johnson's, scored when Terry Crowley pinch hit a single.

Tony Oliva's 15th homer of the year, a 350-foot blast to left in the eighth, accounted for the Twins' fifth run.

SEESAWING YOUTHS SEEK WORLD RECORD

CASTRO VALLEY, (UPI) — Two 17-year-old youths passed the 35-hour mark Saturday in their quest for the world's record for continuous sea sawing.

Gary Turpen and Steve Cooper started at 6 a.m. Friday in an effort to log 100 non-stop hours on a sea-saw.

The Guinness Book of World Records lists the record as 91 hours set last year in Australia. The American record is reportedly 50½ hours.

Threat on Kips Life Was False; Scot Wins 5,000

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UPI) — Scotsman Ian Stewart won the showcase 5,000-meter race Saturday in an exciting windup to the British Commonwealth Games marked by a threatened black power demonstration that failed to take place and false reports of threats on the life of Kenya's Kipchoge Keino.

Queen Elizabeth officially closed the games after Stewart beat fellow Scotsman Ian McCafferty and Keino in what may rank as one of the finest 5,000-meter races of all time.

Stewart, gun-lester from Birmingham, won in a European and games record time of 13 minutes, 22.8 seconds, to add the Commonwealth title to the European crown he won at Athens last year. McCafferty finished second in 13:23.4 with Keino clocking 13:27.6 for the bronze medal.

England won the overall team title with 84 medals to 82 for Australia, but the Aussies accumulated more gold medals, 36 to 27 for England.

It's Arnie and Jack and Dave and J.C.

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — The unlikely combination of Dave Eichelberger and J.C. Goosie, a pair of refugees from the rabbit ranks, came out of the pack Saturday and tied giants Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus for the third-round lead in the $200,000 National Four-Ball golf championship.

Eichelberger and Goosie, who had to survive Monday qualifying to get into the field for this team event, carved out an 8-under-par 63 — including 29 on the backside — for a 54-hole total of 192.

Nicklaus and Palmer, heavily favored with Palmer playing on his home course, the 7-045-yard Laurel Valley Golf Club, also were at 192 after a third-round 64.

Sam Snead and Gardner Dickinson, who were tied with Palmer and Nicklaus for the lead going into the hot, muggy day's round, drifted back with a 68 for 196 — four strokes off the pace.

Australian Bruce Crampton and former U.S. Open champ Orville Moody forged into third place with a 64 for 194.

Moody, in a slump for several months, snapped out of it with two strings of four consecutive birdies.

Goosie, a 41-year-old former club pro who returned to the tour only this year, blew a six-foot putt on the 18th that would have given him and his 26-year-old partner sole control of the lead.

Neither has ever won a tour event and they made it into the field only when Goosie sank a 60-foot putt to claim the final qualifying spot on Monday.

Goosie has been a pro since 1954, but has been on the tour only occasionally. Eichelberger is a former Walker Cupper who turned pro in 1966 but had only $9,400 in money winnings last year.

"Tiger meat," the laconic Goosie replied when asked what he'd been eating to get up so high for the tournament.

"I kind of scraped it around at times," said the dark, intense Eichelberger, "But my partner was always there to pick me up."

Goosie and Eichelberger were in the same foursome with Palmer and Nicklaus and drew most of the gallery of about 15,000. But the two outsiders refused to be shaken by the huge mob that centered its devotion on the magnetic figures of Palmer and Nicklaus.

They managed only two birdies on the front nine as Palmer and Nicklaus began to pull away but played the back in 6-under-par, finally pulling even when Eichelberger dropped in a pressure six-foot putt on the par-three 17th.

Goosie got the team started with a 10-foot birdie putt on the third, then rammed an iron to within seven feet, on the next hole and sank the putt.

Goosie, called "The Goose" by his fellow pros, started a string of four consecutive birdies for his team when he rolled in a 20-foot putt on the 10th.

Eichelberger chipped to within 18 inches on the next and then came Goosie with birdie putts of 20 and five feet. Eichelberger closed out with an iron shot that left him a three-foot putt on the 15th, then the bird on 17.

"We both played considerably better than yesterday," Nicklaus said. "We missed several chances for birdies."

"No, I'm not surprised it's a close as it is. A four-ball tournament like this tends to lend itself to being close. I'm even a little surprised," Palmer said, "that it isn't closer than it is."

Palmer rifled an iron to within two feet on the second, then canned an eight-foot putt on the third. Nicklaus chipped to four feet on the sixth, and made a 10-footer on the 10th.

Arnold got a two-putt birdie on the par-five 11th, Jack pitched to five feet on the 13th and Palmer canned another 10-footer on the 15th — then missed a makeable putt on the final hole.

Whittier Girl Romps in Western Am

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UPI) — Tiny Jane Bastanchury, a 22-year-old Whittier native with the big swing, became the 10th woman to win two successive women's Western Amateur golf championships Saturday by defeating Mrs. Shirley Donner of Belvidere, Ill., 10 and 8.

Miss Bastanchury used only five birdies in her winning effort against the 44-year-old housewife, who couldn't respond to a gallery of 600 pulling for the hometown favorite.

Mrs. Donner made a brief charge on holes eight and nine of the second 18 to prolong the match. The four-time Illinois state women's amateur champion admitted she expected to lose the match because of Miss Bastanchury's advantage of playing year round.

"Jane is a fine golfer who is able to play year round," Mrs. Donner re-

"I don't know if she had any pro ambition, but she could do anything she wanted to do."

Miss Bastanchury, who leaves to defend her Trans-Mississippi crown at Norbeck, Md., admitted to wishing she could meet the more famous Whittier native — President Richard M. Nixon — while on the West Coast for both the Trans-Miss and Curtis Cup competition.

COOK STRIKES BACK
Sanders Regains Lead in Amateur

Gary Sanders of USC and Los Coyotes regained the lead from Long Beach's Steve Cook in the 71st Southern California Amateur golf championship by shooting a 1-over-par 73 Saturday at Oakmont Country Club for a 214 total.

Weakened by the flu bug, Cook, the halfway leader from Los Alamitos CC, slipped to a 75 and a 54-hole total of 215 and trails Sanders by one stroke going into today's final round at Oakmont starting at 8 a.m. Sanders, the former junior national champ, was the opening day leader.

Cook dropped a 30-foot birdie putt on the 10th hole, but bogies on the next two holes proved costly on the tough Glendale course. Last week Cook finished third behind Sanders and Phil McGleno in the L.A. City tournament.

Jim Petralia of Quail Lake recorded a 74 to give him 216.

Bill Feil of Green River carded a sizzling 69 to close within four shots of the leader.

Former Wilson High golfer Steve and Gary Rorer of Virginia Country Club are tied at 229 while Howard Coleman of Los Alamitos skied to 81 Saturday for a 237 total.

U.S. Rowers Take 8 of 12 Henley Wins

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (UPI) — United States oarsmen and scullers dominated Saturday's rowing at the 88th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta, but the lead in the race for the Maple Leaf Trophy still belongs to St. Catharines.

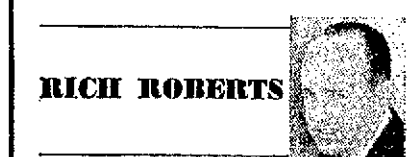

American entries won eight of the afternoon's 12 finals, as the point standings continued to shift. The one St. Catharines' first came in the junior 145-pound eight and was enough to keep the host club in the lead.

Aiming for its 10th consecutive Canadian rowing championship, St. Catharines has 173 1/2 points with only one day of competition left in the 1978 regatta.

AT 24, IT'S GETTING LATE

A few years ago during a brief revival of professional boxing in Long Beach there arrived a talented young lightweight who made a quick reputation for himself.

In a fight at the Municipal Aud one night he hit his opponent so hard that he split his glove. The bout was delayed until somebody produced a new glove. It was black and didn't match the original set, which was red, but aroused the fans to some unique forms of rooting.

"Hit 'im with the red one!" they would shout ... then, "Hit 'im with the black one!"

Rodolfo Gonzalez obliged and has continued to plaster guys who make their livings selling advertising on the soles of their shoes. The best anybody can tell, Gonzalez is 43-4 with 35 knockouts (15 in a row), but the record book is vague because many of his fights were in the uncharted outlands of Mexico or, worse yet, Long Beach.

The nearest Rodolfo has come to a big match was last December when he was supposed to fight Sugar Ramos, the former featherweight king, at the Olympic Auditorium. But his gall bladder inflammation intervened and the bout never came off.

"If they ever do fight," sighs Olympic publicist Van Barbieri, "I've still got 300 posters stacked up in my office."

BUT RAMOS IS SUPPOSED to fight former lightweight champ Mando Ramos first, which is the story of Rodolfo's career. So he'll bide his time against Arturo Lomeli at the Olympic Thursday night, hoping it leads to better things.

Mando was in the way when Rodolfo first arrived in Long Beach four years ago, getting the big play and the big push toward the title although fans of the mystery man feel their man's talents are at least a match.

Rodolfo is blunt when asked why he and Mando never fought: "Well, they wouldn't let him, probably."

But there is only envy, not animosity, and besides, since Mando is no longer champion Rodolfo isn't that interested anymore.

"We're good friends," Rodolfo says. "We used to run together all the time and we boxed together after he won the title."

How did he do?
"Well ... I think I did better than he did. Sometimes he takes quite a few punches, and sometimes he's in worse shape than me."

Ismael Laguna took Mando's title away last March so Rodolfo says, "I'm after Laguna now."

"I had an opportunity to fight him in New York last year but they didn't pay enough money — and he wasn't champion then. But now — anytime, anywhere."

ONE GETS THE IDEA that Rodolfo's managers, Ralph Gillbreath and Danny Villanueva, are being a bit too careful about bringing their boy along. At 24, he hasn't been close to a title despite some classy credentials.

"It bothers me and makes me a little mad sometimes," he says, but he isn't wasting his time. Rodolfo works for Southern California Edison and is a night student at Long Beach City College, taking courses aimed at a degree in business administration. Four years ago he couldn't say the English equivalent of "como esta usted?"

He picked it up quickly, but why shouldn't he? His father was a professor of languages at the University of Mexico and a 16-year-old brother speaks four languages.

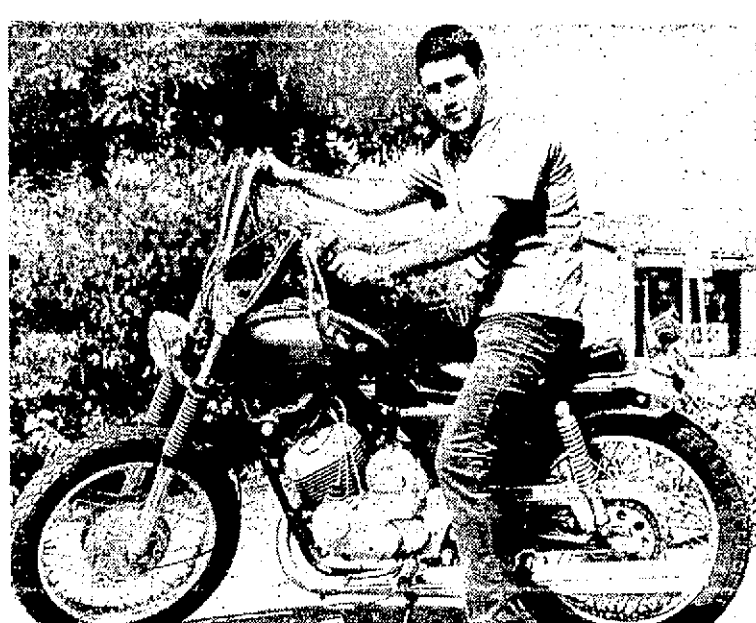

Gonzalez was born in Guadalajara, which he describes as "a happy place — all the time they play music." But when his father died when Rodolfo was 14, it wasn't all mariachis and martinis anymore.

"That's when I started fighting," he recalls. "My oldest brother and I had to do something to start supporting the family."

The family was six, including three brothers, a sister and his mother, but another lucky accident of birth had made Rodolfo a first cousin of Jose Becerra, then the world bantamweight champion. Becerra took charge of Rodolfo and, as Gillbreath says, "His cousin believed in finding out very quickly if Rodolfo had any ability."

So Rodolfo's first fight was a six-round semi, which he won and for which he was rewarded the handsome sum of 10 pesos. "That's about 80 cents," he recalls, "enough for one meal."

RODOLFO CAME to the United States somewhat by accident early in 1966. He had to have his tonsils out and his American manager loaned him the dough, then invited him north to pay it back.

RODOLFO GONZALEZ ... going places at last?

Compassionate creature that he was, the manager "fixed me up right away," Rodolfo says. "Two weeks after the operation I fought Bobby Valdez. I wasn't very sharp and lost the fight. But I decided to stick around, anyway."

Rodolfo recalls that he met Gillbreath one day in China.

"He was just getting out of jail," Rodolfo jokes.

Gillbreath returns the jab: "When he enrolled in school here they ran an IQ test on him. Two points less and he would have been a vegetable."

"But he's a thinking fighter. You hit him with a shot one time and you're lucky to hit him with that same punch again. But sometimes he thinks too much outside the ring."

Rodolfo counters, "I don't drink, I don't smoke, I don't do anything ... just look for girls. My next profession to boxer is lover."

"That's right," Gillbreath says, "he obeys nine Commandments. The other one he forgets."

But Rodolfo tells the best one on himself.

"The other day I was so embarrassed," he laughs. "I hopped into the ring to be introduced at the Olympic and I had on these tight pants, all dressed up for TV, you know? Afterward I asked Ralph how I looked and he said, 'Uh, you would have looked nicer if you had pulled your zipper up.'"

Well, it was one way of finally getting some attention.

Of Peahead — A Legend Passes

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — When Horman Hickman, an unconstructed rebel from Tennessee, was head coach of football at Yale he decided to protect his flank one season by bringing in as his assistant another flower of the Confederacy, Douglas Clyde Walker.

Since Yale was Yale, the nickname the new coach had borne for 40 years was almost never mentioned. Herman always referred to his long time eatin' and drinkin' companion as "D.C."

Then one day a buddy of both arrived in New Haven and no one could fool him as to the identity of Douglas Clyde Walker.

"Doggone," he said. "If it ain't ol' Peahead."

That's exactly who it was, too. Peahead Walker was one of those colorful characters whose numbers keep shrinking and the delightful Peahead faded out last week at the age of 71.

Of recent years he toiled in comparative anonymity as a talent scout for the New York Giants although throughout his life he had had an uncanny eye for spotting talent as well as the adroitness for netting it.

One of his prize catches when he was coaching at Wake Forest was Bill George, later a standout linebacker for the Chicago Bears.

This alone should be sufficient to illustrate what a slick on artist the innocent looking Peahead was. This was before Wake Forest had shifted to its handsome campus in Winston-Salem, N.C., and when it was in drag, unimpressive surroundings.

Peahead took George on a campus tour and the schoolboy hotshot was bugged at the magnificence of the buildings and the park-like surroundings. He was completely sold. What Peahead neglected to mention was that the sightseeing tour was of the Duke University campus.

PEAHEAD'S MISCHIEVOUS disregard for the truth left him admirably equipped to become a regular winner of the liars championship in the storytelling tournament of the Atlanta Touchdown Club.

A matchless raconteur, he enjoyed tremendous popularity among football folk and was a much sought after companion. He and Hickman, two jolly men of boundless good humor, were ideally suited for each other.

Before they were united under New Haven's elms, Herman was the chief recruiter for North Carolina State while Peahead did his own recruiting for Wake Forest. One day Herman interrupted his talent search to visit his old buddy and soon began raving about a prospect he was sure he had corralled.

"He's the best tackle I ever saw," said Herman. "I never saw a boy who could do so much so well. He's a cinch to be all-America. Wait until you see 'im."

"What's his name?" asked Peahead. In the full confidence that he had the boy all locked up, Herman divulged the undivulgable.

"Pat Preston," said Herman. Peahead jumped as though he had just been given a hot foot.

"Shush, Hickman," said Peahead. "Speak softly when you mention Preston. That lil' ol' boy you been talkin' about is sleepin' upstairs. He lives with me and I've been like a father to him. If he ever heard what you been sayin', he'd git hisself a swelled head. Be quiet, Herman."

Herman surrendered and no one knows to this day if Preston was sleeping the sleep of the just in Peahead's home. But Preston did become an all-America at Wake Forest and, like Bill George a few years later, played pro ball for the Chicago Bears.

PEAHEAD SWEET-TALKED his Deacons into upsetting unbeaten Tennessee one year and Wake Forest gained fourth ranking in the national standings. By that time he was growing into something of a football legend and his close association with Hickman didn't hurt his image because Herman was forever telling Peahead Walker stories.

His favorite concerned the time Peahead was coaching a hillbilly high school when the star ball carrier was rudely flattened. He lay unconscious on the field as Peahead rushed to his side with the team doctor.

"He ain't breathin'," said the rustic medico.

"You're the doctor," said Peahead, "make him breathe."

CEREMONIES, GAME

Big Day for Cooperstown

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — This quiet, historic community on the shores of Otsego Lake will come alive for a day Monday when some 10,000 visitors crowd in to see a ball game and the formal induction of Lou Boudreau, Earle Combs, Jesse Haines and Ford Frick into baseball's Hall of Fame.

After a nostalgic visit into the past while the four new members are inducted, the scene shifts quickly to the present for an exhibition game between the Montreal Expos and the Chicago White Sox for the Hall of Fame Cup.

The ceremonies, under the direction of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, will start on the porch of the National Baseball Library.

The ball game, a few steps down tree-lined Main Street, will be at Doubleday Field before a capacity crowd of 10,000 fans.

Before and after the main events the swarm of visiting mothers, fathers, sons and daughters may amuse themselves by visiting the museum to see relics from the days of Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Honus Wagner, Walter Johnson and others up to the present day.

The balls that Willie Mays and Hank Aaron batted for their 3,000th hits, payoff recorded on the third night of this meet.

Watson had two winners before his mishap, hitting the winner's circle back-to-back in the fourth and fifth races with longshot Bounding De May ($21.80) and then favored Witch Chic ($4.80).

The Exakta was a hefty $474 when favorite Marble Man combined with 20-1 shot Blue Zephyr for the big payoff.

Witch Chic, making his first start of 1970, was one of the better horses the past two seasons at the track, winning $23,417 in 16 starts in 1968. He had not raced since last September.

In the 440-yard third race, favored Cooper Dandy, piloted by Henry Page, nosed April Dial for a $4.20 win.

In another 870-yarder over the Vessels' Sr. Course, Dawes Magic, with leading rider Terry Lipham up, won by the slimmest possible margin Gabby's Boy for a $6.80 return.

ANOTHER NIJINSKY STUNNER

Millionaire Horse Proves Worth in Royalty Stakes

Combined News Services

Nijinsky, the American-owned wonder horse of European racing, looked like the multi-million dollar colt he is Saturday by winning the King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes — his fourth consecutive triumph in British horse racing classics.

Nijinsky, fitted with a $4.8 million price tag this week, came from behind with a strong stretch finish under the guidance of jockey Lester Piggott and won the 1½-mile race over a field of five others. He was heavily favored at 40-85 odds and scored by two lengths.

Dewan, after stalking the early pace for more than a mile, edged away from favored Pleasure Seeker in the stretch at Aqueduct to capture the 82nd running of the $107,400 Brooklyn Handicap.

Confidently ridden by Laffit Pincay, Dewan out-gamed Pleasure Seeker in the final yards to score by a head. Hydrologist rallied from last place in the field of five starters to gain the show spot.

The Pruner, given a perfect ride by Braulio Baeza, moved in front at the 16th pole to easily capture the $110,300 American Derby at Arlington Park, the only $100,000 race for three-year-olds on the grass in the United States this year.

The Pruner, winning for the fourth time in the last six starts, was timed at 1:47.45 for the mile and ⅓ distance, only ⅓ of a second slower than the track record.

Commercial's Daring Stretch Drive Decisive

DEL MAR (UPI) — T.V. Commercial staged a strong rally in the stretch Saturday to score a length-and-a-quarter victory in the 29th running of the $21,950 San Diego Handicap.

The 5-year-old son of T.V. Lark was taken in hand in the early stages by jockey Don Pierce but responded when called on for speed turning into the stretch. The winner overhauled Imaginative midway through the stretch to win decisively.

Quicken Tree was three more lengths back in third place.

T.V. Commercial, which alternates in racing on the turf and dirt, was coming off a third-place finish in the $102,100 Hollywood Gold Cup and was installed a lukewarm favorite. His winning time for the 1 1/16 miles was 1:41.25.

The winner paid $6.60, $3.60 and $2.80. Imaginative returned $5.60 and $3.40 and Quicken Tree paid $3.60.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE EVENING NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

By Associated Press

Shirley MacLaine credits the New York Telephone Company with forging the vital link in a chain which she hopes will transform her from movie queen to television star.

"The telephone in my New York apartment was broken; nobody came to fix it, and I had to run down to the drug store to make calls," the actress recalled.

"And those pay phones were always busy. My daughter had just entered boarding school in England and there were some people in London I wanted to talk to. So I finally said the hell with that, got in a plane and flew to London."

Sir Lew Grade, a British television and film tycoon, heard she was in town, invited her to lunch and before the week was out, she and Grade were partners in a multimillion-dollar deal that includes 24 episodes of a TV series for ABC plus motion pictures, if and when the right scripts turn up.

THE SHIFT in her career direction seems typical of the impetuous uninhibited Miss MacLaine. But she is far from the creature of impulse and whim that make up her public image.

Item: Shirley MacLaine

Shirley MacLaine, with one TV appearance in 20 years, is at work on a series for 1971.

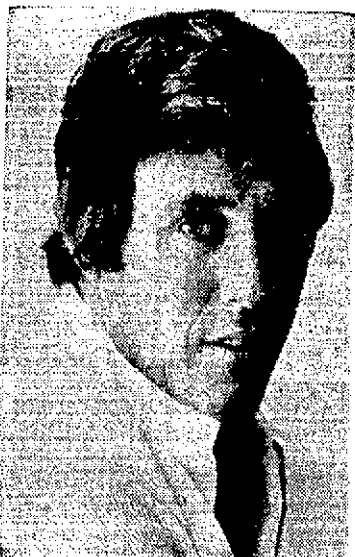

Item: Theatrical motion pictures of the star-studded, multimillion-dollar budget class are in trouble with competition from television, from low-budget and avant-garde films, tight money and a paucity of movie material to pull the family away from their TV sets into the local Bijou.

"I'VE DONE some research and I know that while a film may reach 15 million people, it is possible that a television show can reach 350 million," said the actress. "What I really want to do is use television's potential to try has been in show business as a professional for 20 years, a film star since Alfred Hitchcock's 1955 "The Trouble with Harry" — and has made just one television appearance, as a presenter of awards in this year's Tony award broadcast.

"I've kept away deliberately," she admits.

BURT BACHARACH

"Another Evening With Burt Bacharach," original "Music Hall" presentation of the Academy Award-winning composer as host and performer, will be aired at 9 p.m., Wednesday, Ch. 4.

Guest stars are England's Dusty Springfield, France's Mireille Mathieu and South Africa's Juliet Prowse on the full-hour colurecast featuring many Bacharach compositions and highlighted by an inside look on how he composes music for the movies.

The overture to the program is a medley of Bacharach compositions consisting of "What the World Needs Now," "Say a Little Prayer," "What's New Pussycat?" and "Promises, Promises," played by Burt and the orchestra.

How a composer goes about writing a score for a motion picture is strikingly demonstrated by Bacharach as he uses a movieola showing scenes from "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." What resulted was the Oscar-winning "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head." This is followed by Juliet Prowse dancing to another tune from the same motion picture, "Come Touch the Sun."

Another intriguing highlight of the show is Dusty Springfield (in English) and Mireille Mathieu (in French) harmonizing "The Look of Love" with Burt accompanying them. Breaking away from his own compositions, Mr. Bacharach and his three guests pay a tribute to the Beatles with a medley of some of their famous numbers.

New Series for Bridges

LLOYD BRIDGES

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press

Lloyd Bridges almost blushed when I reminded him of the time 25 years ago when he played a secret agent in the movie serials.

He laughed and his heavy brows almost hid his small, deep blue eyes, and tiny crinkles radiated across his sun-reddened face. It was hard to tell if he added any extra color.

I told him that his name had stuck in my mind since seeing that serial as a child. He shook his head ruefully and said, "I'd hoped everyone had forgotten that one. We did 13 episodes in about 30 days. That was the most confusing thing I ever did. We'd be in one spot and we'd do scenes for four or five different episodes at a time."

AFTER A sluggish period during which he played a succession of gun slingers and psychotic killers in the movies, Bridges is now one of the actors most in demand for television movies.

He made three TV movies last season, including "Silent Night, Lonely Night," and will be back in at least three this year. In addition, he is getting ready to star in his fourth television series.

"San Francisco International," in which Bridges plays an airport manager, will be a part of the "Four in One" series on NBC Wednesday nights.

The show will be a series of dramatic stories involving various workers at the S.F. International Airport and many of the passengers who pass through the terminal.

Asked to describe the role he plays, Bridges answered, "It's a kind of Burt Lancaster part." He burst out laughing, possibly at the thought of touching a sensitive nerve at Universal Studios. Lancaster plays a manager in "Airport," also produced by Universal.

He added, "He indulges in things like business and sex."

BRIDGES, who did not achieve real success until he was in his 40s, said, "I always hoped I'd be in a position where I could do the kind of parts I wanted. I'm not in that position yet, but I've done some good parts."

He probably is best remembered for "Sea Hunt," a hit series in the 1950s.

"San Francisco International" will be seen first as a World Premiere movie, then will run for six episodes on "Four in One." Clu Gulager, a former regular on "The Virginian," will play the airport's head of security.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

MOVIES, interrupted every few minutes for commercials and chopped to fit TV time slots, almost are unwatchable.

Comes now a new gimmick I first noticed recently at the start of the Shirley MacLaine-Robert Mitchum film, "Two For the See Saw." It was the line, "Edited for Television," flashed across the introduction. I suppose that meant the station had taken en out what it considered "indelicate."

Is this some new FCC regulation? Why can't the stations edit out these parts when trimming the

MILBURN STONE

KEN CURTIS

By Associated Press
Riding the rodeo circuit can be the road to riches for television's Western stars.

A performer who works at it diligently can pick up better than $200,000 during the year in guest appearances at fairs and rodeos.

Milburn Stone and Ken Curtis, who play Doc Adams and Festus Haggen on CBS's "Gunsmoke," have appeared at the Snake River Stampede in Nampa, Idaho.

They were at Greeley, Colo., on the Fourth of July and on Aug. 5 they go to the Pike's Peak Rodeo at Colorado Springs, Colo. In September it's the New Mexico State Fair and in October they play a date in Oklahoma.

STONE AND Curtis, along with Lorne Greene and Dan Blocker of "Bonanza," are among the most sought-after for rodeo appearances.

"The first year Ken and I teamed up we played 10 dates," said Stone. "The next year we played 18 or 19 together. Even before my heart attack I said I didn't want to do that many.

Stone only plays about five dates a year now, but Curtis plays a number of singles. "Ken more than doubles his 'Gunsmoke' salary, but he really works for it," Stone said.

Between rodeos and "Gunsmoke," Doc puts in a lot of time fishing at his favorite spots, Lake Mead and Lake Mohave, near Las Vegas. At the end of this month he and Curtis fly to Minnesota to fish for muskies for ABC's "The American Sportsman."

STONE AND Curtis travel with the Frontiersmen and Jeanie and put on a musical act that includes a large sampling of their bickering from the series.

"We tried splitting up the zingers, but it didn't work out that way," Stone said. "The audience wants to see him nail me every time. It's the country boy come to town."

Stone said he observes two rules on dates. "We turn down all private parties. There's always this guy who asks you to come out for a quiet dinner. And when you get there all of his friends are there and they've all had a snootful and start tugging at you."

Second, "we visit hospitals and the like. It takes up a time of energy. But if you don't feel this way you shouldn't be there. You've been in their homes every week, you're old friends."

Stone, who said his character is based on the real-life Dr. McCarthy and Dr. Fabrique of Dodge City, recently was asked to write the forward to the 17th edition of "Horse and Buggy Doctor," by Dr. Arthur E. Hertzler. "Being asked to write that means more to me than winning the Emmy," Stone said.

'HEADMASTER'

Griffith Talks About His Role

By VERNON SCOTT

Two years ago Andy Griffith departed the television series which bore his name to try his hand at movies. Now he's returning to television.

When he exited "The Andy Griffith Show" it was among the top 10 in the Nielsen ratings.

The decision to uncouple himself from the situation-family comedy was entirely his own. He could have continued to play Sheriff Andy Taylor for years.

As it is, the series continues as "Mayberry R.F.D." — with Griffith as one of the owners — high in the ratings.

There are similarities shared by Griffith and his video character. His voice is modulated, his wit quick, his sense of human nature keen. Despite the luck facade, Griffith is well educated and shrewd.

ASKED WHY he left a hot show that was making him rich, Andy replied:

"I wanted to do some pictures, try some different things and lie around."

40,000 MILES ON LOCAL 1964 T-BIRD
This Hardtop was traded in on a new Cadillac by local owner. Absolutely like new with near new premium tires, electric windows and FACTORY AIR. Phone 581-2311 and ask for Sam or Mike, Dir.

I did one picture ("Angel in His Pocket") and decided I needed more activity than that.

"I'm not the kind of person who can live without activity in his work. The way I see it, I'm lucky there's some place I can come back to."

Andy was sitting in a brand new land yacht vehicle with kitchen, bath, air conditioning and sleeping room for six. He was as proud as a kid with a new hound dog. He returns this September in "Headmaster" for CBS, the network on which he starred for eight years, playing a school teacher-director of a private high school. The show will be considerably more sophisticated than Andy's first series and deal with contemporary subjects: contraceptive

SPECIAL

SIN & THE CINEMA (28), 8 p.m. — How viewers can distinguish between art and trash is revealed in a comparison of films made for mature audiences with sexploitation pictures, as a producer, exhibitor, critics and psychologist join Charles Champlin in evaluating excerpts from "Popi," "M A S H," "Kelley's Heroes," "Patton," "Darling Lili" and "Strawberry Statement."

EVENING AT POPS (28), 10 p.m. — "Tonight's" Doc Severinsen gets an ovation when he shows his serious side with Ferle's "Concerto for Trumpet" and Monterde's "The Brave Bulls." Arthur Fiedler also features a "pops roundup" of themes from TV westerns from "Bonanza" to "Gunsmoke."

HOW TO Irritate People (11), 10:30 p.m. — John Cleese, a put-on expert known in England as "the tall, cruel one," joins leading members of Britain's anti-establishment establishment in a crash course in needling people, and driving them up the walls. David Frost, who produced the hour, introduces Cleese and fellow-actors.

house TV statistics may be debatable.

It is also doubtful that the ABC executives who, sight unseen, have contracted to broadcast the future MacLaine series, are really worried about her proposed Trojan horse tactic. But it makes better copy and has more class than a down-to-earth confession that, with good movie parts getting as rare as the golden condor, an actor who wants to work and keep his name above is wise to get involved with television.

THE PROGRAM, created and produced by Sheldon Leonard, will mark

Miss MacLaine's debut on television in a regular, continuing series. Scheduled for telecast in 1971, the program will be filmed in England and on the Continent by Associated Television Corporation, Ltd.

"The signing of Miss MacLaine," said Martin Starger, "is of major significance to the ABC Television Network. We can only express deep pride and satisfaction that she has decided to make her first television appearance on ABC."

'Headmaster' Andy

pills, suicide attempts and sex education.

GRIFFITH'S principal concern is shifting from the sheriff of Mayberry to headmaster of a high school.

"It's almost a shock assuming a new character," he said, "because I don't look like I used to seeing myself on the screen. It'll be interesting to see how people take it."

"I sound the same as Andy Taylor because I'm not changing my accent, but I don't wear the same clothes. The differences are there, but they are subtle."

"Instead of a rural setting, our show takes place in the San Fernando Valley."

ANDY WAS a teacher himself for three years at Goldsboro, N.C. His specialty was music. To this day he keeps a trombone, bass horn and baritone horn in his own home.

"We're going to use those horns on the show," Andy said, brightening.

"I still know how to play them, so periodically I sit down and practice on them instead of drinking coffee or something. It just sort of seemed like the thing to do."

"I've made other adjustments. Andy Taylor wasn't well educated. This new character is an educator. The fact that I was a teacher doesn't help much except that there are scenes I won't have to fake.

"I have to remember the differences in character all the time and act accordingly."

Does he think "Headmaster" will equal his old show?

"All I can say now is that it feels like a hit," Andy said.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

film? Why do we have to watch movies that bear little semblance to their original state?

Clyde Banks, Los Alamitos
(The Federal Trade Commission is making a study of cuts from motion pictures shown on TV and is looking for possible "deceptive or unfair trade practice by failing to disclose to the public the fact that a motion picture on TV has been substantially abridged.")

(NBC in June began using the "Edited for TV" card at the beginning of films, hoping this will satisfy the FTC.)

(The FTC said of 164 shown on the three networks the last half of 1969,

84 per cent were reduced by two minutes or more. Some trims noted: CBS took 24 minutes, 25 seconds from "Westward the Women," and 19-24 minutes from "Cheyenne Autumn," "Youngblood Hawke" and "A Distant Trumpet;" NBC took 14 minutes out of "Saratoga Trunk" and ABC cut 9 minutes and 31 seconds from "The Trouble with Angels."

(CBS said taste and time demands brought about the cuts of theater films shown on TV and said the FTC investigation was "absurd.")

HAS JUDITH ANDERSON's appearance on the David Frost Show in which she talked about her role as Hamlet been aired?

Joe Kingsley, Long Beach
(The show aired last Dec. 1. At the present time there is no plan to rerun it).

COULD YOU tell me if the movie, "Rebecca," has ever been shown on TV?

Ken M. Rice, Long Beach
(Yes, Ch. 2 had rights to the film and showed it about two years ago. It is not on the current schedules of other local stations, but will be logged when programmed).

TV NOTEBOOK

NBC-TV documentary producer Lucy Jarvis, whose most recent effort was the 90-minute offering, "Cry Help!", about mentally disturbed youth, will present an hour study on narcotics use among teenagers and younger children in prime time Aug. 24.

ARTHUR MILLER'S Broadway play, "The Price," will be presented as a 90-minute special on NBC-TV's "Hall of Fame" Feb. 3, starring George C. Scott. The play concerns "a confrontation between two estranged brothers — a policeman and a wealthy surgeon — who have avoided each other for many years. Their meeting raises questions about their past behavior. Has either wasted his life? What price have they paid for their illusions?"

TWO WOMEN have been signed to produce and broadcast special features on the half-hour program that precedes CBS-TV's National Football League games, "The NFL Today." Marjorie Margulies will write and produce the segments, and Carole Howey, who used to be featured in musical commercials, will be the "reporter." "College Football 1970 — The Year of the Quarterback," will be an hour ABC-TV documentary Aug. 27, focusing on such standouts as Rex Kern of Ohio State, Jim Plunkett of Stanford and Archie Manning of Mississippi.

CHIEF JUSTICE Warren Burger's annual message on the state of the judiciary, delivered before the American Bar Association convention in St. Louis, will be carried live by NBC-TV Aug. 10.

HOUSE Investigators have called for tougher government controls over broadcast news operations after charging that CBS acted recklessly to film an abortive Haitian commando invasion plot in 1966.

A CBS News spokesman denied the charges by the House Commerce Investigations subcommittee Monday and criticized the panel's inquiry as unfair.

The issue centers around the invasion scheme, thwarted on Jan. 2, 1967, when U.S. authorities rounded up a battle-clad, 75-member force in the act of embarking from the Florida coast. A small arsenal also was confiscated.

"A disturbing conclusion after the inquiry to date with respect to 'Project Nassau' is that the CBS News organization, having become elated at the prospect of a sensational news first — a complete documentary of the forcible overthrow of a foreign government — proceeded in a reckless attempt to capture the hoped-for film, and that it did so with no great regard for either accuracy or legality," said the panel's report, which was approved by the parent committee.

The report said some events might not have occurred without CBS inducements, and rejected a suggestion that cash payments to conspirators were in the nature of payment for releases — legal permission from an individual to film him.

CBS, after an eight-month effort, abandoned its project to film the scheme in December 1966, producing 45,000 feet of film and spending more than $200,000, the subcommittee said. The program never was broadcast.

Pays you $400.00-A-month each time you are hospitalized for as long

PAYS YOU CASH . . . at the rate of $400.00-A-MONTH for each accident or illness—beginning the very first day in the hospital—and continuing for life, if necessary. Coverage for accidents starts with the Policy Effective Date; coverage for sickness starts 30 days from the Effective Date.

PAYS YOU CASH . . . at the rate of $200.00-A-MONTH for the first three months, after you have reached age 65. And, a full $400.00-A-MONTH thereafter—while you remain in the hospital—even for life, if necessary.

PAYS YOU CASH . . . at the rate of $240.00-A-MONTH if a covered child is hospitalized for injury or illness. And the benefits continue for as long as necessary.

PAYS YOU CASH . . . at the rate of $400.00-A-MONTH for each pregnancy requiring a hospital stay, when Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits are added to the basic Plan. Coverage begins the very first day in the hospital.

PAYS YOU CASH . . . at the rate of $1,600.00-A-MONTH when both husband and wife (under age 65) are hospitalized at the same time for accidental injury for as long as both remain in the hospital—even for life, if necessary.

PAYS YOU CASH . . . at the rate of $400.00-A-MONTH when your doctor has you employ a full-time Registered Nurse within 5 days after you come home, following a stay in the hospital of five days or more for which benefits were payable. Your benefits continue for the same number of covered days that you were in the hospital—even up to 12 full months.

ONE out of two families will have someone in the hospital this year! It could be you—or some beloved member of your family—tomorrow . . . next week . . . next month. Sad to say, very few families have anywhere near enough coverage to meet today's soaring hospital costs. These costs have more than doubled in just a few short years. They are expected to DOUBLE AGAIN in the few years ahead.

Stop for a moment. Think how much a long stay in the hospital will cost you or a loved one. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary, X-rays, doctor bills, drugs and medicines? What would you do if your pay check stopped, but living expenses kept going on the same as ever? The same rent, phone, food, all the day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do when he finds himself in this predicament? We believe we have the answer in National Home's outstanding extra cash protection that relieves you of worry about the terrible financial threat of accident or illness.

Pays you $400.00-A-MONTH tax-free cash whenever you are hospitalized.

What a blessing it is when you know you have an extra $400.00 coming in every month—beginning the very first day you enter the hospital.

Now, this low-cost Plan from National Home enables you to enjoy this protection at once. Because it will NOT cost you $20.00. It will NOT cost you $10.00—or even $5.00 to enroll in this Plan. Your low first month introductory premium for you and your entire family is shown on the cover. Then you may continue at National Home's regular rates shown on page 5.

The added protection you NEED!

All benefits of this $400.00 A MONTH National Health Plan are paid directly to you in tax-free cash, in addition to whatever you may receive from your insurance with any other company. Spend the money as you see fit—for hospital or doctors' bills, to replace savings, mortgage payments—or any necessary, but costly, extras not fully covered by usual hospital policies.

Everything costs more these days (need we tell you?) and hospital care is certainly no exception. While 7 out of 8 Americans have some hospital insurance, most have found it does not cover all bills that pile up when sickness or accident strikes. That's why National Home developed low-cost extra cash protection that helps you pay either hospital costs or other expenses.

You get your cash benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month—TAX-FREE—as long as you are confined to the hospital—even for life, if necessary! (You are covered for accidents, starting with the Effective Date of the Policy—and for sickness after 30 days from the Effective Date.) And, remember, this National Home Policy pays tax-free cash direct to you in addition to whatever you receive from MONTH tax-free cash hospitalized... as necessary.

MEDICAL CARE COSTS rose in September, 1969, to 157.6% of the 1957-59 average from 156.8% a month earlier. These costs are components of the Government consumer price index.

any other protection you carry—Blue Cross, Blue Shield even Medicare, after you have reached age 65. And, when you and your insured spouse are hospitalized for an injury at the same time, this National Health Plan pays you an EXTRAORDINARY DOUBLE CASH BENEFIT. You receive not $400.00 but $800.00 a month. Your spouse receives not $400.00 but $800.00 a month. That's $1,600.00 in all (when under age 65), in cash payments to you and your spouse every month... for as long as you both remain in the hospital.

For older folks— greater protection than you ever would have thought possible!

Right now, would advancing age prevent you from getting hospital insurance, or income protection with another company? Or if you could get a policy elsewhere, would you have to pay a big premium for it? Your "life saver" could be this wonderful Extra Cash Hospital Plan (NH10-669 Cal.)—because National Home welcomes folks of all ages into its National Health Plans. Yes, even if you're 65 or over, even if you're OVER 100—each time you go to the hospital you collect extra cash benefits. To get complete information on our special plan for folks 65 and over, just drop us a card, and we will send complete details as soon as we receive your inquiry.

And that's not all. Suppose you have a growing family. This National Health Plan...

Pays you at the rate of $400.00 a month for Maternity Benefits!

Ordinary hospital insurance may take care of part of your expenses when you go to the hospital to have a baby. But now, this Plan can give you additional help when the new baby arrives. If Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits are added to the basic Plan, you get extra cash to use any way you want. If a pregnancy, childbirth or even miscarriage puts you in the hospital for one day, five days, ten days—as long as necessary—you are paid benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month for every day of your confinement.

Pays you $400.00-A-MONTH CASH for a Registered Nurse at home.

Yes, in addition to the $400.00-a-month cash we send you for your hospital stay, we pay you an extra $400.00 a month if the doctor has you employ a full-time Registered Nurse to take care of you at home.

How comforting it is to know that — after your stay in the hospital, if you've been there five days or more for which benefits were payable—you can return home to recuperate and yet not be a burden to your loved ones. Yes, if your doctor has you employ a full-time Registered Nurse within 5 days after you come home, we'll pay you benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month. And your benefits continue for the same number of covered days you were hospitalized—up to 12 full months.

STILL MORE EXTRA CASH BENEFITS ON NEXT PAGE

Pays in addition to any of —tax-free—to us

All these added cash benefits.

Yes, in addition to all the other cash benefits mentioned above . . . you get:

Added cash benefit: $1,000.00 cash for accidental loss of limb or sight of one eye, when the loss occurs any time within 90 days of the accident. The loss of a limb or eyesight is a terrible thing. Nothing can replace the loss, but a check for $1,000.00 or $2,000.00 helps bring greater peace of mind during the period of adjustment.

Added cash benefit: Choose Coverage for Children (with or without Maternity Benefits) and all your dependent, unmarried children, age 1 month through 18 years, will be covered, too! This National Health Plan pays at the rate of $240.00 A MONTH any time your youngster is hospitalized . . . for removal of tonsils, appendix or any other illness or injury!

Waiver of Premium Benefit.

Should you or your spouse be hospitalized for eight consecutive weeks or more, National Home WILL PAY ALL PREMIUMS THAT COME DUE FOR YOU AND ALL COVERED MEMBERS OF YOUR FAMILY WHILE YOU ARE CONFINED TO THE HOSPITAL BEYOND THIS INITIAL EIGHT-WEEK PERIOD. And your protection continues just the same as if you were paying the premiums yourself. Then, if you leave the hospital and must return for the same condition before you have resumed full normal activities for 90 days, we will again PAY ANY PREMIUMS WHILE YOU ARE IN THE HOSPITAL—for the total confinement. This means you pay no premiums, yet your full protection remains in force.

These are the ONLY exclusions.

Your National Health Plan Policy covers every kind of sickness or accident except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or functional nervous disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and expenses resulting from any sickness or injury originating before the Effective Date of your Policy . . . during the first 2 years only.

This last item is a real help if you already have a health problem. If you are sick before you take out this Policy, you will even be covered for that condition after the Policy has been in effect for 2 years. Meanwhile, of course, every new condition is covered.

How can your Introductory Premium buy so much?

You can buy ordinary insurance any time and pay the regular rates, if you wish, but this National Health Plan can now provide you and your entire family with $400.00-a-month tax-free cash protection at these low introductory rates for the first month:

Only $1 per adult!

Only $1 for all children!

Only 50¢ for Maternity Benefits!

Why? Because we enroll a large number of people at one time—direct by mail! This highly efficient "mass enrollment" method reduces our costs—and the savings are passed on to you!

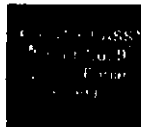

Make your decision carefully.

Think how costly a hospital confinement will be. Imagine paying for those indispensable doctor, surgical and nursing services that are not covered by your present insurance.

Would you be able to afford a telephone to keep in touch with loved ones? Or the rental of a TV set to help pass the lonely hours? Who would pay your bills that keep on coming in at home? DID YOU PUT YOUR $1 IN WITH YOUR ENROLLMENT FORM INSIDE THE ENVELOPE?

ther coverage you have e as you see fit.

penses. And no one knows who will be in the hospital next.

Why you must act before the date shown on your Enrollment Form —just a few days from today.

Why do we give you so little time to enroll in this Plan—only a few days? Because this is a limited enrollment, we must receive your Enrollment Form at the same time as all the others in order to pass on to you the savings that come from processing many policies at one time. This highly efficient "mass enrollment" method enables us to give you broad coverage at low cost.

We mail you the Policy as soon as we receive your Enrollment Form. When the Policy arrives, examine it in the privacy of your own home. Take all the time you need. It's a very short document, and you'll be pleasantly surprised to discover there is NO FINE PRINT. Then—show it, if you wish, to someone you trust. Perhaps your lawyer, accountant or doctor. Better still—show it to your own insurance man... even though he may be working for another company! If he is a personal friend, he has your best interests in mind. So you can believe him when he tells you that this Plan offers truly outstanding value.

Nationally known and respected.

This is the kind of outstanding protection you have read about in Reader's Digest, Parents', National Geographic and other leading publications. The special plans offered by the National Liberty Corporation group of companies are today helping policyowners in all 50 states -- and many foreign countries -- paying benefits at the rate of more than $1,500,000.00 a month. In addition, our Company has a RECOMMENDED rating from Best's Insurance Reports, one of the foremost insurance authorities in the nation.

Money-Back Guarantee—in case you change your mind.

Even after you mail your Enrollment Form... even after you examine the Policy in your own home and talk it over with anyone you wish... even after all this, you are still free to return the Policy within 15 days after receiving it, and your introductory premium will be refunded at once. There will be no obligation whatsoever.

Meanwhile, all during the 15 days you are making up your mind — you'll be protected by $400.00-A-MONTH extra-cash benefits just as if you had already said "yes." That's right, you will be fully covered all this time for any accident which puts you in the hospital, even if you finally decide to return the Policy.

However, after you've seen the Policy for yourself, you will surely agree that this is a tremendous value and you'll want to continue this $400.00-A-MONTH extra cash protection.

HERE ARE YOUR LOW RENEWAL RATES.

The following rate chart shows how little it costs, after the first month, to cover yourself, your spouse or any other adult dependents. Naturally, at these low rates, we can issue you only one policy of this type. Each adult, 16 or over, pays the rate shown for his or her age.

Age at Enrollment	Monthly Premium per Adult
16-44	only $3.45
45-49	only $3.95
50-54	only $4.45
55-64	only $4.95

Only $1.90 more per month covers all your dependents...

from the age of 1 month through 18 years. Newborn children are covered automatically at the age of one month—at no additional cost! For Maternity Benefits just add 95¢ monthly if both husband and wife are covered — or $1.50 monthly if the wife only is insured.

NOTE: The regular monthly premium shown above (for age at time of enrollment) is the same low premium you will continue to pay; it will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next. Once you have enrolled in this National Health Plan, your rate can never be changed because of how much or how often you collect from us—or because of advanced age—but only if there is a general rate adjustment, up or down, on all policies of this type in your entire state.

Act now—"later" may be too late!

TIME IS PRECIOUS! Act quickly. (No salesman will call.) See your Enrollment Form into the mail today—because once you suffer an accident or sickness, it's TOO LATE to buy protection at any cost. That's why we urge you to act today—before anything unexpected happens.

20 IMPORTANT QUESTIONS ANSWERED ON NEXT PAGE

THESE 20 QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS...

1. How much will my Policy pay me when I go to the hospital?

You receive cash benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month from the very first day you enter the hospital. Your coverage begins when we receive your introductory premium—this is the day you are covered for any accident. Sickness coverage begins 30 days after the Policy is issued. You collect cash not just for yourself, but for all Covered Members of your family when they are hospitalized.

Once you have reached 65 years of age, you collect in addition to any Medicare benefits—$200.00 a month for the first 3 months, and $400.00 monthly while you remain continuously hospitalized afterwards.

2. Do you pay me cash when my children go to the hospital?

You collect cash benefits at the rate of $240.00 a month any time your child goes to the hospital, when Coverage for Children is added to the basic Plan... each time any dependent, unmarried child (age 1 month through 18 years) is in the hospital for sickness or injury.

3. What about any children we have in the future—will they be protected, too?

They surely will! When you have Coverage for Children (with or without Maternity Benefits), your "new addition" will be covered automatically at the age of 1 month and at no extra cost.

4. Will you pay me cash benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month—even for pregnancy?

Yes, even for pregnancy. Some health plans don't cover pregnancy. But we do. When Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits are added to the basic Plan, you collect at the rate of $400.00 a month for each pregnancy, childbirth or miscarriage that results in a hospital stay when both parents are enrolled under the Plan for the entire pregnancy.

5. Are there times I might collect as much as $1,600.00 a month?

There are! Remember, we pay cash not just for you but for every Covered Member of your family. National Health Plan Members get an EXTRAORDINARY DOUBLE CASH BENEFIT. If you and your covered spouse are both in an accident and go to the hospital at the same time, you receive $1,600.00-a-month tax-free cash (when under age 65). This amount is paid for as long as both of you remain in the hospital—even for life, if necessary.

6. How much do I receive for a Registered Nurse at home?

You collect benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month up to $4,800.00 when your doctor has you employ a full-time Registered Nurse within 5 days after you return home. You need only to have been hospitalized 5 days or more for which benefits were payable. Your Registered Nurse At Home benefits continue during employment of the nurse for the same number of covered days you were in the hospital—even for as long as 12 full months.

7. When do I collect extra cash for accidents?

We pay you $1,000.00 extra cash for complete accidental loss of one hand or one foot or sight of one eye, and $2,000.00 extra cash for loss of both hands or both feet or sight of both eyes—even if the loss occurs as long as 3 months after the accident. Naturally, the loss of limb or eyesight is terrible. Nothing can replace the loss. But a $1,000.00 or $2,000.00 check can help bring peace of mind during the period of adjustment.

8. If I'm hospitalized less than a month—do you still pay me cash benefits?

Of course, we do! Regardless of whether you are in the hospital for as little as one day—or as long as a week, month, year or more—you always collect the full amount you are entitled to for every single day at the rate of $400.00 a month.

9. What if I already have some health or hospital insurance—will you pay me anyway... on top of what they pay me?

Of course we will! That's the beauty of your National Health Plan. That's why it's called an Extra Cash Plan. Never mind what you collect from Blue Cross, Blue Shield or Workmen's Compensation. We still pay you at the rate of $400.00-a-month extra cash—even for life, if necessary. So, if other insurance has taken care of some — or even all — of your medical bills... you still have that extra cash income from this National Health Plan. Isn't that a nice way to end an illness? Naturally, at these low rates, we can issue you only one policy of this type.

10. How can I spend my cash benefits?

Spend the money any way you choose. To cover bills from the doctor, surgeon, nurse, druggist or anyone who has given you care and treatment. If you have money left over, use it to pay for living expenses like rent, food, clothing. Or put it in the bank to replace any income you lost during your hospitalization.

11. Am I ever allowed to stop paying premiums during a long stay in the hospital—yet still remain fully covered?

Yes, you are! Should you or your spouse be hospitalized for 8 consecutive weeks or more, National Home will pay all premiums that come due for you and all Covered Members of your family while you are confined to the hospital beyond the initial 8-week period. You aren't expected to pay us back either.

12. How can you give me so much — for so little?

Because you deal direct with the Company—direct with National Home itself. You virtually "write your tell you how this National Home Extra Cash Hospital Plan gives the protection you need at amazingly low cost!

own policy." Right on the Enrollment Form on the next page. No middlemen needed! We do away with the costly processing charges and "red tape" that raise the cost you pay for most insurance.

13. Doesn't enrolling by mail take away the "personal touch"?

Certainly not! We give you more personal service, not less. But instead of getting it when you sign up — YOU GET IT WHEN YOU SUBMIT A CLAIM! That's when it really means something. And that's when National Home gives you plenty of service.

14. Because this National Health Plan costs less . . . do I get less protection?

Absolutely not! You get more! A full $400.00-a-month extra cash — every month — for as long as you are hospitalized. All you pay is the low introductory premium for the first month's protection. And you can continue this protection for as long as you want (though, of course, you are under no obligation to continue) at the regular low National Home rates shown! That's why we urge you to compare these big cash benefits with any comparable policy issued by any other insurance company . . . anywhere!

15. Now tell me what's the "catch" — what doesn't my Policy cover?

Get ready for a welcome surprise. Your Policy covers everything except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or functional nervous disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and any sickness or injury originating before the Effective Date of your Policy — but even this last "exclusion" is done away with after you've been a policyowner for only two years. Everything else is definitely covered.

16. Does this Plan pay in any hospital?

You are covered for care in the hospital of your choice, except, of course, a U.S. Government hospital or a nursing or convalescent facility.

17. What are the requirements to enroll in this National Health Plan?

You must not have been refused or had cancelled any health, hospital or life insurance due to reasons of health; and, to qualify during this Enrollment Period, you must enroll before midnight of the date shown on the Enrollment Form.

18. Will you cancel my Policy if I have too many claims? Or because of advanced age?

No — positively not! Only you can cancel. The Company cannot — no matter how many claims you have . . . how old you get . . . or for any other reason whatsoever. A GUARANTEED-RENEWABLE-FOR-LIFE clause has been printed right on the front of your Policy, and we're bound by it.

19. Besides saving money—are there any other advantages of joining this National Health Plan during this Enrollment Period?

Yes, there surely are! A very important one is that you don't need to complete a lengthy, detailed application—just the brief Enrollment Form on the back of this page. Also, during this Enrollment Period there are no extra requirements for eligibility and no "waivers" or restrictive endorsements can be put on your Policy!

20. How do I enroll?

Fill out the brief Enrollment Form and mail it with your introductory premium for the first month's protection for your entire family—before midnight of the date shown. Mail to: National Health Plan, Valley Forge, Pennsylvania 19481.

Fast, Reliable Claim Service When Needed Most.

You never really know how good a policy is until you have to make a claim. That's why we think you'll be interested in what some of our National Health Plan members have to say. Their comments — quoted below — are typical of the hundreds of expressions of appreciation we receive from policy-owners every week . . .

"Received your check for $880.00. I appreciate having the money sent directly to me so I could decide how to use it."
NICHOLAS CRISTL, Green Bay, Wisc.

"It was wonderful to receive your check for $555.00. I'm very pleased. It paid real well."

MRS. BESSIE GEISINGER, Kansas City, Mo.

"Everyone should have your coverage. I know I wouldn't be without it."

WALTER TUCKER, Fayetteville, N.C.

OUTSTANDING AMERICANS RECOMMEND THIS PLAN.

DR. E. STANLEY JONES, Internationally known evangelist, author, missionary statesman:

"In offering low-cost health insurance by mail, you are rendering a valuable service to thousands of people who have no other opportunity to avail themselves of such protection. It's reassuring to know that policyowners insured by the National Liberty group are receiving more than $1,500,000.00 a month in benefits."

LT. GEN. W. K. HARRISON, U.S. Army (Retired):

"People benefit in many ways when they purchase insurance direct by mail from National Home Life Assurance Company. They save money through lower rates. No salesman calls. And no medical examination is required. I consider it a sensible, economical way to increase one's health protection in these days of mounting hospital and medical costs."

JEROME HINES, leading bass with the Metropolitan Opera Company:

"It seems to me that the concept of health insurance by mail is a very sensible one. It's quick, easy and economical. Nobody makes surprise visits to your home to ask personal questions. There's no medical examination. And costly processing charges are eliminated. The U.S. Mail does the work for you. This means more protection at less cost. I congratulate National Home Life Assurance Company for meeting a real need."

WELLS REPORT

Death of a Movie

I went out of a Saturday evening a few weeks ago to see a film called "Zabriskie Point," made by a quiet, wiry, 58-year-old Italian named Michelangelo Antonioni. It was fortunate that another Antonioni film, "Blow-Up," was the second feature. Otherwise you would not have been able to tell that the director is a genius. "Zabriskie Point" is the most beautifully photographed turkey ever made.

It made me sad, the movie, as all failures by gifted men make me sad. I had walked the campus of Cal State Long Beach with Antonioni and listened to his ideas. His English is poor and I do not think he is an articulate man anyway, but I caught something of his desire to contrast the bitter strife of our urban generations with the ageless serenity of the American Land. The film has three main settings — a riot-torn California campus, the corporate lairs of successful capitalism and harsh, primitive Death Valley.

Antonioni photographed Death Valley magnificently, but he failed on the War of the Generations. It wasn't entirely his fault. Both sides were suspicious of his neutrality and his motives.

He staged a simulated sex orgy, the fantasy of youth, in Death Valley, and the Establishment came down heavy on him in the persons of district attorneys and other law officers who conducted well-publicized investigations.

He went to San Jose State and Cal State Long Beach to film the protest movement and promptly became mired in the internal politics of militancy.

He had arranged to shoot demonstration scenes at San Jose State, but was shot down by a real demonstration — the American Federation of Teachers' ill-fated strike against that institution. His Hollywood craft unionists refused to cross picket lines.

So he came to Cal State Long Beach. He offered to pay the college $1,000 a day for five days to shoot in the central quadrangle area. He wanted to hire up to 300 students as extras at $25 a day, and he offered to lecture at no fee to classes on the cinema.

The college was aware of Antonioni's reputation as one of perhaps 20 directors in the world who had shaped the motion picture into the authentic art medium of our time. Many faculty members and administrators were familiar with his critical successes, "L'Avventura," "La Notte," "Red Desert," "Blow-Up." The college tentatively agreed to the filming contingent on the working out of a satisfactory legal contract.

The news came to the campus via the student newspaper, the Forty-Niner. It had approximately the same local impact as the news of the discovery at Sutter's Mill. Professors reported that students casually reading the newspaper while waiting for classes to start suddenly leaped from their chairs and dashed off to the Placement Office to sign up as extras.

Not everyone was as enthusiastic. The then student body president was miffed that he had not been allowed to handle the negotiations and to make the announcement to the student newspaper. The ethnic minority groups on campus had never heard of Antonioni. They had, however, heard of MGM which was financing and distributing the movie. MGM had produced movies in which Ronald Reagan had appeared.

Handbills were distributed by one ethnic minority group demanding that the filming be banned as a plot by MGM acting for Ronald Reagan to defame and discredit the student protest movement. The student body president endorsed this demand.

The college said OK, we won't let it be filmed here. The studio was notified that it would not be possible to film on the Cal State Long Beach campus.

The student body, which had signed up almost en masse for extra work, was furious. Letters denouncing the ban, including several from minority students, deluged the Forty-Niner. The student body president reversed his field. He hadn't banned Antonioni, he said. It had been the bad old administration.

Antonioni, no more sad-eyed than usual, left Cal State and finally filmed his demonstration sequence at USC. Far from being a Reagan propaganda piece, the completed film was uncritically and shamelessly pro-protest movement.

"Zabriskie Point" was a disaster. One cannot escape the feeling that, had Antonioni chosen to make a film about the making of the film, he might have achieved what he had in mind — a significant statement about America and the war between the generations. □

By Bob Wells

Leo's new imported ham makes a great sandwiches.

Next to being a former movie star, the quickest road to political success these days seems to be to have a famous politician for a father.

Nationwide, prime examples are Robert Taft Jr., running for senator from Ohio, and Adlai Stevenson III, running for senator from Illinois. In addition, there is John D. Rockefeller IV in West Virginia, who is the nephew of two governors and the son-in-law of a U.S. senator — and best known of all, Ted Kennedy.

California has an example in Edmund G. Brown Jr., running for secretary of state — but probably the brightest star and most sought after young man of Southern California politics is another holder of a famous name, Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr.

Of course young Goldwater is aware of criticisms that he's the conservative version of Ted Kennedy and that if he had been plain Barry Morris rather than Barry M. Goldwater Jr., he might have lost to the late Patrick McGee, the same as some people say that Edward Moore Kennedy wouldn't have been elected if he had been plain Edward Moore.

Young Barry nodded ponderingly. "The name Goldwater didn't help my dad in 1964, but I'd be naive to say that the limited amount of success my dad has received hasn't helped me — sure it has — I'd be naive to deny that, and I'm proud to bear his name."

On the other hand, no one can escape from a name if he or she already has it, whether it's Ted Kennedy and Barry Goldwater Jr. in politics or Nancy Sinatra in entertainment. To young Barry's credit, he has indeed tried to make life on his own in California rather than drawing on the family name in Arizona. Instead of going into the family store in Phoenix, he entered the stock brokerage business where his name would not be before the general public.

Except for being a much younger and slenderer man, and not wearing those famous black-rimmed glasses, young Barry looks very similar to his famous father. For one thing, he has that same jutting rock-like jaw.

Ironically, however, the person he is most like in appearance and mannerisms is the famous movie actor Paul Newman, who, to say the least, is hardly a conservative.

The sandy-haired young Goldwater, with sideburns and a dimple in his chin, frequently gestures with his head — like closing an eye and cocking his head toward the door to say by motion, "Let's go down the hall."

A shock of his sandy hair sometimes falls over his high forehead.

He is very pensive, frequently frowns when he talks, often glances out the window as if to gather up his next thought, and frequently purses his lips or pouts.

He is rather tersely spoken, but speaks in a strong voice. He gestures frequently, but often rather tensely.

BARRY GOLDWATER, JR. A LOT LIKE HIS DAD

Like his father, Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr. is quite self-assured. Young Barry shows great inner strength of character, and quite obviously learned both his inner strength and his strength of character from his father. He differs from his father in that he is much more serious, doesn't smile as frequently and doesn't seem to have the elder Goldwater's lively wit or flamboyance. He admits he has the fault of working too hard.

By William Wingfield

Like his father, young Barry is quite self-assured. Young Barry shows great inner strength of character, and quite obviously learned both his inner strength and his strength of character from his father. He differs from his father in that he is much more serious, doesn't smile too frequently, and doesn't seem to have the elder Goldwater's lively wit or flamboyance.

Indeed, young Goldwater himself will admit that he has the fault of working too hard and probably taking his job too seriously.

Once this caused him some embarrassment and provided great merriment for the Washington press corps when he fell asleep during one of his father's speeches.

More seriously, overexhaustion caused him to wreck his private airplane. He said he just didn't know how tired he was when he took off, so he made some misjudgments. Being overly tired, he acknowledged, can be quite similar to having had just a little too much to drink.

He said, "I didn't realize how tired you can get when you get into politics. Perhaps it's ego, but you never want to admit you're never perfect. You don't want to admit you're too tired to fly."

Yet, hard work is something he sincerely believes in. Since his constituents elected him to serve them, he feels it is his obligation to put everything he can into the job — and he has the added problem of having the second largest Congressional district geographically in Southern California. The reason for buying the airplane was to be able to cover the vast district which extends from China Lake through the overpopulated San Fernando Valley.

The added handicap, he finds, is that while two-thirds of the residents of the district live in the San Fernando Valley, two-thirds of the problems are up in Antelope Valley, which is now just beginning to have a population explosion caused by the $950 million Palmdale Intercontinental Airport.

In his lapel, young Barry wears a Boy Scout pin. While the Boy Scout ideals sound "square" and as archaic as the New England Puritans to those who sip martinis in elegant hotel cocktail lounges, Barry Goldwater Jr. finds ideals and old-fashioned American traditions a pretty practical working way of life.

His enthusiasm for flying, which he also learned from his father, exemplifies his beliefs.

He recounted, "I flew with my father when he flew. I got my license 11 years ago. I use flying for business and pleasure. I find flying a great way to get away from your routine."

"I find it a challenge — pitting yourself against nature — pitting yourself against a machine — a challenge of freedom — a challenge to excel."

Like flying, politics is a similar challenge for young Goldwater.

"One pits you against machinery, the other against your fellow human," he maintained. "I guess I'm made that way — I enjoy competing — I enjoy the challenge to get ahead."

"This is the American way," he declared. "Those who don't accept it tend to become wards of the state. The man who accepts the challenge to compete becomes productive — and, because of his production, he himself contributes to society and the way of life we enjoy."

"To me," he claimed, "nothing is impossible if one wants to put the time in. The ingredient that is necessary is the desire to work and to work hard."

"Perhaps I'm idealistic, but I don't think I am," he said. "I proved this to myself in the stock brokerage business in 1962. That was a bad year (both for stocks and for Republicans), but I decided to be a successful stockbroker, and, after eight years, I feel that I did."

He recalled that he came to work an hour or two before the others, often worked through lunch, and stayed on an hour or two after the others had left. While the others were out drinking martinis, young Goldwater was the only one in the office on several occasions when an extremely important telephone call came through.

"That's one reason I think Gov. Reagan is doing a good job," he added, "he's a hard working governor."

"If I had to pick a favorite statesman, I'd have to say my father number one," Barry Jr. stated. "In today's terms, I have to admire Ronald Reagan for his honesty, simplicity, common sense approach to things, and for his charm."

Aside from his father, Sir Winston Churchill is the man that he admires most. Appropriately, many conservative Republicans have compared the

THE AUTHOR

Jacqueline Susann is the spicy Pandora of show business. From Broadway to Hollywood through the TV success tube, she lifts the glittering lid off glamour in fictional kinescopes that rival reality — sometimes too closely for comfort.

"There is nothing I've written in my books ('Valley of the Dolls,' 'The Love Machine') that I haven't seen happen," says Miss Susann. She believes "the big thing that made my books is that they have something to say about the pressures of our time."

The author, a glamorous lady in her own right, likes to say she was born on November 14, 1963, the publication date of her first book, 'Every Night, Josephine,' an engaging biography of her poodle. But her private life started some what earlier in Philadelphia where her father was a noted portrait painter and her mother a schoolteacher.

At 16 young Jackie left the City of Brotherly Love to invade New York's theater world, promising that "if I didn't make good I'd return home and go to college." Within the given time, however, she married Irving Mansfield, now a television and motion picture producer, and for the next dozen years pursued her acting career on the stage and in TV dramas.

Finally discontent, set in, Miss Susann got sick of "always playing the glamorous girl who got strangled, stabbed or shot," and began to moonlight seriously as a writer, working up short stories, articles and even a science fiction book.

Smashing success met publication of her first novel, 'Valley of the Dolls,' which has sold over 10 million copies in paperback alone, hit the New York Times best-seller list for 65 weeks, and has been made into a movie and published in 17 languages.

Her next coup was 'The Love Machine,' sold to Hollywood for $1.5 million — said to be the biggest price ever paid for movie rights to a book.

While writing, author Susann is a wonder of self-discipline. In a small, neatly organized workroom, she charts dates and events relating to her characters on a large blackboard, trusting nothing to memory. She generally writes five different drafts, with each typed on different color paper.

Then, before embarking on her vigorous promotion tours, she begins writing the first draft of her next novel, "so when I finish promoting my finished novel I don't have to return to an empty typewriter." Her system works.

And so do glamour marriages work, asserts Jacqueline Susann in an entertaining story that cites her own long, bappy — and glamorous — marriage to Irving Mansfield.

Glamorous author of best-sellers "Valley Of The Dolls" and "The Love Machine," Jacqueline Susann has a love life of her own, centering around her husband, television producer Irving Mansfield. Since her days as a starlet they have lived in a world of tinsel and temperament, gossip and beautiful people, amid all the temptations to which the characters in Miss Susann's books sooner or later fall victim. How has their long and happy marriage survived it all? Here is Miss Susann's personal formula, with a few entertaining anecdotes. (In photo below, she and Mansfield relax at beach.)

WHO SAYS GLAMOUR MARRIAGES DON'T WORK?

By Jacqueline Susann

When I was a child the world was bright and beautiful. The snow was white in the winter and the grass was green in the summer. There was no smog. There were no jets. People traveled by train and passed the time by reading books.

As a child I was an omnivorous reader. The Arabian Nights, Sleeping Beauty and Cinderella were my gospel. All my favorite stories began with "Once upon a time" and ended with "And they lived happily ever after."

But today I am willing to concede that the closing line from my childhood fairy tales ... "And they lived happily ever after" ... is just that ... a line from a fairy tale. To make a marriage work ... one must work at it.

The most rocky kind of marriage is the glamour marriage. This poor hackneyed thing has been kicked around scandal magazines and movie magazines for years and years. Sure, they advocate glamour marriages ... four or five to a customer.

But do they ever look at the other side of the coin? The successful glamour marriages. They DO exist. Could anything be more glamorous than the marriage of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor? There will be many kings of England listed in history. But there will be only one king who gave up his throne "for the woman I love." This marriage has lasted over 30 years.

And it wasn't too long ago when we all watched the televised wedding ceremony of an American who became a princess. Grace Kelly became Her Serene Highness of Monaco. The bride was one of the most beautiful women in the world. The prince was handsome. They now have three beautiful children. This glamorous marriage is alive and well in Monaco...

THE USUAL WHISPERS

Every human relationship — with or without benefit of clergy — has problems.

The average marriage has money problems. The young couple who have small children and are worrying about payments for the television set, the new tires for the car, the life insurance payments, the doctor bills for HIS mother, the dentures for HER mother, stare with envy at Jackie Onassis on her yacht or Elizabeth Taylor as she shines her newest diamond.

I have heard the usual whispers about many alleged "glamour marriages." "They really hate one another" ... "Know why they always have that extra man along? ... He cheats on her every second with HIM ... She cheats on him every second with HIM" ... "They're BOTH homosexuals ... it's a marriage of convenience." Sounds far-fetched? Well these are just a few of the absurd whispers made about glamour marriages.

I am privileged to know Princess Grace and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. I don't think either of these marriages needs any testimonies to its success. I do not know Jackie Onassis or Mrs. Richard Burton, but I am sure that, in spite of their diamonds and yachts, they do work AT their marriages. But I cannot talk about their marriages with any personal knowledge.

WHO SAYS GLAMOUR MARRIAGES DON'T WORK?

In fact, when you get right down to the nitty gritty, no one can talk about ANYONE'S marriage, except his own. That lovely man next door who helps his wife dry the dishes might turn into an ax murderer the following day.

My marriage has been called a "glamour marriage." It even sounds like a fairy tale marriage. It certainly has all the physical accoutrements. My husband, Irving Mansfield, is attractive, endowed with a great sense of humor and good health.

He's a successful television producer and is financially and emotionally secure. (The kind of a man all of Helen Gurley Brown's readers are des-everything.

But I have heard the snide whispers.

"She writes about those kinds of people in her books and THEY aren't happy. So how can SHE be happy?"

"And she writes about marriages like these and they end in divorce. So how can HER marriage work?"

ANSWER: I lose all the small battles and win the big ones. (Translated) I try HIS way before I say NO. He tries things MY way before HE says NO.

EXAMPLE: I am the kind of lady who never walked if she could sit. But I married a man who should have entered the Olympics as a long-distance walker. I'll prove what a daring type I am ... I actually heard that when he was in college he thought nothing of walking home from New York to Brooklyn on a cold winter's night.

Author Jacqueline Susann in her library.

THE WALKING MANSFIELDS

I KNEW things like this BEFORE I married him, but I plunged right in. On the other hand, he KNEW I couldn't cook — but HE plunged right in. He swore he could eat baloney sandwiches all his life. (I have since learned to make a passable steak, and he no longer walks to Brooklyn.) He compensates for this little loss in other ways.

Take golf for example. Some people use those darling little carts. But NOT the Mansfields! Up hills ... down hills ... across streams ... through sand traps ... and do I complain? Not a sound comes out of me. I have to conserve my wind!

Besides, I'm grateful he doesn't insist we carry our own bags.

But I did give golf a sporting chance, and after a season of blisters on my hands and feet, I made a hole-in-one and wound up a real aficionado.

Irving grew up in Brooklyn during the depression. There was no dog to traipse across the Brooklyn Bridge with him in his youth. No tail-thumping, wonderful mongrel named Spot or Rover. And, God knows, no one on his block had ever heard of a French poodle. In fact, if his mother had ever seen a French poodle in those days, she would have put it in a pot and boiled it!

Sixteen years ago I went out on my own and bought Josephine.

When Irving saw her he went into shock. When he found his voice, it came out loud and clear. "Either she goes or I go!" Anyone who knows us, or has read "Every Night, Josephine!" knows that, after the first few weeks, Irving would have given me away sooner than Josephine.

As the years passed, and she became an integral part of our lives, Irving stated that, when the time came and she went to Dog Heaven, perately trying to find.) The wife (that's me) is a former actress, now a successful writer, healthy and fairly normal. (If you don't count being balmy over animals an eccentricity.)

Now let's be objective about how we look to the public. Two people in love (with each other), dividing their time between Los Angeles and New York, with stopovers in Rome, London and Paris. These people seem to have we would NEVER have another dog. We loved Josephine too much. The loss would take too much out of him. He never would allow himself to get attached to another.

Think of us as a soft drink.

Josephine died January 6th, 1970 ... four days before her sixteenth birthday. The following day, a friend brought me a two-month-old BOY toy poodle ... Joseph Ian. I called Irving at the office and told him. Irving broke all track records dashing home — with a rubber chew toy for Joseph Ian.

When we were married and he placed the ring on my finger and kissed me, I was positive we would live happily ever after. But in this world, NO ONE lives happily ever after. With children we have the happy times ... and the terrible moments when they are ill. Their misery becomes our misery.

As we mature, we face the fact that our own parents cannot live forever. We find friendships do not always last. There is good luck and bad luck. There are highs and lows. But we learn that life means survival. And marriage means survival TOGETHER.

An equal amount of give and take on both sides.

LOVE AND PEANUT BUTTER

In the beginning I was a struggling actress and Irving was a television producer. Sounds cute and homey and glamorous, doesn't it?

You want to know how thrilling it was for him to listen to how many parts I didn't get? How all the producers on and off Broadway were united in a conspiracy to keep me from becoming a star?

And do you realize that this marvelous man actually sat and ate his peanut butter sandwich for dinner and listened and commiserated? (No, he isn't a nut for peanut butter ... but I hadn't learned to make the steak yet and he liked peanut butter better than baloney that year.)

But, as I've stated, it's not a one-way street. As his wife, I also went along with his career. (After all, HIS career clothed and fed us ... mine was kind of a sadistic hobby.) Ah ...

the memories of Irving's early career in television.

It began when he created "Talent Scouts." There were those thrilling dinners with Arthur Godfrey at the Lexington Hotel. And then there were dinners with the men from the advertising agencies. And who can forget that night when I almost died at the Black Angus Steak House?

We had gone there with a group after a dress rehearsal of one of Irving's new shows. The rehearsal hadn't gone too well... (Translation) We had to be extra nice to the agency men. Laugh at their jokes... drink the same drinks they drank. (I still can't figure out why people feel chummier if you drink what THEY drink.)

Irving had an ulcer. That meant I had to do the drinking for the both of us... And this group wasn't drinking Dr. Pepper. Martinis were the order of the evening.

Now a martini can be liquid gold — it can also be total disaster, if it's the first martini in your life and you have three within an hour.

There are moments in my life when I fancy myself as a female James Bond; daring — invincible. Unfortunately, this was one of them. So when they ordered the fourth round, I nodded cheerfully.

I vaguely recall taking one sip — from then on Irving had to carry the "charm" alone. With an actress' sense of timing, I managed a graceful and steady exit to the ladies room, where for one hour I lay inert with an anxious matron hovering and a cold towel on my head.

And then I wrote...

NOVEMBER, 1963. My first book, "EVERY NIGHT, JOSEPHINE!" The story of Irving and me and Josephine. The poodle who owned us. Our lives suddenly changed. No more advertising men. When we went to a cocktail party, no one insisted we drink martinis.

We were suddenly surrounded by every dog lover in the place, asking us advice in the care and feeding of their dog. Suddenly we had become the Dr. Spock of the poodle world.

FEBRUARY, 1966. My second book, "VALLEY OF THE DOLLS." Our lives changed even more. When we walked into a cocktail party we were singled out by every insomniac in the place. "I fall asleep as soon as my head hits the pillow. But two hours later I'm wide awake. Should I take a red pill or a yellow one?" or "... I'm a compulsive eater... do you really recommend the 'sleep cure'?" (From Spock we had switched to Dr. Freud.)

MAY, 1969. My third book, "THE LOVE MACHINE." Robin Stone, the protagonist of the book, has a few love affairs that are a bit unconventional. One affair is with a transsexual. Another is a brutal encounter with a prostitute.

Then there is a girl in the book named Ethel Evans. She's a bit hard to describe. She's a Celebrity-Lover. Only she collects their autographs while she's on her back. And there is Judith... an aging socialite who goes to a plastic surgeon and has EVERYTHING lifted. Face, breasts, etc. in an effort to get Robin Stone.

Now things REALLY changed. Forget cocktail parties! We were suddenly invited to Wife-Swapping Parties... Orgies... and there was even a movement to make us Den Mother and Father of a new underground newspaper. But we declined all these little gratuities.

We live the same simple life and go to the same neighborly penthouse cocktail parties where friends stare at Irving and whisper, "Do you think he's REALLY like Robin Stone?" ... "How do they manage to STAY married?" ... "And they actually look happy... they're even smiling."

And I still smile... even when I see young kids shouting, "Marriage is obsolete." "Marriage is an unnatural state." "Marriage cannot survive."

We have lived through Irving's television shows, life in Beverly Hills, "Valley of the Dolls," "The Love Machine"... and through it all our marriage has not only survived... it has triumphed! □

Animals in Paradise

By Mark Clatter

"In the wild a lioness that lives out her life may have 45 to 60 cubs," said Bill York, chief warden of Lion Country Safari. "Only two on an average will reach maturity. Disease and accidents kill the others."

"Here in Orange County 80 per cent or more will grow up."

The lions and other animals in Southern California's bit of Africa have the best of all possible worlds. They enjoy freedom without the dangers that go along with freedom.

"Lions are hunters by instinct," York said, "but they don't have to hunt to be happy. They enjoy life just as much if men bring their food to them."

The food they get is horse meat and the rough cuts of beef with the hides and bones and chicken culls. A proper diet for lions includes hair and feathers. They also get vitamins and minerals and powdered supplements. At regular intervals blood samples are taken to make sure they are in good health.

"Lions love chickens, but they don't like eggs," York said. "It is interesting to watch a lion with a hen. He makes a surgical incision with a claw and delicately removes the eggs without breaking them. Then he eats all the chicken except the long wing feathers."

Many of the lions have never hunted, but they would know what to do if they were released in a wilderness. "They would be rather clumsy at first," York said. "In Africa the mothers teach the young lions how to hunt. She shows them the tricks, but she doesn't have to tell them they are hunters. They are born with the knowledge."

The queen of beasts is more dangerous than the king. In open country the lionesses usually do the stalking and chasing while father babysits. If they can, they drive the game to him and he makes the kill.

Lions live in prides — family groups — and claim definite territories as their own. They will kill men or beasts, including lions, that invade their land. That is why it is so important to keep the windows up and never leave the car in Lion Country Safari. The lions don't resent automobiles, but a man on foot would be considered an invader.

The attitude of the lions toward cars ranges from indifference to mild curiosity. It is said to be a bit of a thrill when a full-grown lion sprawls on your hood and stares at you in an eye-to-eye confrontation. They have been known to swipe at moving windshield wipers and even to gnaw tires. Rangers, constantly on patrol in their special zebra-striped jeeps, provide safety for people. And animals.

The Safari lions are the happiest lions in the world. They are free to roam, play, make love, stuff themselves and lie in the sun. They have come to a leonine paradise without dying.

There is much more to Lion Country Safari than 150 lions. It is a dream involving a combination of big money and idealism. The nearly 500 acres on the Irvine Ranch off the San Diego Freeway near the Laguna Freeway represent an investment of $12 million for the initial phase. Millions more will be spent later.

The idealism cannot be measured in dollars. The dream is to create the perfect environment for the great beasts of Africa. They are under siege and face destruction in their homeland. A rising protein-hungry population, ruthless "sportsmen" and the need for more croplands threaten to wipe out both the lions and their prey. "It may be, said Bill York, "that the Lion Countries Safari will one day restore to Africa its native animals."

The Lion Countries — in Africa, Europe, Florida and now in California — are proving highly successful. The one in Florida had 1.1 million visitors last year. It is predicted that the one in Orange County will attract three million thrill-hungry Californians and tourists this year.

The parent organization is National Leisure Inc., headed by Harry Shuster, a dynamic, youngish attorney from Africa.

Our Lion Country Safari is raw new with construction still going on. It will be going on for years, with elegant dining rooms, luxurious hotels, wonderful museums and the like on the drawing boards. There is even talk of establishing African villages where visitors can see tribesmen in their native habitats.

Animals in Lion Country Safari — or en route — include 60 zebras, 10 white rhinoceroses, 10 elephants, 12 giraffes, hundreds of antelope of more than 20 species, 15 hippopotamuses, 20 cheetahs (this cat, clocked at 65 miles an hour, is the fastest beast on four legs), scores of various apes and monkeys, and hundreds of birds, including ostrich, East African crowned crane, flamingo, pelican, peacock and secretary bird.

It's big business. During the peak season it employs 1,100, with 400 permanent, year-around employees. The senior wardens are all from Africa, but the 30 rangers are Americans.

To really understand Lion Country Safari you should meet Bill York. He is a youngish Briton who has spent most of his years in the African wilderness. He is covered with scars from scratches and bites. "I've learned not to play with lions," he said. "They mean no harm, but it hurts to be scratched."

He is a gentle-spoken man with a talent for British understatement. But he is tough. An employee said, "If anyone neglects or abuses an animal, he is through. Bill never gives anyone a second chance."

It was suggested to York that Orange County is rattlesnake country and that snakes might find the park a fine place to live. What would he do about them?

"I'd feel like killing a man who killed a snake," he said with cool anger. "We'll capture

NINETEEN

An open or shut case for the multi purpose room. Perfect for the newlywed students.

INTERIOR BOUTIQUE by ELLEN KREC

DECORATING BY DEGREES

Many of today's serious-minded college students learn too late that it is often less difficult to find a mate on campus than a place to live after the wedding bells.

And when it comes to selecting furniture, few newlyweds (collegiate or otherwise) know what most long-time marrieds have learned: that a couple's first household equipment somehow survives to haunt them through the years.

To educate just-weds in the art of practical home economics, it became the challenge of Donald H. Oppen to design for Kroehler Mfg. Co. a home-in-one-room for students with an eye on life after the diploma.

Oppen began his search for a room near campus and discovered a typical walk-up building complete with cracked walls and badly damaged floors.

With a total of $1,000 (could be your wedding loot), he completed the setting pictured above. Artistically designed, the room's practicality is its ability to travel nicely to the next stage in life. Oppen's honest approach dictated that the mini-bath and kitchen-in-a-closet should be yours to decorate.

Here's the thinking behind Oppen's move-along room: Temporary Masonite panels, used to cover the tacky walls, can be reused at another address (be sure to make pre-arrangements with landlord). The marred 12-by-15-foot floors were covered with inexpensive removable white shag rug.

The largest expenditure was for the Kroehler sleep lounge, framed in the window wall by matching drapes to make the room appear larger and well planned. The upholstered companion chairs were selected cautiously for hard wear as well as beauty and comfort. The classic lines of all three will insure their future in the next home.

Chrome and glass form the corner table which is large enough to contain such necessities as telephone and lamp. The Parson's table, a bright persimmon touch in the black and white room, can remain flattened for buffet or placed perpendicularly for study or intimate dining. The dining chairs are handsome, white painted rattan and wicker, cushioned for comfort.

It's an educated plan for decorating by degrees — magna cum laude.

MORTUARY

WHEN HEADLINES ARE FORGOTTEN...

MANY names flash quickly into prominence via newspaper headlines . . . and then just as quickly, are forgotten. However in business or professional ranks a few names take firm root in the public mind, actually becoming better known and more deeply respected each year. This slow but sure development of public confidence we know as REPUTATION!

SUCH is the reputation of Mottell's, built on the integrity of our founder and preserved intact during the sixty-one years of this firm's existence.

SELDOM is a good reputation so important as in the funeral profession. It must be earned through years of experience . . . cherished under all circumstances . . . and passed on by way of teaching and example.

ONLY those who have been served by Mottell's can truly appreciate the comfort of entrusting all arrangements to our care. Important also is the fact that despite the many advantages offered by Mottell's, the charges are never higher than elsewhere.

MORTUARY

Glad you asked that!

By HY GARDNER

Q: I've heard that Katherine Hepburn remained a spinster all her life because of her great love for the already-married Spencer Tracy. Is this legend or fact? Florence Margo Marlowe, Pheonix, Ariz.

A: Katharine Houghton Hepburn was no spinster. Born in Hartford, Conn., Nov. 8, 1909, she graduated from Bryn Mawr and married Philadelphia Ogden Ludlow Smith in 1928. They had what was described as an "amicable divorce" in 1934.

Q: On the recently televised Tony Awards show, why was Alfred Lunt wearing an eye patch? — Ray Mason, Brentwood, N.Y.

A: From his home in Genesee Depot, Wis., the veteran actor reveals: "If it's of any interest, the reason I wear an eye patch is because I have lost the sight completely in my left eye. Let's let it go at that. Sincerely, Alfred Lunt."

Q: I'd like to go on the "white wine diet" Peter Lawford talks about on TV. What is it? — T.L. Kennedy, Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

A: Also called "the drinking man's diet," it consists of a dry white (or rose) wine, sipped with a mild cheddar cheese (or a reasonable facsimile), plus tomatoes, lettuce, cucumbers, etc. The theory is that the wine speeds up the metabolism and burns off the calories before they can do any damage. You can drink as much wine and dine on as much cheese as you choose — for meals, snacks, nightcaps, etc. Also lean steaks, provided you're not a glutton.

Q: Is it true David Frost was once a minister? What churchmen and evangelists have guested on his TV show? — Eugenia R., Seal Beach, Calif.

A: Son of a Methodist minister, David at 19 was a lay preacher in his father's church in England. His wit bolstered attendance, but he still preferred show business. Among those guests who have exchanged thoughts on David's TV "pulpit" have been Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, evangelist Billy Graham, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the late Bishop James Pike, Rev. Malcolm Boyd (the "coffeehouse priest"). Even atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair aired her views, with which her host expressed complete disagreement.

Q: I remember when Margaret Truman and the Johnson daughters resented having Secret Service men "chaperone" them on dates. Is Tricia Nixon having the same problems? — Alice B., Houston.

A: Yes. She still hums "The Third Man" theme on her dates. President Nixon told the Ladies Home Journal that whenever Tricia has a date there's always a Secret Service man or two in the vicinity. "But she is very determined that the agent stay out of sight and sound. When she asked me about this, I said, 'You do what you want. There are agents available, and you take your own risks — especially with what's going on these days!'"

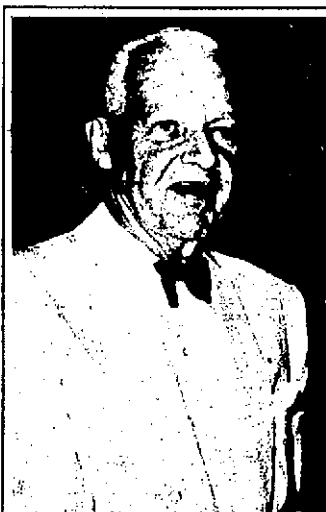

Q: I've got a bet that it was Paul Anka who wrote the stirring lyrics to the musical theme for the movie "Exodus." Do I win? — H. Lempera, Chicago.

A: I'm afraid you lose. It was singer Pat Boone who, in 1961, put words to the music written by Ernest Gold a year earlier. Then introduced "The Exodus Song (This Land Is Mine)."

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of Southland Sunday, P.O. Box 2505, New York, N.Y. 10017. He will answer as many questions as he can in his column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

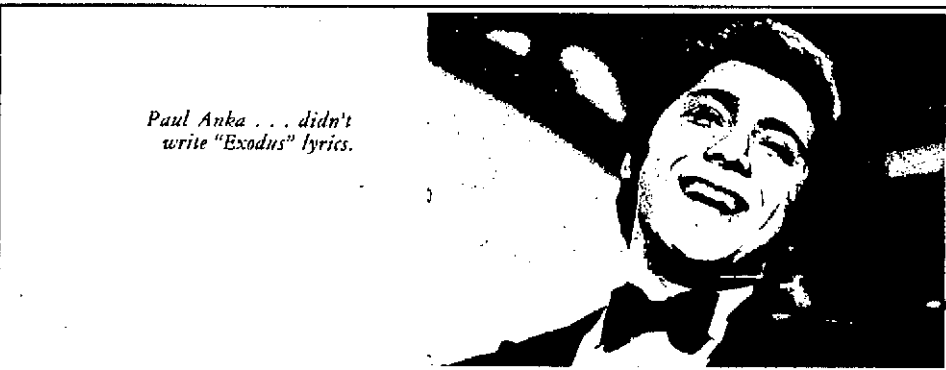

Katharine Hepburn . . . not a spinster.

Alfred Lunt . . . now wears eye patch.

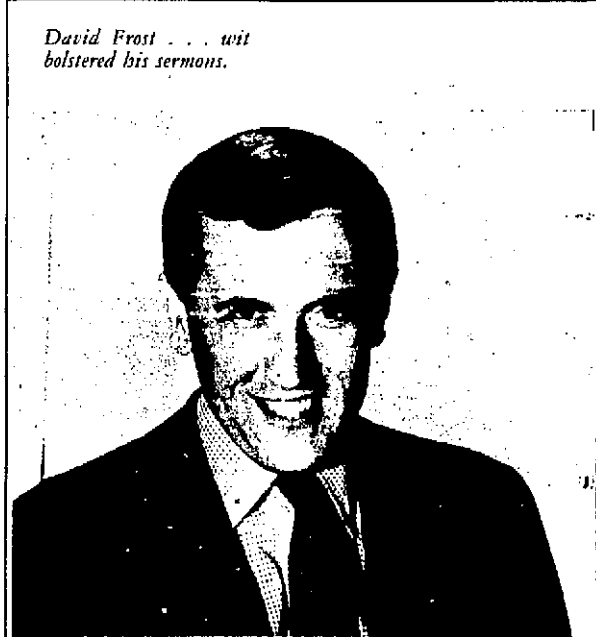

Peter Lawford . . . diets on wine.

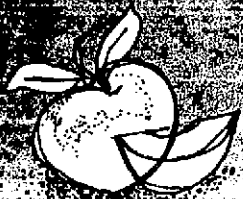

Paul Anka . . . didn't write "Exodus" lyrics.

Tricia Nixon . . . still hums "The Third Man."

David Frost . . . wit bolstered his sermons.

TEAM NECTARINES WITH CHEESE

By Mildred K. Flanary
Home Economics Editor

Fresh nectarines, with their exhilarating, tart-sweet flavor, are good accompaniments for most cheeses. Whether you prefer mild cheese such as a Jack, a mellow Gouda or something piquant such as Gorgonzola, you'll find nectarines thoroughly compatible.

"Blue Cheese Ring with Nectarine Mint Sauce" is a case in point. Here the tangy blue cheese flavor is mellowed considerably by mixing the blue cheese with cottage cheese and whipped cream in a gelatin mold seasoned with lemon juice and a little onion powder. The sauce is simply made with melted apple jelly, sliced nectarines and chopped mint. The combination of flavors is nothing short of superb!

The cheese ring and nectarine sauce are shown here as a salad for an alfresco dinner featuring barbecued chicken, but you might keep the recipe in mind as a way to dress up a barbecued beefburger dinner as well, either as salad or dessert.

Other Nectarine-Cheese Ideas

■ Serve cubes of cheese and halved nectarine slices on toothpicks for an afternoon snack or dinner appetizer.

■ Arrange nectarine slices petal fashion in a sherbet glass; center with a scoop of cottage cheese and garnish with a maraschino cherry or roasted diced almonds for a pretty salad sundae.

■ Cut nectarines into halves or quarters; mound each with whipped cream; cheese and garnish with a little chopped crystallized ginger; serve with brown-sugared strawberries for dessert.

■ Spread a slice of lightly toasted wheat bread with margarine and mustard; arrange nectarine slices over, and top with a slice of American cheese; run under the broiler until the cheese melts around the edges.

■ Serve Brie cheese with plain soda crackers and a salad of torn spinach, sliced nectarines and sliced green onion tossed with an oil-vinegar dressing.

BLUE CHEESE RING WITH NECTARINE MINT SAUCE

- 1 envelope plain gelatin
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 pint (1 cup) small curd creamed cottage cheese
- 1/4 cup crumbled blue cheese
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt or salt
- 1/2 teaspoon onion powder
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- Nectarine Mint Sauce
- Romaine

Nectarine Mint Sauce

- 2 to 4 fresh nectarines
- 1 cup apple jelly
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh mint
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Soften gelatin in water and stir over low heat just until dissolved. Mix cheeses, lemon juice, salt and onion powder; stir in gelatin. Whip cream and fold into gelatin mixture. Turn into 2- to 2 1/2-cup mold and chill until set. Invert onto plate and spoon Nectarine Mint Sauce across. Garnish plate with inner leaves of romaine and mint sprigs, if you wish. Pass any remaining sauce.

Nectarine Mint Sauce: Slice nectarines to measure 2 cups. Melt jelly in saucepan; stir in lemon juice, mint, salt and nectarines.

BARRY GOLDWATER, JR.

elder Goldwater to Sir Winston as a voice crying in the wilderness to whom no one would listen until too late.

Young Goldwater stated, "I think Churchill was a man of conviction, knowledge and foresight - an able and capable leader. He was a strong individual. He evoked strength from the people."

Like Churchill, although not as dramatically, his father has been vindicated, young Barry feels. Barry Jr. remembers that his father used to tell him various things were going to happen such as internal chaos, violence and almost outright revolution, and sure enough, they did.

"He happened to have the ability to see into things with a common sense interpretation," young Goldwater said. "I think many of the things he predicted in 1964 are with us today, be they Vietnam or the economy."

For another example, the "Southern strategy" which Sen. Goldwater attempted in 1964, has proven out for President Nixon.

In addition, Vice President Spiro Agnew is now receiving great national acclaim for saying almost exactly the same things that Sen. Goldwater was ridiculed for saying in 1964.

If anything, Barry Jr. believes his father was four to six years ahead of his time.

Barry Jr. commented, "I think Vice President Agnew is speaking for the average American who is not in a position to be heard - people who are sick and tired of institutions of learning being used for a battleground, the destruction of private property, the disrespect and ridicule of our flag and leaders, American tradition and history."

"Those who criticize Agnew do not realize there are two sides to every question."

"Our news media has the responsibility not only to report the controversial things but also the good things that are being done."

Goldwater believes Agnew is only trying to get people to think and to question - to ask if perhaps there is too great a centralization of the communications industry such as television and national magazines on Manhattan Island and if the self-styled "opinion makers" don't realize a whole nation exists beyond the shores of Manhattan.

He agrees with Agnew that perhaps too much has been made of the campus disturbances, which gives them "credibility" - that many impressionable people may think that unless a contrast is shown or the immorality pointed out, burning down a bank is the "in" thing to do.

Naturally, he also supports Agnew's call for Americans to next try to land on Mars.

Congressman Goldwater is a member of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, and views the quest for the moon and the planets as but the latest step of the Great American Adventure that first brought the Goldwaters to frontier Arizona in the days of Wyatt Earp.

He further commented, "The exploration of space is valid only as it contributes to the advancement of society and the American people. I personally feel the investment in space has provided a greater return to the American people than any project I can think of. This, unfortunately, has not been sold to the American people."

"The reason we enjoy the comforts of life is through technology, and that's what aerospace is all about. It's not just to go to the moon. I could list thousands of products and spin-offs in the space effort."

Some of these most noteworthy are in medicine, such as heart valves and heart replacement parts. Possibly the whole heart transplant program stems from American space efforts. Medicine has also derived electronic methods for monitoring the entire body, along with many computer applications that have freed doctors from "busy work."

New materials, especially in plastics and metals, have been developed.

A whole new field of communications has opened up.

It is now possible to discover mineral deposits from satellites.

In these days of the population explosion, of which Goldwater's district is a prime example, some scientific discovery rising out of space exploration, as yet unknown, may turn out to be crucial for continued human existence.

Congressman Goldwater continued, "The mere fact that the moon is out there provides man's instinct to explore. It's a new frontier. Man's instinct is to explore. I think that's good."

When he has time for reading, Barry Jr. likes biographies.

"I like especially reading about successful people," he said. "When you feel down and out and read about successful people, you see it can be done."

For future ambitions, he is non-committal. He thinks time will take care of these.

After all, he pointed out, his predecessor as congressman from the 27th District, Ed Reinecke, obviously had no intention of becoming lieutenant governor when he was first elected to Congress - and besides, if Gov. Reagan hadn't tapped Reinecke to succeed Robert Finch, there wouldn't have been a congressional seat for Barry Goldwater Jr.

"If I do the job as best I can, the future will take care of itself," he said, perhaps fatalistically. □

Back in 1946, John Wayne starred as a daring South Seas adventurer in a movie called "Wake of the Red Witch." It still shows up occasionally on the nation's TV screens.

When restaurateur John Fulton opened his inn in Long Beach harbor, he felt its name should recall the romance and glory of America's sailing men. So he decided to call it the Red Witch Inn.

Now 10 years old, the Red Witch — decorated in a smart red and black motif — has an unusual location in the heart of one of the nation's busiest ports. It is at 700 Henry Ford Ave., reached conveniently via Anaheim Street or Seaside Boulevard. Surrounded by boat and bridge activity, it is near the Ford Avenue drawbridge and almost beneath the tall towers of the Commodore Heim span.

The Red Witch is part of the old Ford plant where Model Ts and Model As were assembled in the 1920s. It is also part of the Southwind yacht marina, operated by Fulton. The yachts ride at anchor a few yards away from the inn's red-trimmed roof. They are many feet higher than the roof.

How is such a phenomenon possible? During the port's subsidence era of the 1940s and early 1950s, the Ford plant and adjacent land began to sink. When the subsidence halted, the plant's facilities were 17 feet below sea level. A sturdy dike separates the restaurant and the marina. A nearby stairway enables the inn's guests to explore the anchorage.

Serving dinners every day, including Sunday, starting at 4:30 p.m., the Red Witch emphasizes delicious, cooked-to-order sea foods, steaks, Hawaiian spareribs, roast beef and poultry dishes, $3.95 to $7.25. Included are iced relishes, soup or salad, a loaf of hot fresh bread and dessert wine. Everything is beautifully prepared by No. 1 chef Jim Lee and his staff.

Nearby is another restaurant, also owned by Fulton. It's the Brass Penny family-style inn, which serves Friday through Sundays starting at 5 p.m. Its prices are lower, offering children's specials from $1.25 to $1.95 and adult dinners from $2.25 to $3.95. Included are a big tureen of soup and a big bowl of salad, placed on the table so there can be second helpings. The prices include beverage and potato.

The Brass Penny, spacious and modern, is also available for breakfast, luncheon and dinner banquets throughout the week.

GUIDE by Tedd Thomey

Let us shed a tear or two for the great Persian poet and mathematician, Omar Khayyam.

It is sad that he lived and died long before the advent of pizza. Had Omar tasted this culinary gift from the Italians, he might have been tempted to take up his quill and write:

"A round of pizza, a jug of beer and thou singing beside me in the wilderness..."

Admirers of the poet may never forgive me for paraphrasing his immortal words in that way. But Omar himself might, because he had an exquisite understanding of how well the flavors of certain foods and beverages go together.

Such as pizza and light or dark beer. That combination is treasured by presidents, kings, queens, governors, secretaries, tight rope walkers and dog catchers — in addition, of course, to musicians, calculus wizards and poets.

Everybody loves pizza, especially the way it's baked in super hot ovens at Me-n-Ed's parlor, 4115 Paramount Blvd. near Carson Street, Lakewood. Operated by Bob Baldwin, a tallish, friendly fellow who enjoys a thriving trade, Me-n-Ed's is a modern, immaculate, air-conditioned place designed like a public house in olde merry England.

Now seven years old, the Lakewood Me-n-Ed's is a family restaurant with gleaming, varnished picnic benches where Mom, Dad and the kids can spread out while enjoying the pizza varieties. The delicacies, priced from $1.30 to $3.95, come in three sizes — individual, large and giant.

Made freshly to order, they are topped with many different cheeses, herbs and spices. The varieties include plain cheese, sausage, pepperoni, salami, linguica (a kind of sausage), mushroom, beef and onions, anchovy, olive, bell pepper and the combination of everything. The crust, which has a nut-like flavor, is easily one of the very best I've ever tasted.

For the adults, Me-n-Ed's offers draft and bottle beers and excellent coffee. Milk and soft drinks are available for the youngsters. Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, the place hops, jumps and bounces to the old-time music of Ted Brown, playing banjo, fiddle and guitar, and his sidekick, George Buxton, playing an ancient rinkytink piano.

Researchers have found what they believe to be a relationship between the Epstein-Barr virus and Hodgkin's disease, a malignant condition involving the lymphatic system.

Earlier observations have associated the E-B virus with infectious mononucleosis (glandular fever), throat cancer and a malignancy known as Burkitt's lymphoma.

Now, investigators at the National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md., and in Philadelphia say they have found high antibody levels against the E-B virus among patients with Hodgkin's disease. (Presence of antibodies indicates exposure to a foreign body such as a virus.)

Doctors say the significance of the finding is still unknown. The E-B virus may turn out to be a "passenger" virus, meaning that it is not the causative factor in the disease but merely present.

The report was made at a meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research.

Swiss researchers think that the frequent physical breakdown of athletes during the 1968 Olympics in high elevation Mexico City can be attributed to the following physiological phenomenon:

Oxygen shortage at higher altitudes may provoke overbreathing which, in turn, leads to a decrease in the volume of the liquid portion of the blood.

Three doctors at the University of Zurich, Switzerland, say that although reduced performances were expected during the Olympics, the "frequent physical breakdowns were largely unexpected." One member of the Swiss rowing team had symptoms which suggested severe deficiency of blood volume.

The doctors observe that the psychological stress of Olympics participation may favor overbreathing and thus contribute to the development of deficient blood volume.

The report is in The Lancet, a British medical journal.

An instrument known as the flexible fiber bronchoscope is said to be valuable in the detection of early lung cancer.

Researchers say that the instrument permits observation of up to twice as many areas as hitherto possible.

Although the device has been marketed in Japan for about two years, it has just been introduced in the United States, reports the Journal of the American Medical Association.

A drug called guanidine can be helpful in the treatment of botulism, a sometimes fatal ailment involving food poisoning.

Two University of Colorado Medical Center doctors report the case of a 43-year-old woman who was admitted to the hospital for botulism treatment 35 hours after eating potato salad in a small tavern.

The patient was treated with a special antitoxin, and also by guanidine, a drug administered by mouth. Because of respiratory paralysis, the woman required a respirator for a month.

The Denver doctors, reporting in the New England Journal of Medicine, say this is the second report of a patient who has responded favorably to guanidine, a stimulant drug once used in the treatment of myasthenia gravis.

Scientists have learned precisely why bread smells so good while being baked.

Researchers for the U.S. Agricultural Research Service found that a key ingredient in the odor is a chemical known as 1, 4, 5, 6-tetrahydro-2-acetopyridine.

The investigators say that this substance with the jawbreaking name has been isolated. By itself, the chemical has an overpowering odor of soda crackers. When exposed to air it quickly undergoes physical and chemical changes. This rapidity suggests why the aroma of freshly baked bread does not last long.

When researchers sprayed week-old bread with a solution of the chemical, the bread regained a desirable fresh-bread odor. Some observers foresee possible commercial application: use of the chemical to increase the marketability of old bread.

The report is in Scientific American.

WALTER SCOTT'S Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y., 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Is Richard Nixon a member of the Lakeside Golf Club in North Hollywood? I was in the locker room the other day, and I noticed that locker #381 had his name on it. How long has Nixon been a member of this club?—John Palmieri, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Nixon does not belong to the Lakeside Golf Club. Once in a great while he plays there with member Bob Hope who has locker #386. Actually, the name Richard M. Nixon on locker #381 is a gag, used to impress visitors. When a guest checks in at Lakeside and asks to play a round of golf, he is frequently told, "Sure thing, just throw your clothes in Dick Nixon's locker. It's #381, and it's open. The President won't be going around today."

Q. Is it true that actress Lee Remick has become the femme fatale of Europe, that she is howling over every man in her path, that she was recently named "the other woman" in a famous divorce case, that she has never recovered from her friendship with John F. Kennedy?—T.P., Philadelphia, Pa.

A. Actress Lee Remick, 34, divorced from her husband, TV producer Bill Colleran, in Mexico last year, was recently named as "the other woman" in London by British actress Valerie Gearon. Miss Gearon was granted a divorce on the grounds of her husband's alleged adultery with Miss Remick. Valerie Gearon's ex-husband is William "Kip" Gowans, an assistant film director, who charms women with his tenderness, understanding, and attention. He is 30. Valerie Gearon appeared in the film, Nine Hours to Rama, and more recently as Anne Boleyn's sister in Anne of the Thousand Days. Miss Remick has known or met many men in her time, among them the late John F. Kennedy, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and others.

Q. Shocking, isn't it, that Olof Palme, Prime Minister of Sweden, was not invited to the White House when he was in Washington some weeks ago. How come?—Peter Olafson, St. Paul, Minn.

A. Palme, 43, a graduate in 1946 of Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio, is against the U.S. involvement in Vietnam. Sweden has given sanctuary to U.S. Army deserters. President Nixon was showing his disagreement with the Swedish attitude by not inviting Palme to the White House. The Swedish Prime Minister, however, did spend a few hours with Secretary of State William Rogers.

Q. Is the Catholic Church gaining or losing membership in the U.S.?—Xavier Collins, Chicago, Ill.

A. For the first time in this century the Roman Catholic Church in the U.S. has suffered a decline in membership. There are now 47,872,089 Catholics in the U.S.A., a decrease of 1149 from a year ago.

Q. I am a resident of Alabama. During the recent political campaign between George Wallace and Governor Brewer we were told that Brewer's wife is an alcoholic, that the Brewers' two daughters were pregnant by Negroes, and that the State of Alabama was in danger of Negro domination unless we voted for George Wallace. Was any of this true?—D.L., Huntsville, Ala.

A. None of it.

MARCELLO AND SOPHIA IN "THE PRIEST'S WIFE."

Q. Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni are making a film called The Priest's Wife. A drama or a comedy?—Neil d'Angelo, Atlantic City, N.J.

A. A comedy about a priest who has an affair with a woman he passes off as his sister.

Q. Why would a man like Howard Hughes become the largest gambling operator in the world? I mean gambling just involves money. It doesn't produce real goods. Surely Hughes is not interested in making more money.—Owen Roberts, Lake Tahoe, Nev.

A. Hughes owns six casinos in Las Vegas, one in Reno, with 221 tables for roulette, craps, and blackjack, plus 2275 slot machines. His casinos account for about 15 percent of the $550 million wagered annually in Nevada. Hughes moves in mysterious ways. Why at this point he should devote the remaining years of his life to the organization of a gambling empire, only he knows. He is already a billionaire.

Q. How much is Lawrence Welk worth? Is he a skinflint and penny-pincher as I have heard? Does he pay his musicians more than union scale?—Louise Allenberg, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A. Welk, 67, is worth at least $20 million, much of it in real estate. He is a penny-pincher, largely because he has never forgotten the traumatic poverty of his early youth in Strasburg, N.D. Welk has been known to pay some musicians more than union scale, but not many, and not frequently.

Q. Is Audrey Hepburn washed up as a screen star? Did she have a menopausal baby? How old is she?—Edna Hutchins, Monroe, N.C.

A. Audrey Hepburn, 41, mother of a new son, may be finished as a film star but there is still a place for her in television.

Q. I have read that there was a feud between Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gen. Ike Eisenhower, that they really detested each other. Was this so?—Claude Easterley, Providence, R.I.

A. MacArthur was jealous of Eisenhower, was once reported to have described Eisenhower as "the best clerk who ever served under me." Eisenhower considered MacArthur a melodramatic ham whose word was not his bond, said many times sarcastically that he had "studied dramatics" under MacArthur.

MACARTHUR AND EISENHOWER IN TOKYO, 1946.

Q. Who was Charles Carroll in American history? I know he signed the Declaration of Independence.—Lena Tryon, Baltimore, Md.

A. Charles Carroll of Carrollton, Md. (born in Annapolis, 1737, died in Baltimore, 1832), was the last signer of the Declaration of Independence to die. He was also at age 95 reputed to be the wealthiest man in the U.S. A lawyer who served as a Senator from Maryland, he was one of the great patriots and landowners of the Revolutionary War period.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

ANTI-SEX PILLS A newly discovered group of wonder drugs --anti-androgens--may soon be available as a cure for baldness, acne, and prostate troubles.

Anti-androgens work by suppressing the effects of male hormones, androgens, without producing the feminizing effects of female hormones.

Already anti-androgens have been used experimentally in the following ways:

--At Schering Laboratories in Berlin, "SH 714" has proved successful in the treatment of hypersexuality or uncontrollable sexual drives. By next year Schering hopes to have the drug on the market under the name of Sinevir. Already German law accepts Sinevir as an alternative to castration for certain kinds of sex criminals. A daily dose of Sinevir will cost at least $1, but Schering still estimates 30,000 German men need and will buy the drug.

--Another German researcher, Dr. Ursula Laschet, feels she is nearing a definite cure for baldness through anti-androgen treatment. In Berlin two researchers have found an anti-androgen that rids women of superfluous body hair.

--In Britain doctors use the drug to halt a rare disease known as precocious puberty in which the sexual development of a child occurs much earlier than it should.

--In Bloomfield, N.J., U.S. Schering is testing anti-androgens on dogs, working to find one drug with which to treat non-cancerous enlargements of the prostate common in elderly men. Such a drug would provide a needed alternative to surgery.

--The Syntex Laboratories in Palo Alto, Calif., hopes through anti-androgens to lower the cost of meat by making it feasible to produce beef from cattle which have not been castrated.

--Other Syntex scientists are working on an anti-androgen to help socialize pets that are spoilt, aggressive or overly protective of their owners.

Nearly 40 years ago Dr. Ralph Dorfman, now a vice president at Syntex, first envisioned such a multipurpose drug and started the search for it. He noticed that eunuchs, who are deficient in androgens, generally escape baldness and the need to shave.

SAIGON Once a hot, sleepy, corrupt French colonial city, relatively unheard of by most Americans, Saigon in the past ten years has grown from a city of 250,000 to become one of the world's largest.

The capital of South Vietnam now boasts some 3 million people and has earned the awful distinction of becoming the world's most densely populated city.

A group of Stanford University biologists recently made public its findings on the ecological effects of the Indochina war in a conference held at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel in San Francisco.

The report, entitled The Destruction of Indochina--a Legacy of Our Presence, reveals that while the U.S. is saving the South Vietnamese from the horrors of communism, "the military is transforming a basically rural agrarian society into an urban nightmare which is economically dependent on the continued presence of the United States. America and its Allies have forcibly transported people from hamlets into refugee camps located in and near cities, and have driven many more off their ancestral lands by bombing and defoliation."

The ten-page report sells for 25 cents and is available from the Stanford Biology Study Group, Stanford, Calif. 94305.

RIGHT TO STRIKE In most states and, of course, in the Federal Government, Government workers do not have the right to strike.

In Hawaii, however, the legislature has passed a law granting all Government workers, including police and firemen, the right to strike.

The sole restriction, abrogating that right, is if public health and safety are endangered by a strike.

In Hawaii the two largest public employees' unions are the United Public Workers with 8000 members and the Hawaiian Government Employees Association with 16,000.

ROBIN MAUGHAM WITH UNCLE SOMERSET MAUGHAM.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

In 1967, Robin Maugham, nephew of famous author Somerset Maugham, wrote a book called The Wrong People.

It was published in the U.S. as authored by one David Griffin. The book deals with the homosexual relationships of an old man and his young lovers.

Not long after the book was published in the U.S. Robin Maugham bought up all the copies on the advice of Uncle Somerset, a homosexual.

Now that Somerset Maugham is dead and times have changed, the British publishing house of Heinemann plans to publish The Wrong People by Robin Maugham this fall.

"Many people, says Maugham, 'believe it is my best novel, which is why I don't mind bringing it out now under my real name.'"

NO COST BREAKDOWN

The Federal Government has hiked taxes on domestic air transportation 3 percent. The new tax brings the domestic levy to 8 percent.

Under the new Airports & Airways Bill which went into effect on July 1st, the law strangely forbids the separate showing on any airline ticket of the fare and the tax. The entire sum must be shown or a $100 fine will be assessed to the travel agent or the airline.

In short, the Government does not want the airline passenger to have a written breakdown of charges.

The reason given is "passenger protection." It is said that certain travel agencies and airlines promote ticket sales on the basis of fare alone and decline to disclose the tax until the ticket is finally written.

Many travel agents declare this reason to be "ridiculous."

"The true reason," according to one, "is that the Government doesn't want the passenger to know that it has raised transportation taxes."

From now on, airline advertising will offer the entire cost of ticket, tax included.

The purpose of the 8 percent tax on domestic air transportation and a new tariff of $3 on tickets to foreign destinations is to raise funds for the expansion and renovation of airports.

NOBEL CANDIDATE

The Soviet Union is a dark and forbidding slave state in which there is no intellectual freedom and no personal liberty. Last month, Alexander Solzhenitsyn, Russia's greatest living novelist (Cancer Ward, First Circle, One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich) whose works are no longer allowed to be published in the Soviet Union, lashed out at the Communist practice of "incarcerating free-thinking, healthy people in madhouses."

The Soviets are silencing dissenters by sending them to insane asylums for mental examinations, keeping them there indefinitely.

In Paris recently more than 50 French writers and world-famous artists decided to recommend Alexander Solzhenitsyn for the Nobel Prize in literature.

Signatories of the appeal to the Nobel Committee in Stockholm include film director Rene Clair, political writer Raymond Aron, novelist Mary McCarthy, and many others.

Two years ago the Union of Soviet Writers accused Solzhenitsyn of deliberately cooperating with "Western anti-Soviet propaganda."

Boris Pasternak, poet and author of Doctor Zhivago, who won the 1958 Nobel Prize, was forced by his Government to decline it.

DEFENSE SPENDING

Litton Industries, based in Beverly Hills, Calif., one of the first of the conglomerates, founded by one of the most controversial Horatio Alger characters in American history, Charles "Tex" Thornton, has been awarded a highly-prized Navy contract.

Over the next eight years Litton will build 30 destroyers for the Navy at a cost of $2.14 billion.

Litton Industries, whose stock had declined from a high of 120 in 1967 to a low of 16 last month, will construct the ships in Pascagoula, Miss., in the shipyards of the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp., one of its 37 subsidiaries.

The destroyer contract represents one of the most ambitious shipbuilding programs in modern naval history.

"Honest John" Stennis (D., Miss.) is chairman of the U.S. Senate's powerful Armed Services Committee, which helped award the contract to Litton, a contract that will provide tremendous employment benefits to Mississippi workers.

In the 13½ years (1955-69) in which Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) was chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, his home state received more defense spending than ever before in its history.

The Bath Iron Works of Bath, Me., was the rival of Litton Industries in seeking the destroyers contract. Maine's Sen. Margaret Chase Smith is the ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee. She has a lot of clout in Congress; and since 60 percent of the value of each new destroyer will be spent on materials from subcontractors in 45 states, Maine will undoubtedly obtain its rightful share. But for a long while veteran observers of Congressional infighting were betting that Bath Iron Works and not Litton would wind up building the 30 Spruance-class destroyers, named after the late Admiral Raymond Spruance.

Bath spent more than $2 million developing designs and cost estimates in bidding for the contract, but Litton's bid was about $9 million less per ship, and in the final analysis the low bid won out.

ICE CREAM, YOU SCREAM

This year Americans will eat their way through 800 million gallons of ice cream. Roughly this amounts to four gallons for every man, woman, and child in the country.

Richard Nixon is no exception. When it comes to ice cream his taste just happens to be more exotic than most. Last summer while visiting the Kahala Hilton in Hawaii, he tasted macadamia nut ice cream. He liked the cool stuff so much that he had the hotel pack three gallons in dry ice to take back to the White House. In April, when he returned to the island to meet the astronauts' splashdown, he made a point of replenishing his supply.

Nixon is not the first Presidential ice cream aficionado. George Washington had two ice cream freezers installed in his Mount Vernon home, and Dolly Madison served ice cream at the White House in 1809. The first ice cream factory was built in 1851 by a Baltimore dairyman named Jacob Fussell.

Not until 1904 did the mass of Americans first taste ice cream cones. They were sold at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis.

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT: UNITED—A CHANGE; AIR FRANCE—AS IS.

FLYING HIGH —AND LOW

French and Italian couturiers, who have been trying to bulldoze fashionable women into believing that the only chic length is the midi, are having little effect on the real high fliers of their own countries.

Both Air France and Alitalia have no intentions of lowering stewardess hemlines

In the U.S., however, United is introducing a longer hemline to the top of the knee, and Pan American plans to follow suit.

Open-Face Sandwiches

by Beth Merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

When it comes to making food look attractive, the Scandinavians have the inside track. Their open-face sandwiches, for instance, are beautiful to behold and delicious as well. Since August is Sandwich Month, celebrate by serving these appetizing open-to-view sandwiches. Decorate with lemon slices, fluted cucumber slices, asparagus spears and then glaze each sandwich with aspic.

Smorgasbord Sandwiches

Spread toasted whole wheat, pumpernickel, or rye bread with soft butter or margarine. For Cheese and Salami Smorgasbord Sandwiches, top with a slice of American cheese and 2 small salami slices; garnish with a strip of pimiento. For Salmon Smorgasbord Sandwiches, spread with Salmon Salad* and garnish with cucumber and radish slices. For Ham Smorgasbord Sandwiches, top with a slice of ham and garnish with 3 slices of hard-cooked egg and 2 slices of pimiento-stuffed olives. For Chicken Smorgasbord Sandwiches, top with sliced chicken and 2 cooked asparagus spears; garnish with half a lemon slice. Place sandwiches on wire rack placed on baking sheet. Carefully spoon Aspic Glaze over top of each sandwich; chill until firm.

*Salmon Salad

1 can (7½ oz.) salmon, drained and flaked
1½ teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon finely chopped onion
Sprinkle salmon with lemon juice; add onion and mix well.

Aspic Glaze

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin	1½ cups tomato juice
1½ cups cold water, divided	¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
2 chicken bouillon cubes

Sprinkle gelatin over 1 cup cold water in saucepan. Add bouillon cubes. Stir over low heat until gelatin and bouillon cubes dissolve, 4 or 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in remaining ½ cup water, tomato juice, and hot pepper sauce. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture thickens slightly and has a syrupy consistency. If gelatin mixture becomes too thick, place over very low heat for just a few seconds. Makes enough glaze for 12 open-face sandwiches.

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

Sure Beats Smoking!

Here's how to help cut down or stop smoking, often without gaining weight!

It's happened to almost everyone who's tried to cut down on smoking. You smoke less, but you blow up like a balloon, because you eat more. You reach for a candy instead of a smoke. You nibble between meals. You raid the refrigerator at night. You smoke fewer cigarettes, but put on more pounds.

A way to help satisfy tobacco hunger and help control your appetite.

Now there's an easier way to break the cigarette habit—and control your appetite, too. Doctors have seen it happen and reported the results. Try Nikoban lozenges, or gum. It's medicated with a clinically-tested smoking deterrent that helps satisfy your tobacco hunger—helps reduce your desire to smoke and eat! If you really want to stop smoking, start using Nikoban today.

Doctor's plan helps 4 out of 5. In a recent study made of Nikoban users, four out of five replying to the survey either cut down or stopped smoking completely. Clinical studies reveal that most Nikoban users tested did not gain weight. No wonder doctors have been recommending Nikoban for years!

So you see, if you really want to break the cigarette habit, (and without gaining weight) try Nikoban. Get a package of Nikoban lozenges or the new Nikoban medicated gum at any drug counter. Start using them today. You'll feel like a new person.

If you need a laxative more than once a week...

Here's Real Relief From Constipation

If you've been taking magnesia, salts, oils or harsh chemical laxatives once a week or more and you're still not satisfied—here's a better way to end constipation worries. Take medically proven Serutan. It's different! Unlike other laxatives that may cause an irritation or griping, Serutan, taken daily, forms a soft gel which moistens food wastes and shapes them into a well-formed stool. Serutan produces the proper amount of bulk needed to help bring peristaltic stimulation to your sluggish colon. This is utterly different from forcing your system with harsh chemical laxatives which may dry you out. You can take gentle Serutan every day because it is a pure, non-irritating vegetable hydrogel and contains no harsh roughage, no chemical laxatives. Take Serutan every day to get regular—and keep regular.

New Fruit Flavor

Serutan now comes in a delicious fruit flavor. Get Serutan regular powder, new fruit flavor or toasted granules today. When you read Serutan backwards, it spells "natures." And nature's way is best.

His wife, "Funny Girl" Barbra Streisand, visits Elliott after the opening of "Dra! the Cat," a short-lived 1965 musical in which he had lead.

Elliott Gould: Kids' New Screen Idol

by Lloyd Shearer

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. In the old days when such truly handsome men as Clark Gable, Robert Taylor, and Gary Cooper occupied the top rungs of the stardom ladder, Elliott Gould would not have been hired here as a chicken-plucker.

Today, however, Elliott Gould (Brooklyn-born 32 years ago and named Elliott Goldstein) is the hottest Hollywood property since Marilyn Monroe wiggled her backside and jiggled her frontside to film fame in the middle 1950's.

A tall, shaggy-haired, moustached pretzel of an anti-hero, Gould in little more than a year has starred in five films, two of them among the worst ever made, and two of them, Mash and Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice, among the most successful produced in the past few years.

More important for him as a man, actor, father and husband, Gould has finally escaped from the obliterating shadow of the wife from whom he is now separated, Barbra Streisand.

In the years to come Elliott Gould will probably outlast his spouse as a screen attraction. Barbra Streisand, by looks and voice, is limited largely to musicals, whereas Gould with a little luck and prudence in script selection, can endure as a leading man, and in his old age as a character actor like Fredric March, Walter Pidgeon, Henry Fonda, and others have done.

Elliott Gould owes his prominence and his asking price of $350,000 per film to the growing army of young moviegoers aged 16 to 26. This army comprises the single largest segment of ticket-buyers. Its members are known to the trade as "the kids," and it is these kids who identify with Gould, his sloppy clothes, his droopy moustache, his brown twinkling eyes, and the irreverent, big-hearted, frequently helpless character he portrays on the screen.

So, for that matter, does Gould himself. "I'm no actor," he likes to say. "I do what comes naturally. Most actors dress for effect. They date girls for effect. They do so many things purely for effect that it all suddenly becomes real to them, and they're affected.

"Actors like Cooper, Gable, Bogart and Fred Astaire," he goes on, "they were special. They weren't trying. Because you can't really try in front of a camera. It catches that, and it betrays it."

"Originally I wanted to become an actor to prove something—to show off. I don't want that now. Now, I've begun to learn my craft, to act naturally. I don't take myself too seriously. It's not what you do up on the screen but what you are that matters. It's taken me time, but I've learned that."

Today's youth espouses the credo, judge a man by what he is, not by what he has. And Elliott Gould shares their values, disregarding the traditional status symbols of screen success.

Basketball nut

He prefers to divide his time between the beach in Santa Monica, his Greenwich Village apartment in New York—and his psychoanalyst's couch. He works intensely at his acting, underplaying as a rule, and enjoys most of all a fast three-man game of basketball interspersed with periods of nibbling on sunflower seeds.

Elliott is the only child of Bernard and Lucille Goldstein. His father was a none too successful manufacturer of children's clothing. The family lived in a two-room apartment in the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn.

"Our block was mostly Jews except for some Syrians down near the corner," Gould recalls. "And we played all the block games—touch-lackle, triangle, three feet off to Germany."

Consoling Candice Bergen in "Gettin' Straight," a film about student rebels.

He attended P.S. 247, also Hebrew school, and dutifully obeyed his ambitious mother who force-fed him tap dancing and ballet lessons, then farmed him out as a one-man show for weddings, bar mitzvahs and lodge benefits.

"I used to be on the Milton Berle show in the background chorus," Gould painfully remembers. "It was so humiliating. Oh, my childhood was so intense and unhappy! This whole area is a problem area and I don't want to talk about it. Why do you think I've been going to a shrink for five years? What do you think I talk to him about?"

Professional school

To further his career, Gould left his local Seth Low Junior High School for the Professional Children's School in Manhattan, a school for young working performers.

He graduated in 1956 and turned down Columbia University in favor of show business. "All I really wanted was to be accepted, not educated." He continued to study ballet and tap dancing. He danced in the choruses of the Ernie Kovacs TV show, Broadway musicals, including David Merrick's production of Irma La Douce. Odd jobs—everything from demonstrating toys in department stores to running the elevator at a hotel for transients—filled the monetary gaps.

In 1961, Gould won the lead part of Harry Bogen in the Merrick production, I Can Get It for You Wholesale. He received $200 a week, for the first time moved out of the chorus and onto center stage. But the critics, while praising him, spent more space extolling a 19-year-old Brooklynite named Barbra Streisand, cast as Bogen's secretary, Miss Marmelstein.

Gould remembers with great fondness those early days of his romance with Miss Streisand.

"We lived together like Hansel and Gretel in a tiny apartment on Third Avenue over a restaurant. We shared the pad with the biggest rat I've ever seen. But we didn't mind. It was a fun-play time for us."

Married in Nevada

On Sept. 13, 1963, they were married in Carson City, Nev. Barbra was singing with Liberace in Reno at the time. A few days later, Gould flew to London to play in a show called On the Town. Thus began for him a long spell of small parts and near-misses while his wife moved effortlessly up the conveyor to stardom via Funny Girl and other super over-budgeted extravaganzas too painful to name.

Meanwhile, Gould's case was the classic one of an experienced, authentic talent who never quite made it.

Says stage director Alan Schneider: "Elliott was always on the verge of becoming a hot star. Everyone knew Elliott was likable, intelligent, industrious and talented. It was just a matter of his outstanding quality—that of being an ingratiating nebbish (schnook)—becoming appreciated and being used."

Hollywood began to use Gould three years ago when he was given the role of Billy Minsky in The Night They Raided Minsky's. Producer Mike Frankovich at Columbia Pictures saw him, recognized "a certain magic, a certain kind of humanistic appeal, a certain kind of nice guy quality" in the 6-foot-3 actor, and hired him for Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice.

After that, Elliott reported to 20th Century-Fox for Mash, one of the most brilliant and hilarious comedies ever made.

With professional success came private failure for Gould. He and Barbra decided to separate, she, of course, taking custody of their son Jason, now 3.

"I've read the strangest reasons why we have broken up," he says. "Barbra is usually cast as the heavy—a monster in whose shadow I'm supposed to have been swallowed up. This is totally fallacious and distorted.

"People say to me, 'you're successful now that you got rid of her.' Not true. Careers did not enter into it. We are still very close. She likes my work, and I like hers. She is to me a lady with magnificent talent, and the assumption that I was the poor underdog in our marriage comes to me as a sad and total embarrassment.

Admires Barbra

"If I'm a success now, it's just because I've had a few breaks. My number's come up. Maybe I've lost a marriage but I've certainly strengthened a friendship. Barbra and I are great friends, with great respect for each other. We've gotten over a lot of misunderstanding that's caused by the convention of marriage that obliges a man and a woman to continue a relationship which has obviously foundered."

Friends predict that Gould and Streisand will eventually reconcile after each has enjoyed the heady wine of fame.

Until then Gould continues to strike while the iron is orange-hot and producers clamor for his services.

He has just finished two films for 20th Century-Fox, one of dubitable taste called Move and another, Little Murders, based on a Jules Feiffer play in which he acted on Broadway. His next is The Dick, in which he plays the role of a police department press agent. Gettin' Straight, in which he co-stars with Candice Bergen, received mixed notices but is doing well at the box office.

As in most things, the loyalty of America's youth to film personalities is highly quixotic, fickle, and impossible to predict. However this loyalty manifests itself tomorrow, Elliott Gould is youth's screen king today.

He's unsuccessful playwright in "Move," and Paula Prentiss is his practical wife.

My Favorite Jokes

by Flip Wilson

EDITOR'S NOTE: It only took Flip Wilson ten years and five minutes to become an overnight success. The ten years were spent working his way up from obscure nightclubs, and the five minutes comprised his debut on the Tonight Show. Since then he's guested on the major TV shows many times over, starred in his own special, become a regular guest-host on the Tonight Show, played every top nightspot in the country and starting September he'll be seen in his own weekly comedy series on NBC. His smash hit album, The Devil Made Me Buy This Dress, is now in the nation's top 20 and on its way to a gold record. Here with some of his favorite jokes:

A woman called her doctor in the middle of the night in hysterics. "My dog just swallowed a whole bottle of aspirins," she cried. "What should I do?" "What else?" the doctor replied calmly, "give him a headache."

A full-blooded Indian got a job as a bartender but he was fired after five minutes—a customer asked for a Manhattan and the Indian charged him $24.

An old lady met a doctor at a party, and when she discovered his profession she immediately started asking him for cures for all her ailments. Finally the doctor interrupted: "Madam, I'm not a doctor of medicine, I'm a doctor of economics." "So, all right," continued the old lady, "What's happening with General Motors. Should I buy or should I sell?"

A gambler proudly boasted to a friend that he'd been to a psychiatrist who'd helped him with his gambling problems. "I used to go to the track every day," he told his friend. "Now I only go there when it's open."

A woman complained to her best friend that her brother was convinced he was a parking meter. "Bring him round and I'll talk to him," the friend offered. "Oh, I can't do that," the woman replied. "With all those quarters and dimes in his mouth he won't be able to talk till after he's been emptied."

It takes two to make a marriage—a girl and her mother.

Spring is when a young girl's fancy turns to what the young man has been thinking about all winter!

Three Irishmen were jailed for stealing a cow, a horse and a cart. "But I didn't steal the cow," the first one told the judge. "Why, I've had her since she was a baby calf." "And I didn't steal the horse," claimed the second one. "Why, I've had him since he was a tiny colt." "And I certainly didn't steal the cart," protested the third. "Why, I've owned it ever since it was a wheelbarrow."

A traveling salesman was passing through a small hick town in the West when he saw a little old man sitting in a rocking chair on the stoop of his house. The little man looked so contented the salesman couldn't resist going over and talking to him. "You don't look as if you have a care in the world," the salesman told him. "What is your formula for a long and happy life?" "Well," replied the little man, "I smoke six packs of cigarettes a day, I drink a quart of bourbon every four hours and six cases of beer a week. I never wash and I go out every night." "My goodness," exclaimed the salesman. "That's just great. How old are you?" "Twenty-five," was the reply.

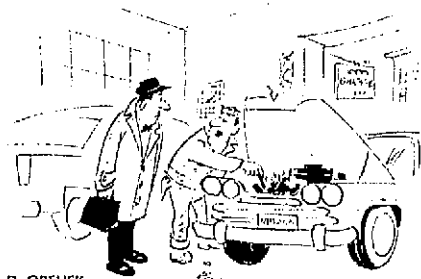

A small girl was pounding away at the piano practicing for her weekly music lesson. "That's a terrible noise, you're making," her mother yelled. "And what's more your hands are dirty." "Oh don't worry about it," the girl yelled back. "I'm only using the black keys."

A Frenchman was visiting a friend in America and was very disturbed at the way his friend's dog kept barking at him. "Don't worry about him," his host told him. "Don't you know the old proverb" "Barking dogs don't bite?" "Ah, yes," replied the trembling Frenchman: "I know ze proverbe, you know ze proverbe, but ze dog—does he know ze proverbe?"

It's to Laugh

Youth Notes

by Pamela Swift

The Mix As Before

President Nixon has okayed the vote for 18-year-olds. He believes the law passed by Congress, however, to be unconstitutional. The Constitution says that the individual states retain the right to set voting requirements. The President, who was a brilliant law student at Duke University, contends that this right cannot be transferred to Congress without first amending the Constitution.

Speaker of the House John McCormack claims that it will take from 10 to 20 years to get the necessary 38 states to ratify such an amendment. Nixon says the process can be ratified before the 1972 election.

We shall see. As the law now stands, 18-year-olds will have the right by Jan. 1, 1971, to vote in all local, state, and Federal elections, including primaries, school bond issues, elections of every type.

Will the enfranchisement of 11 million youths alter the character of the total electoral mix in this country?

Probably not. The young were enfranchised in Great Britain this year and voted Conservative. In 1920, midst doomful predictions, American women were also granted the vote. And the total electoral mix was as before.

Except in times of war, Americans of whatever age and sex vote their pocket-books.

In fact, too many Americans never vote. In 1960, almost 40 million qualified Americans declined to vote in the Presidential election. In 1964, the number of non-voters jumped to 43 million and in 1968 to 47 million.

Warning

Overweight teenagers taking pills to lose weight are advised that no pill can do the job.

Willpower to reduce the intake of food is the only answer.

Benzedrine, Dexedrine and other pep pills that stimulate the nervous system and depress the appetite are popular in teenage circles nowadays.

But these amphetamines are dangerous. They can raise blood pressure, induce vomiting and, worst of all, lead to addiction.

The body quickly builds up a tolerance to amphetamines, which means that after a week or two, small doses are ineffective and have to be increased.

Best way to reduce is to eat less and exercise.

Campus Unrest

Sad but true. "Student" has now become a dirty word in the American lexicon.

A recent Gallup Poll reveals that for the first time campus unrest has supplanted the war in Vietnam and racial strife at home as the matter of most concern to the American public.

Public tolerance of campus lawlessness is apparently approaching its end. Arson, dynamiting, window-breaking, name-calling, property-destruction—all of this has aroused a mounting antipathy toward campus radicals to the point where politicians and a large segment of the public are demanding repressive action.

College students are a minority in this country, with about two in five high school students going on to college. Moreover, America has long been run through by a deep river of anti-intellectualism. Higher education in this country has traditionally been regarded as a privilege, especially by the hard-hats and the blue-collar workers, who now resent the privileged ones.

The result is a new polarization—not between the young and the old, but this time between the educated and the uneducated.

President Nixon has appointed still another commission, this one to determine what is wrong with the American college campus and what can be done about it.

Two possible solutions have been offered: end the war and reform the draft.

Reading List

For kids interested in an easy-to-carry summer reading list, the U.S. Jaycees have published a wallet-sized list of paperbacks for teenagers. The list was prepared under the direction of the American Library Association, offers such books as: To Kill a Mockingbird, Love and Sex in Plain Language, Catcher in the Rye, Nigger, Manchild in the Promised Land, The Autobiography of Malcolm X, Up the Down Staircase, and many others.

Individual copies of the reading list, entitled, "Mod-Mod Book List" are available free from the Pilgrim Book Society, 83 Pembroke Road, Akron, Ohio 44313, providing a self-addressed stamped envelope is sent with the request.

Cheryl Adrienne Browne

Her name is Cheryl Adrienne Browne. She is 19, curvaceous, 5 feet 4, with a father who came from the West Indies and a mother who is half Indian. Last month Cheryl won the Miss Iowa beauty crown.

OFF THE RECORD by ED REED

"To start out, let's try lifting the arms."

Put the squeeze on us for free "FUNNY FACE."

Stop at Union 76
for a free package of Jolly Olly Orange.

To celebrate the New Spirit of 76 across the country, participating Union 76 dealers are giving away — with any gasoline purchase—a package of Jolly Olly Orange "Funny Face" soft drink mix. Or Goofy Grape, if you prefer.

Drive in where you see the big bright orange 76 ball and pick up your free package.*

And while you're there, fill up with Super 76. You'll jolly well get the Spirit.

The Spirit of 76.

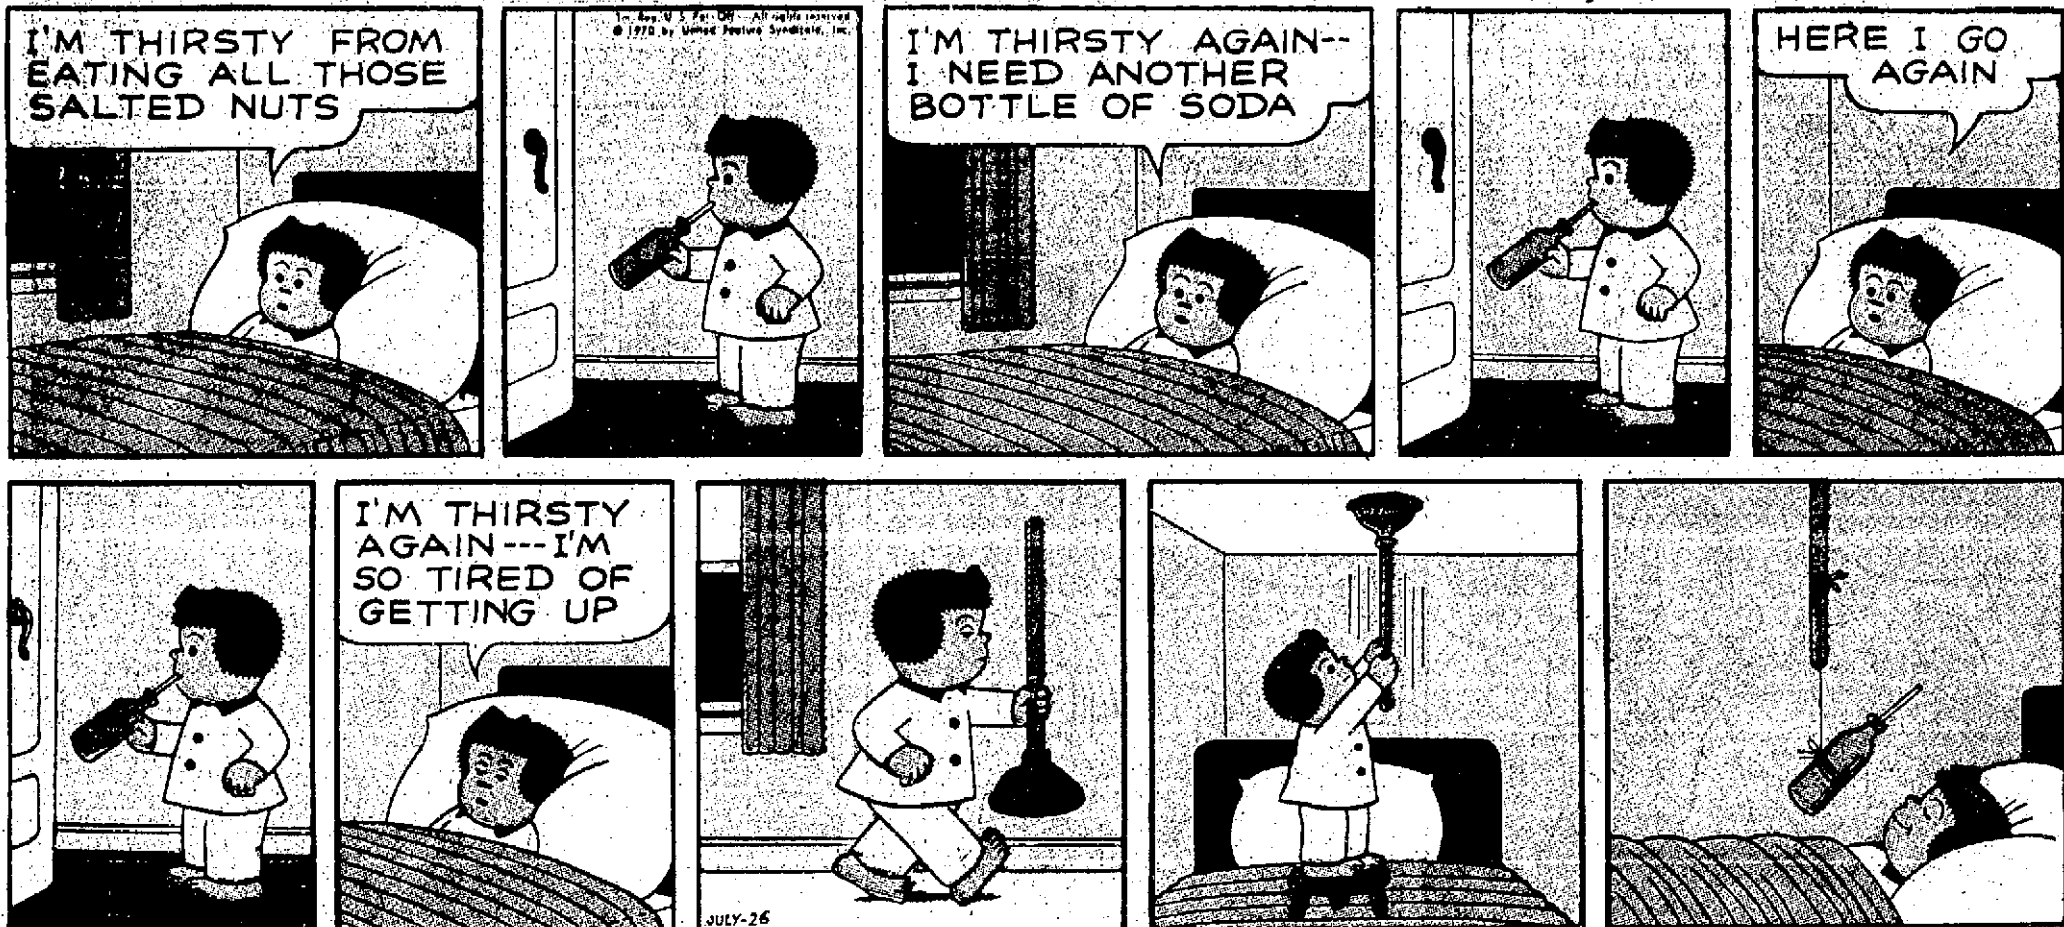

*For fourteen package fronts, the Pillsbury people will send you a free Jolly Olly Orange "Funny Face" Mug. See back of package for details.

PUT A CIRCUS IN YOUR FREEZER!

Move the frozen food over.
Make room for a box full of fun.
Now you can get Sno Cones in a box
— 4 of 'em — at your supermarket.
To eat whenever you want. Super!
(And Mother, a Super Sno Cone only has 65 calories... and no cyclamates!)

Another fine product from Frozen Desserts Company.

MAJOR MANTLET IS ORDERED TO SERVE AS TEMPORARY LIAISON WITH THE CIVILIAN POLICE INVESTIGATING WINTHROP'S MURDER.

PLENTY OF PEOPLE KNOW THE WAY UP THE CLIFF, MAJOR. LOCALS, WHITE AND INDIAN, FEW STRAY PROSPECTORS, NOT TO MENTION THE SCIENTISTS WHO COME DOWN FROM THE STATE UNIVERSITY...

BUT HOW DO I PICK ONE WHO JUST HAPPENED TO BE HERE WHEN YOUR STUDENT PILOT CAME DOWN - AND COLD-BLOODEDLY MURDERED HIM?

SHERIFF PARA, WINTHROP WAS ONE OF MY STUDENTS. A NICE GUY - AND I DOUBT HE'S HAD ANYTHING BUT THE MOST CASUAL CONTACT WITH THE FOLKS AROUND HERE.

UH, HUH, REVENGE, FEUD, SOMETHING LIKE THAT DOESN'T SOUND TOO LIKELY, LIEUTENANT. NO QUESTION OF ROBBERY...

NO, THE ONLY THING THAT MAKES SENSE IS THAT HE WAS KILLED BECAUSE OF THIS PLACE - BY SOMEONE WHO ATTACHES SPECIAL IMPORTANCE TO IT!

WHICH BRINGS US ROUND TO BOLD HORSE AND HIS GIRL AGAIN. I'M AFRAID, SHERIFF, THEY KNOW THIS SITE - AND THEY HAVE STRONG FEELINGS AGAINST NON-INDIANS COMING HERE.

I'VE HAD PROBLEMS WITH BOLD HORSE BEFORE, MAJOR. MOSTLY FISTFIGHTS WITH YOUNG WHITES, THOUGH. A THING LIKE THIS - I DUNNO!

ALL FINISHED AND PACKED, SHERIFF. SHALL WE TAKE THE BODY DOWN TO THE HELICOPTER?

OKAY... MIGHT AS WELL TAKE OFF TOO, GENTLEMEN. I'LL BE IN TOUCH LATER.

WHEW! HOT IN THE DESERT, DOC. BET THE MEDICAL EXAMINER'S OFFICE KEEPS SOMETHING COLD AND WET JUST FOR DESERVING FUZZ.

BEEN SLEUTHING THE WILDERNESS FOR CLUES, EH, GENE? FIND ANYTHING?

SOME TIRE TRACKS, STUFF LIKE THAT. MAY MEAN SOMETHING, OR NOTHING. YOUR AUTOPSY TURN UP ANYTHING WE DIDN'T KNOW?

MATTER OF FACT, IT ENLIGHTENED ME, SOMEWHAT...

I WOULD HAVE SWORN A WEAPON LIKE THIS WAS OBSOLETE CENTURIES AGO!

THE MIND OF THE BIGOT IS LIKE THE PUPIL OF THE EYE; THE MORE LIGHT YOU POUR INTO IT, THE MORE IT WILL CONTRACT!
- OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES

AH SAY EVERY PORE SOUL WHO NEEDS A BREAK'S GONNA GET IT FROM MAGREE!! JES' WRITE T' ME, WASHINGTON, D.C. AN' IT'LL GET DELIVERED! WHY, HONEY, EVER'BODY KNOWS OL' MOTHER MAGREE!

IT'S COMIN' FROM RIGHT OUTSIDE THE WINDOW... IN THE GARDEN...

NEWCOMBE BUDDINGTON... THE GARDENER!!

MISS ANNIE... I DON'T KNOW WHAT'S COME OVER ME... BUT... I'M SO WEAK... I CAN'T EVEN STAND UP...

MAYBE IT WAS THAT BEE THAT STUNG YOU IN THE GARDEN THIS AFTERNOON... COULD BE HE POISONED YOU...

THAT'S WHEN I STARTED TO FEEL ILL... BUT I'VE BEEN STUNG BY BEES A THOUSAND TIMES... AND THIS NEVER HAPPENED...

I'M 'FRAID YOU'RE TOO HEAVY FOR ME, NEWCOMBE! JUST STAY PUT AN' I'LL GET PUNJAB T' HELP...

I... I'M SORRY TO BE SUCH A NUISANCE, MISS ANNIE...

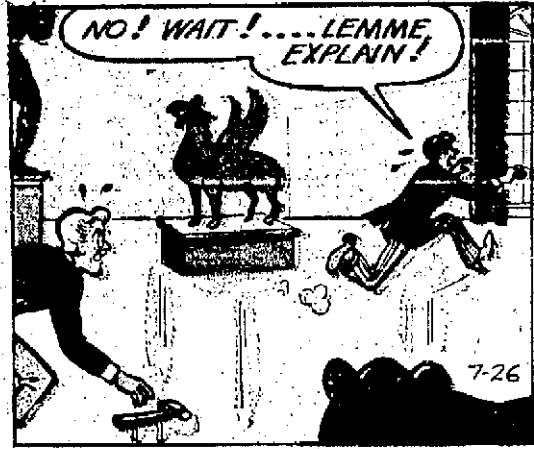

THERE STANDS NEWCOMBE BUDDINGTON, MIGHTY PROUD AND IN THE PRIME OF LIFE... THEN I LET GO THE POISONED DART... WHOOSH!! "IT'S A BEESTING", HE SAYS... AN' THEN HE PALES AN' STAGGERS...

FETCH ME A BOTTLE O' CATSUP FROM THE KITCHEN, BOLL WEASEL...
